ROOST To Pick Candidates Sunday For Village Election

by NANCY COWGER

When the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) opens its convention at 6 p.m. Sunday, delegates will choose three men from four candidates for village trustee in Hoffman Estates, and one of two persons to run for village president.

The convention will be held in Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr.

Of the trustee candidates, only one has served on the village board before. He is Bruce Lind, 38, of 172 Harper Ln., who elicits continuing with a basic philosophy of responsiveness to village residents as his goal for a second term in office.

Expression of independent opinions at the board level is important, he said. He would like to see completion of such projects as the police facility in the new municipal building during his trusteeship.

Careful scrutiny of new projects, either by the village or by private developers, is promised in his campaign. He particularly would like to see the completion of Gannon Drive north to Higgins Road, and a conclusion of study of merging the village and Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District.

RALPH LYERLA, 44, of 282 Westview St., promises "good, old fashioned, sound judgement," if he is elected. Lyerla would consider himself a "stabilizing" influence on the board. He notes he would offer experience in public office, having served in several township posts, and a "great deal of knowledge about what is happening."

Lyerla said he is close to village residents, and knows what they want from government. He will resign his township collector's position is elected in April, he said.

Carl Shoemaker, 123 N. Woodlawn, the youngest trustee candidate at 31, cites his experience from four years on the village plan commission as an advantage for his candidacy. He also notes his employment in dealing with the retail trade, which he said "could help out the economic situation of the village." Overall planning for development of the village and cooperation with other villages are goals in his bid for a term.

WINSTON KNOLLS is important to Melvin Timmons, 43, of 167 Colony Ln., in his candidacy. While he said the village is his primary interest, Knolls, north of the tollroad, should have representation in their village management," he said. Timmons sees his ability to meet and work with people to solve future problems of growth and expansion as his best qualification for office.

The mayoral candidates are both currently serving as trustees. Mrs. Virginia Hayter of 384 Carleton Rd. feels her recent entry in the business world has matured her in use of time, priorities of village residents in considering governmental programs, decision making and empathy with other human beings. "I'm a little bit more realistic now than I was. Now I'm a little bit more impatient," she said, and less willing to "let time work its own sequence." Building a team of elected officials is "vitaly important to success," said Mrs. Hayter, and a goal of her mayoral candidacy.

Edward Hennessy, 47, of 110 Aztec, elicits communications between the village mayor and his fellow board members, village employees and the public as one of his concerns for his mayoral candidacy. There has been "in general, a gap in that respect," he said. He would solicit ideas and interest from village citizens, meeting in different sections of the village, and encouraging residents to seek commission and committee posts. Long range planning and finding means to attract industry also are on his check list for mayoral projects.

Ms. Helen Wozniak is expected to be selected village clerk candidate. She is going to the convention unopposed.

1973 Budget 'Close To The Skin,' Atcher Says

The proposed 1973 budget for the Village of Schaumburg is "awfully close to the skin," recognizing "we won't have another Woodfield," said Mayor Robert O. Atcher at the first official review of the document Wednesday night.

Expenditures in the budget, as initially proposed, total $3,085,869, an increase over the 1972 budget of $4,436,478. It is not yet final, but financial officers were directed to try to prepare a complete document for action at the Dec. 19 village board meeting.

Revenue is estimated at $3,466,124.

In discussing the budget generally, Atcher compared it and future budgets with 1972, which he said "was probably on a per capita basis our highest income year" because of the opening of Woodfield in the fall of 1971. "We don't have another Woodfield in the works," noted Atcher.

In 1972, the village increased the size of many departments, "more than doubling" the staff of the fire department, expanding engineering and establishing a health department with two sanitarians.

"OUR PEOPLE became accustomed to our income jumping 50 per cent every year. We cannot do some things our people apparently have taken for granted," said the mayor, citing areas of departmental expansion, personnel increases and salary raises.

In 1972, said Atcher, the village was "using up all of our '71 and practically all our income from '72." Now, the village is "coming to the realistic point," he said. It has initiated a "terrific building program," he noted, with reference to the municipal complex under construction.

"The budget comes awfully close to the skin with regards to income, outgo and our capital improvements program," he commented.

Salary raises have been kept to a 5.5 per cent maximum, commented John Coste, village administrator. This is to comply with federal wage-price freeze guidelines. Higher raises have been granted only where an employee's job classification changed.

The budget includes 12 funds, some of which are reorganized. All village insurance has been conglomerated under the special account, rather than showing it under individual departments as had been done in the past. The special account also includes all allocations for dues and memberships, a $400,000 item for a civic center contribution, allocations for participation in such civic events as Septemberfest, audit fees and telephone service. Because of the change in budget location, the account increased from $432,493 to $881,109 in 1973.

A MAJOR budgetary increase for the village health department was turned down by the village board, meeting Wednesday as a committee of the whole.

Two health board representatives attended the session, listing functions served by the department and asking staff and salary increases to improve it. The department inspected 237 food establishments, which included everything from restaurants to candy machines; 100 business establishments, some with cafe-

Business-Use Zoning OK'd

Medical Complex Gains

The first steps were taken Wednesday for a Schaumburg medical complex on the north side of Wise Road near Wright Boulevard when zoning for a business use was recommended for approval.

The recommended zoning change from residential to business also included a special use permit for a gas station. The station would be at Wise Road and Wright Boulevard when it is extended to Salem Drive.

The lawyers for the owners of the 17-acre property, George Mitsos and Donald H. Smith, said the medical complex is a tentative idea and no tenants have been approached.

However, he said the real estate marketing firm consulted by the developer thinks the property can be sold or leased for this purpose.

The complex may include a dental clinic, drug store, nursing home, medical equipment establishment, health club, and medical offices, according to a drawing presented to the Schaumburg Zoning Board.

A representative from the Checker Oil Co. said his firm is interested in the gas station property. The zoning board recommended the special use permit for the service station with the stipulation that the station would be torn down if it were closed for three months.

"THE PROPERTY IS surrounded on three sides by vacant land and the industrial park to the south. The zoning

Add-Ons May Hike Airport Study Cost

by PAT GERLACH

The federal government and the State of Illinois have each recently thrown separate monkeywrenches into the work of Schaumburg Airport Feasibility Study Committee.

Add-in items, which are not mandatory but have been suggested for inclusion in the study by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) could nearly double the cost of the airport feasibility study originally anticipated between $25,000 and $30,000.

Preparation of an FAA requested comprehensive environmental impact statement (EIS), as opposed to a simpler environmental statement called for in the federal planning grant application, and would add 11 months to the investigation. The study was expected to be completed in one year.

LAST MONTH, the Illinois Department of Aeronautics (IDA) discovered it cannot provide one-sixth of the cost of the study since it is a planning grant program.

Technicalities in the recently revised statute governing state funding have been discovered which prohibit financial assistance for airport planning until an opinion is received from the Illinois Attorney General.

According to Ray LeBeau, committee chairman, information concerning the state position on funding was transmitted to him in a letter dated Nov. 30.

LeBeau is arranging a joint meeting with FAA and IDA officials to discuss both problems.

"The village has allocated funds for the study so we do not actually need the state one-sixth, but we certainly would like to have it," LeBeau commented.

The village is attempting to determine the advisability of an expanded municipally-owned general aviation airport as part of a proposed regional transportation center.

In its 1972 appropriation, the village set aside $50,000 for the airport study since

Santa Will Answer His Christmas Mail

Santa will be answering his Christmas mail from Schaumburg again this year.

Children's letters to Santa Claus can be deposited in Schaumburg Park District boxes starting today. The kids will receive a reply from the park district's Santas.

Letters may be addressed to Santa Claus at either the North Pole or the Schaumburg Park District, and he'll receive them as long as the correct boxes are used.

A Santa Claus mail box will be placed outside Jennings House, 220 S. Clive Dr., from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

A second box decorated like a Christmas house will be outside the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, up until the holiday.

Children should be reminded to include their full name and return address on their letters so that they can receive an answer.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stopping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinagar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State
U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

Questionnaire To Be Sent

Chamber Merger Opinions Asked

A questionnaire seeking the attitudes existing toward merging the two chambers of commerce serving Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are to be sent to members of the groups, John Mathias, outgoing president of the Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry, said Wednesday.

The other group involved is the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce. If favorable reaction to the questionnaire is received a joint meeting will be held where the merger prospect can be further discussed, Mathias added.

At the Greater Schaumburg Association's annual meeting Wednesday, he said the questionnaire will be made up and sent out after the first of the year because both groups are now establishing new leadership.

Newly elected secretaries from the two groups will be responsible for the questionnaire and members are encouraged to suggest questions to be included.

Bob Touchberry was elected secretary to the Greater Schaumburg Association Wednesday. It is expected that Mrs. Shirley Stenger will be elected Tuesday as

Banker Kukla To Head Chamber Of Commerce

The Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry elected new officers Wednesday night and introduced the group's new executive manager, Don Rouser, during its annual meeting at The Lancer Restaurant in Schaumburg.

Walter Kukla of the Woodfield Bank was elected president. Other new officers are Joe Lesniak of Colonial Chevrolet, vice president; Robert Touchberry, Copey Weekly Newspapers, secretary; and Richard McArthur, McArthur Realty, treasurer.

John Mathias of Franklin Weber Pontiac is the outgoing president and will now serve on the board of directors. Other directors are Russell Larsen, Union Oil; Arnold Stanger, Stanger Litho; David Onix, an attorney; and Ken Wolmer, Schaumburg Airport.

secretary for the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber.

THE GREATER Schaumburg Association's annual meeting was also an occasion to introduce Don Rouser, the group's new executive manager.

Rouser said his first goal will be to unite the 48 members. The Greater Schaumburg Association now has and to seek 100 new members in his first four to six months.

Committee development including a retail committee and educational groups for economic knowledge and governmental affairs will follow, he added.

Rouser termed Schaumburg a hot and exciting town commercially, later adding that one function of the chamber can be to attract more service persons to the area. He pointed out potential difficulties in getting plumbing service as an example.

He also said the business community should not be bashful about representing itself and becoming part of the local power structure. At the same time, he added, businessmen best serve themselves by giving a little more to the community where they're located than they take from the town.

Revenue Sharing Cash On Its Way

Village officials in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will probably be pleased in the next few days when they open their mail and find that their first half allotment for the federal revenue sharing program is higher than initially expected.

No specific projects for using the funds have been established by officials of either village. Both groups have had the topic under discussion.

Figures released yesterday from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy's, R. Ill., office state that Hoffman Estates will receive $57,838 and Schaumburg $34,545 which represents half of their 1972 share of the program.

John Hosack, acting village manager in Hoffman Estates, said he was "glad to hear that the amount had been increased." The village had initially expected to receive about $73,000 in total payments for the year.

He added that increase was not totally unexpected however. "We had been told about two weeks ago to expect some changes in the payments," he said. Hosack said the money will be placed in an interest bearing account until used.

SCHAUMBURG WILL be receiving more than first announced but the increase will not be as great as that in Hoffman Estates. The first figures released in September there were $61,630 for the entire payment. The revised payments show the village will receive about $8,000 more.

Schaumburg village officials are hoping to use their revenue sharing proceeds for flood fund control projects. Mayor Robert O. Atcher noted Wednesday night a permitted use for revenue sharing receipts is environmental protection. The village will seek assurance flood control would qualify under that classification, he said.

The village is being handicapped in the revenue sharing program, noted Atcher, since treasury department officials have been quoted as saying 1970 census information must be used in computing shares. The village has taken a special census this year, and plans another one during 1973. Another penalty hits the village because property tax load is considered in formulas. The village does not levy a property tax, and is being penalized for doing a good enough job to operate without the tax revenue, said Atcher.

Library Seeks Revenue Share

Schaumburg Township Library Board members plan to ask Schaumburg Township for a share of the $53,384 Federal Revenue sharing check the township should receive shortly.

The $53,384 check is only part of the approximately $106,000 total the township will receive as its portion of federal sharing for the year.

The library board members Wednesday decided to meet as the plan and service committee to discuss a proposal with the township.

Michael Madden, librarian, suggested the library make its bid for a share of the money early. Madden was concerned about the tax freeze bill still pending in the General Assembly.

Madden said payment of building bonds depends on an increased yearly income.

"If a tax freeze becomes a fact, our income is frozen and we are finished," he said.

The library, after its expansion program, expected to bring in an additional $45,000 in income next year, he added.

The plan and service committee will also set priorities for the coming year. Its report will be given to the budget committee prior to the budget committee's January meeting to discuss the first draft of the budget.

'73 Budget 'Close To The Skin': Atcher

terias; 175 public and private swimming pools and 17 schools and day care centers. A total of 2,440 inspections were made for general complaints on wells and septic systems, and for regular inspections of food establishments, businesses, pools and schools.

The health board members asked for the addition of another full-time sanitarian and a full-time public health nurse, upgrading of the secretarial position to provide for a pay raise, a pay raise for the department head and payment of professional membership dues.

The village board members questioned the health board figures, and pointed out health nurses are provided in the schools. "They can't have all this money you propose to give them," said Atcher. Salary increases are included in the budget, although not at the requested levels.

A raise was approved in the legal services are for Attorney Jack Siegel, from $9,400 annually to $10,000 annually. The board noted the responsibilities of the post have increased.

The board discussed deleting a $20,000 appropriation for youth services, but agreed to keep it in the budget after all. The health department is considering the youth service area, and may have a recommendation for use of the money for board action within six months.

A draftsman and plumbing inspector were added to engineering and building departments, respectively.

Court Challenge Of Rights Law?

by BOB LAHEY

A court challenge to the Equal Rights Amendment for women is likely if the Illinois House of Representatives should approve it when the 78th General Assembly convenes in January.

The measure has been approved by the state Senate, and narrowly missed a majority vote in the House last June. Proponents of the amendment to the federal Constitution expect it will win in a House vote in the new assembly.

Opponents, however, have resurrected the question of whether ratification by a simple majority of both houses of the legislature is sufficient.

According to the Illinois constitution of 1970, ratification of amendments to the U.S. Constitution requires votes of three-fifths majorities in both the Senate and the House.

Speaker of the House, W. Robert Blair of Evanston, ruled in June of this year, that the amendment could be ratified by a simple majority of the House. He based his ruling on an opinion of Attorney General William J. Scott that the three-fifths majority requirement exceeded the provisions of the federal Constitution, which says simply that constitutional amendments require approval by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

FOLLOWING BLAIR'S ruling, a dissent signed by 44 members of the House was filed with the clerk of the House. The signers included representatives Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park; John Friedland, R-South Elgin; and Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge.

A Republican representative from Peoria, Robert G. Day, now has embarked on a campaign to rescind the speaker's ruling that a simple majority is sufficient for ratification. Day contends the action of the attorney general and the speaker is tantamount to invalidating the state constitution and exceeds their authority.

He also maintains that even if the newly elected House of Representatives should approve the amendment by a three-fifths majority, the ratification would be invalid because the Senate vote did not meet the three-fifths margin.

Day declares he will not pursue the matter in the courts' ratification should be certified to the Congress by a simple majority vote. But he expects some person or group opposed to the amendment would bring suit for an injunction against state officials to prevent such certification.

ACCORDING TO Day, the opinion of the attorney general and the action of the speaker were based on Supreme Court rulings which threw out ratification procedures of the Ohio legislature when the Prohibition Amendments were acted upon by the states.

AT THAT time, the Ohio state constitution called for ratification of federal constitutional amendments both by the legislature and by referendum.

The high court ruled the requirement for a referendum violated provisions of the Constitution.

But the federal Constitution, Day points out, does not address itself to the rules by which the legislatures may ratify an amendment. "Obviously," he declares, "neither the attorney general, the president of the Senate, nor the speaker of the House have the right to rule that the Illinois constitution is invalid. It is one thing for the attorney general (or any other attorney) to issue an opinion as to how he thinks the Supreme Court would rule if this question were presented to it, and it is an entirely different matter for an elected official who has taken an oath to support the constitution to rule that it is invalid and conduct public business in a manner which is explicitly contrary to the provisions of the Illinois constitution."

Like other opponents to the equal rights amendment, Day declares he is strongly in favor of protecting women's rights but maintains it is already done by the 14th Amendment, which guarantees "equal protection under the law" to all persons.

IF THIS amendment does something that the 14th Amendment doesn't do," said Day, "then I question why it does not include references to race, religion, national origin and other distinctions."

Day also argues that the three-fifths majority rule for ratification would bring the amendment procedure more closely in line with the celebrated "one-man, one-vote" requirement of the Supreme Court.

He points out, for instance, that if the legislature of California — representing 20 million people, or one of every 10 Americans — failed to ratify the amendment, its action could be offset by the legislature of Alaska, which represents a mere 250,000 Americans.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

(Dear Dr. Lamb — I understand that a calorie is a unit for measuring energy produced by food when oxidized in the body. I do not understand how the amount of calories for each particular food is determined. What is done to figure out the calories in the foods? In referring to different books to check the amount of calories in bananas, the amounts differed greatly. One book said 88 calories while another said 146 calories. How would I know which book is right and which ones are false?

Dear Reader — There are several complex methods of measuring calories. These are very accurate for the specific amount of type of food tested in the laboratory setting. This information is always applicable to the foods available in the grocery stores. Your example of a banana is a good one. Bananas of different sizes have different numbers of calories. Often listings merely make approximations. What you really need to know is how many calories are there in a given weight of edible food. For example, how many calories are there in 3½ ounces (100 grams) of the edible part of a banana. Calorie values expressed in this way are usually very accurate.

As a general rule one gram of carbohydrate contains four calories, one gram of protein four calories, and one gram of fat nine calories. These are very gross approximations, since a gram of protein from meat contains more calories than a gram of protein from soybeans. The difference is related to how much of the protein is actually absorbed and used during metabolism.

Many common foods contain water so don't assume that one pound of lean meat is one pound of protein. About 70 per cent of its weight is water. Dried apples contain more calories per ounce than fresh apples because they contain less water.

To enable people to know the calories in foods, I have calculated these values based on analysis from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in my new book, "What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health" (Viking Press). The tables of common food values included in this book provide the total calorie values for 3½ ounces or 100 grams of edible food as well as the calories of protein, fat (saturated, monounsaturated, polyunsaturated) and carbohydrates. You need this kind of hard information to know what the contents of any given food item really are.

When food values are expressed in ways other than in calories, the information is often misleading. A common statement is that lean round steak is "very low in fat." It is by weight, since 70 per cent of its weight is water and only 30 per cent of food value. Only 5 per cent of its weight is fat, but over 30 per cent of the total calories are from fat. This is why food values expressed in available calories are a must in planning a satisfactory diet — whether it is for weight loss, preventing heart disease, management of diabetes or any situation where the calorie values of all or any of the food constituents are important.

Moon Sample Studies To Continue

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The last batch of Apollo moon samples is due to reach earth Dec. 19 but the space agency plans to continue analysis of lunar material for at least four or five more years.

And one of the first things Lunar Receiving Laboratory (LRL) scientists plan to do after they process the Apollo 17 collection is go back and examine the Apollo 11 specimens all over again.

A total of 598 pounds of rocks and soil has been returned from the moon since Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin landed there in 1969. Most of it is still stored in a vaultlike laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Dr. Michael Duke, curator of the lab, said about 10,000 individual samples from the first five lunar landings are now in the hands of investigators. Most of these samples are either tiny amounts of soil or slivers of rock cut with the care of a diamond cutting operation.

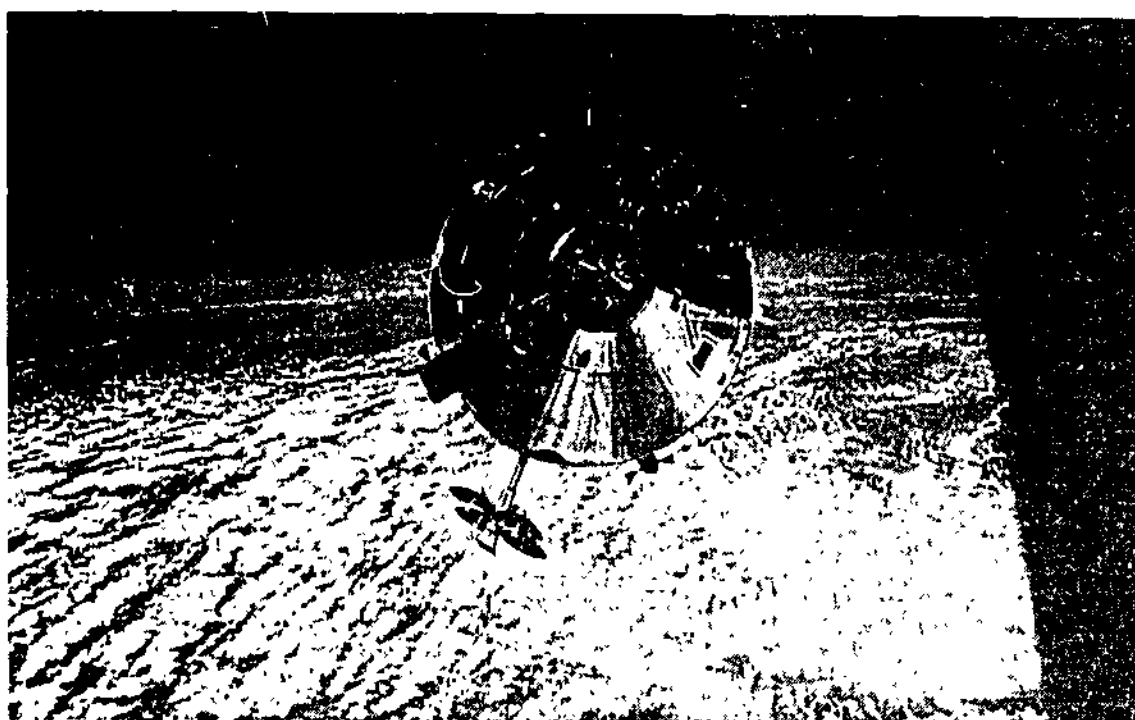

APOLLO 17's explorers expect to collect about 195 pounds of material from the Taurus-Littrow region of the moon and Duke said he hopes to start distributing a few selected Apollo 17 specimens to scientists in early March.

"We're anxious to get material out rapidly so people can start studying it," Duke said in an interview. By the end of May, samples should be in the hands of the 200 teams of scientists studying the moon material.

Duke said the space agency's post Apollo lunar analysis program, including the study of instrument data as well as moon samples, will continue four or five more years "and presumably for some areas it will continue after that."

"We anticipate that demands on the facility here are going to be similar to the demands we feel now for supporting the principal investigators," he said. "There might be fewer samples studied but the requirements may be more complex. As people get to the point where they need to answer specific questions, they will need specific samples."

"WE WILL maintain this sample collection in as high class a manner as we can until lunar samples become so commonplace that there's no need anymore. I can't anticipate that time. So we are embarking on a long time curatorial project."

Besides processing and distributing samples to scientists, Duke said the laboratory has other things to do when the Apollo 17 mission ends.

"For example, we feel we have to go back and do the Apollo 11 preliminary examination again because it was done with facilities, and capabilities and knowledge that are inferior to what we have now. A reexamination of the whole collection is in order."

For the future, Duke said he hopes the United States will continue to increase its cooperative efforts with Russia "because after Apollo 17, only the Russians are going to be bringing stuff back from the moon, if anybody does, for some time."

New Star On The Chess Horizon

Five-Year-Old Met His Master On TV

by LINDA KAY RICHARDSON
NEW YORK—Chess has become the new national pastime and high on the list of the game's folk heroes is Shelby Lyman, TV's first chessmaster and nationally syndicated columnist for Enterprise Features U.S. chessmaster Lyman has inspired thousands to learn the game through his spoken and written lessons, but he never imagined he'd be the mentor of a bright, energetic five-year-old who is fast becoming one of the brightest little stars on the horizon of the chess world.

Young Robert LeDonne watched Lyman on New York's Channel 13 this summer while the Fischer-Spassky match was being fought to the last move in Iceland. Fascinated by Lyman's non-stop narration of the event and by his continual demonstration of possible moves, Robert insisted that his father, TV news editor Bob LeDonne, find the family's chess set and teach him how to checkmate. That step took about five minutes.

To his parent's amazement, Robert, who had not yet reached his fifth birthday, remembered and used the moves made by Lyman on the air in games with his father. Soon the lad had mastered enough knowledge of the chess board to challenge and defeat—all the 13-year-olds in the block. When Robert whipped the dentist across the street, his dad decided he'd seen enough.

LeDONNE CALLED the Marshall Chess Club in Manhattan and talked with Bruce Pandolfini, U.S. chess master and one of Lyman's telephone experts during the Fischer-Spassky telethon. Pandolfini invited the family to visit the club and sat down with Robert at a chess table, scarcely knowing what to expect. Pandolfini was frankly astounded.

"Robert's first game had the contours of a grand master's game," he later reports. "The boy is extraordinary...and so normal."

When club members, many of whom are U.S. masters themselves, learn how Robert had acquired his skill, they quickly call in Lyman. The first meeting of teacher and student in person is pretty normal, too.

Lyman: Hi Robert.

Robert: What's your name?

Lyman: Shelby

Robert: Shelby Lyman? Want to play chess?

AND SO THEY play. Robert makes some moves demonstrated by Lyman on TV almost six months ago, but he also throws in a lot of others.

Lyman: Who taught Robert the "smother mate?" (an extremely advanced move).

Pandolfini: Well, I showed it to him a week ago, but he's never used it in a game before.

That's how it goes for a while, with Joyce LeDonne, Robert's mother, and Marshall members watching incredulously from the sidelines. Pretty soon Robert wants to play a game of "five minute" chess with Lyman.

The following scene is too much. Robert all but sits on top of the timer. He makes an opening move and slams his hand down on the clock to stop it. Bang! Shelby moves. Click. Robert parries. Pow!

Eventually Robert makes a wrong move, Shelby asks if he really wants to do that. Glancing up slyly, Robert makes the right move.

"He does that all the time," explains Pandolfini. "Just to put us on!"

Someone comments on Robert's dexterity, which includes not only his attack on the timer, but his way of handling the pieces and aggressively wiping them off the board when he makes a conquest.

TURNING TO Mrs. LeDonne, Robert asks, "Mom, when I was a baby, did I knock the pieces off the board like that?"

Warm smiles all around.

After the session, Lyman talks about Robert with obvious delight.

"I've tried to teach six- and seven-year-olds who couldn't grasp anything compared to Robert," comments Lyman. He has pure ideas, is objective, and looks at the game maturely. He knows what's going on and won't let someone pretend to lose to him.

Robert's biggest problem is seeing all of the board at one time, because of his size," adds Lyman.

Before chess came along in Robert's young life, there was the excitement of monopoly. He mastered that game a year ago when he was four. According to Bob LeDonne, "Robert had to learn to add numbers in his head at that time," because he didn't know how to write."

Other than that, Robert is in kindergarten and already is a good reader. But he also likes to swim, digs worms in the summer and tussles with his younger brother. How is he able to understand the complicated mental game of chess?

ROBERT'S FATHER philosophizes, "perhaps it is simply that children have fertile minds and, with motivation, can excel in almost any field. Robert is only one example. We're grateful that he was able to watch Shelby on television and learn something as educational and worthwhile as chess."

Robert LeDonne is now under the sole tutelage and sponsorship of the Shelby Lyman Chess Institute, a non-profit organization founded to teach not only children, but older people, youthful students in ghetto areas, those in jail or on drugs and others who might miss the opportunity to learn about the game through conventional means.

Lyman ascertains that Robert regularly shows up for lessons twice a week at the Institute's headquarters in New York City where he is learning "faster than most adults."

Bobby Fischer of the future? Maybe. At the very least Robert LeDonne has demonstrated a lot more than potential—he's playing the game well and loving every minute of it.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The headlines: President Nixon's inauguration day Jan. 20, a Saturday, will get about nine hours of coverage on NBC-TV, most of it live.

Queen Elizabeth is in attendance in a 90-minute ABC-TV variety special that was shot at the London Palladium, airs Jan. 3, features the comedy team of Dan Rowan and Dick Martin as hosts, and includes such other performers as Liza Minnelli, Lily Tomlin and the Osmond Brothers.

Lucy Jarvis, NBC-TV news producer who went to China by invitation to shoot some documentaries, offers the first of these Jan. 16 — "The Forbidden City."

ADM. ELMO ZUMWALT, chief of U.S. Naval operations, is a guest on NBC-TV's morning Dinah Shore series Dec. 15, and the network says about 50 sailors based on ships at Long Beach, Calif., are in the audience... The network adds "Hair" stylist Chris Wyant demonstrates how to trim and shape a beard using members of the... sailor audience."

CBS-TV's previously announced presentation of the stage musical "Appaloosa," starring Lauren Bacall in her Tony award-winning role, is set for a two-hour airing March 15... the taping will be done in London, where the show now is playing... Peggy Lee has joined CBS-TV's 90-minute salute to Duke Ellington Feb. 11... "Jack Benny's first Farewell Special," a comedy hour starring the seemingly ageless performer and with guests including Johnny Carson, Dean Martin and Isaac Hayes, will be broadcast on NBC-TV Jan. 18.

Buddy Ebsen's new one-hour CBS-TV private eye series, which bows on Jan. 28, had its tentative title of "Barnaby Cobb" changed to the definite one of "Barnaby Jones,"... regarding NBC-TV's recent cancellation of "Bonanza," according to Los Angeles Times TV columnist Cecil Smith, actor Lorne Greene told his wife at the time of Dan Blocker's death: "That's the end of Bonanza."

"THE RATINGS: ABC-TV's rerun of the acclaimed teleplay "Brian's Song," came in second in the latest national rankings... Julie Andrews' AAC-TV early-hour Thanksgiving eve salute to Walt Disney music came in 20th... Miss Andrews' pre-Christmas outing, set for Dec. 20 and featuring Jimmy Stewart, also will be on at an earlier hour.

As for the Disney pull, it continues to be so potent that the weekly family series the late cartoon genius put on NBC-TV, and which is still running strong, came in tied for seventh place — The tie was with "Marcus Welby, M.D." starring Robert Young: In addition to his seventh-place entry, in an ABC-TV teleplay called "All my Darling Daughters," he ranked 11th.

Keely Smith Will Return To Work

by VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Keely Smith revealed two bits of news the other day: She is returning to work after five years of retirement and she is one-quarter Cherokee Indian.

Newly awakened to her redskin heritage, Keely is determined to give financial aid to American Indians and to stir interest in their plight.

One way is raising money for Indian children.

"Now that I've started singing and appearing in night clubs and concerts again, I will donate all the receipts from the sale of programs for my appearances to various tribes across the country."

"BUT BEFORE I do that I don't want to just send the donations to any one big organization. I want to know where the money is going."

Keely, recently divorced from a record company executive and the former wife of entertainer Louis Prima, thinks the elimination of Indian names for college athletic teams is ridiculous.

How is that going to help the Indians?" she asked.

"I think Stanford University was stupid to back down to pressures, changing the school's nickname from Indians to Cardinals."

"I just hope the Kansas City Chiefs and the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Redskins hang onto their names."

"THE IMPORTANT thing is to help the Indians, not to worry about what their image is. To break down old prejudices Indians have to be encouraged to join the American mainstream and be recognized for their contributions."

Smith is not exactly an old Cherokee name. Nor is it all that common among the Sioux, Blackfoot, Wyandotte, Comanche, Arapaho, Kiowa, Apache or Mohawks. How, then, did Keely come by her Indian heritage?

"My grandmother on my father's side was 100 per cent Cherokee," she explained, and my grandfather was half Cherokee and half Irish. So I figure that makes me a quarter Cherokee.

Keely recently was awarded the Cherokee Nation's High Council Centennial Award — the highest honor paid a woman by the tribe.

Medical Center Officials Apply For State Permit

Officials of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center have applied to the state for a permit to operate a hospital in Schaumburg.

The initial operating permit is one of the first steps to be taken in the process of obtaining official state approval for operating a hospital, according to R. F. Bilstein of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator of the proposed Presbyterian-St. Luke's Schaumburg branch, said the hospital is now preparing the detailed application. Hospital officials must also present their plans before the Hospital Licensing Board.

While Bilstein said the next meeting of the licensing board will be Jan. 10 in Springfield, officials of Presbyterian-St. Luke's have not requested a place on the agenda to present their plans.

HE SAID IT is possible that the hospital could still make a request to appear at the meeting, though he has received no indication such an action would be taken.

Buhrmann does know if the application and other related material will be completed in time for the meeting next month.

State officials said the application for an initial operating permit requires complete information about plans for the proposed hospital, including finances.

Further reviews of the plans occur as development of the facility proceed, Bilstein said. State review and approval is also needed for architectural plans, bids and other procedures. A final review of the project is undertaken before the bids are accepted.

Formal licensing of the hospital does not take place until the facility is completed, staffed and ready for operation, Bilstein explained.

The state licensing board does not meet again, after the January session, until March of next year, he said.

Bonnie Hannon To Run For Local School Board

Of the three incumbent Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education members whose seats are up for election in April, only one indicates a definite interest in running for re-election.

Board member Bonnie Hannon, appointed in November, said she will definitely seek re-election to one of the three, 3-year terms. Other board members whose terms expire are Miss Dianne Marks, board president; and Donnie Rudd, they are undecided about their candidacy.

Miss Marks said she has considered running for a seat on the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education. She stressed that she has not made a firm decision about her candidacy and does not rule out the possibility that she will run for re-election to the Dist. 54 board.

"A lot will depend on who files for both boards," said Miss Marks, adding she would like to see Schaumburg Township represented on the high school board.

RUDD, SAID HIS decision also depends on what candidates come forward.

"If the teachers run a block of candidates and attempt a take over of this board I will run again," said Rudd. The Schaumburg Education Association, during contract negotiations, said it would take an active part in this election, he added.

Rudd said "a lot has changed" since his resignation last fall and appointment to the board within the same month.

Rudd resigned in the midst of contract talks due to ill health, but when the district was faced with a possible teacher's strike he accepted reappointment to the board and has remained as a member.

"My health is improved," said Rudd. He added "an originally very negative report from my doctor has been modified and although I still face two major operations I am much better."

In the event he runs Rudd said he'll discuss fully any questions about his health.

Nominating petitions are available in the Dist. 54 administrative offices 604 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

First day of filing petitions is Feb. 28 for the April 14 election.

Add-Ons May Hike Airport Study Cost

payouts to the consulting firm doing the work must come from the municipality as sponsoring agency.

COST ESTIMATES furnished by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff (HNT&B), consulting agency in the project, revised to include the EIS and a public hearing indicate the study will total $56,362.

Originally their bid was $25,30,000 plus an additional 25 to 40 per cent for alternate site selection, environmental studies and economic projections.

Cost revisions were made following FAA suggestions calling for the in-depth environmental study.

Meeting with the airport panel last week, George Gross of HNT&B, project director for the Schaumburg study, suggested further negotiation with FAA.

Gross said the environmental study is required by FAA for airport construction. He indicated the simpler statement, which usually runs about six pages, can be done and keyed to a future study if results are positive.

Explaining his firm's position on increased costs, Gross said the expanded study was not being considered when proposals were obtained. He cited two recent comparable airport studies done in Minnesota by HNT&B which were funded with the simple statement, gross also said he does not believe the study is standard for planning at present though he indicated FAA would prefer it that way.

HOB SANDERS, or the committee, criticized the FAA extras being added after a consulting firm was selected.

"What they (FAA) are proposing is going to cost us an additional $25,000 which was not required when we went into the study," Sanders said. He suggested with the proposed additions, FAA consider picking up an additional percentage of the cost.

Under the Airways Development and Airport Planning (ADAP) Act of 1970, FAA provides two-thirds of the cost of airport planning.

Monies come from a trust fund and represent taxes paid by aircraft owners (licensing gasoline, etc.) and tickets sold to commercial air passengers.

The Village of Schaumburg plans to recapture its portion of the study cost, and eventual construction if indicated by the investigation, through a revenue bond program which would create no tax burden for local residents.

a hot roll with butter and wonder why the salad tastes so crisp and fresh. It's very simple: it's fresh because we not only chill your salad, we chill your salad bowl.

Our baked potato tastes unusually good because we serve only the best Idaho potatoes (except, during the summer, when in some areas Idahos may not be up to our standard) and any that we don't serve within 30 minutes of being baked, we throw away.

We don't bake our own rolls, but they are baked according to our own recipe. As for our cakes and pies, more than a few bakeries have accused us of being particular to the point of being peculiar.

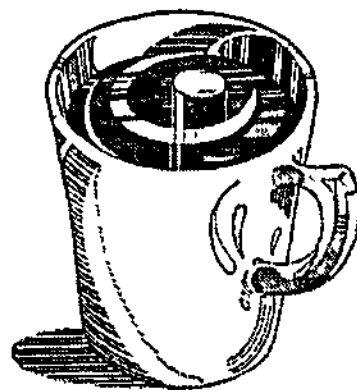

After a while, a Ponderosa girl will probably come along with a souvenir for your child and our manager will stop by your table to refill your coffee cup and ask you if everything is okay. If it's not, he'll replace whatever you didn't like. Or maybe he'll give you a pass for a free dinner for another time.

The one thing he won't do is let you leave unhappy.

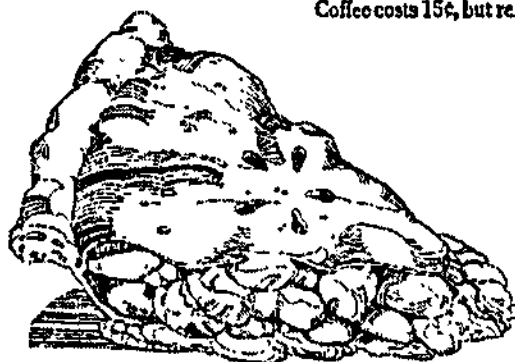

More than likely, you'll be reluctant to leave at all.

That's what you get for $1.79 at Ponderosa that you don't get someplace else.

Still another friendly girl will ask you what kind of dressing you want on your tossed salad. You have a choice of four, all equally good.

If your child is too young to carry a tray, someone will be there to help him.

Filing Dates Badly Timed

Ask a man or woman to serve the public for six years on a park board, and the path towards that public service should be as smooth as possible.

After all, a six-year term on a park board — or any other public body — means hours of work, long nights spent in dull discussions, occasional public abuse and too little acknowledgment of the service performed.

Now, thanks to legislation passed in the past session in Springfield, the path towards that public service has become a bit more difficult.

Persons who want to run for park board seats must file between Dec. 26 and Dec. 30 — three months before the April 3 election. The old filing date was Feb. 1.

Imagine a conscientious man or woman interested in parks and willing to serve on the park board. In the midst of the Christmas-New Year season, he or she is required to collect a certain number of petition signatures to gain a spot on the ballot.

There can be logic in a large time gap between filing and election for village board and school board elections. Such public bodies arouse more interest and more candidates. Park districts, however, seem to generate less public enthusiasm, except around referendum time.

It is argued, by the sponsor of the legislation, Sen. Edward McBroom, R-Kankakee, that the legislation was introduced in order to make election procedures more uniform. But more will have to be done than to merely amend the Illinois Park District Code, as there's a patchwork of elections every year in Illinois (as any Illinois voter knows).

We don't understand what point McBroom is trying to make, although his apparent motive of election reform is commendable. Consolidation of some minor elections could make sense.

But, if we're to consolidate, let's encourage the minor elected branches of government to encourage participation. Let's encourage residents to seek board seats by bringing filing and election dates close together, rather than requiring candidates for a springtime election to blossom up in the depths of December.

Peron Is Back

While Juan Peron well deserved his titles of "strongman" and "dictator," it is worth remarking that this former president of Argentina first came to power in 1946 through a democratic and constitutional election — Argentina's first since 1930 — and that the military junta which has governed Argentina since the last free election in 1966, when it threw out the returns because of a strong showing by the outlawed Peronist party, has never submitted its rule to the will of the people.

Between Peron's exile in 1955 and the aborted 1966 elections, the army ousted this president and installed that one, unseated him in turn and put in another, all the while the political and fiscal chaos which was Peron's legacy to his country continued apace.

For nearly two decades, then, the Argentine military has, in a phrase, been trying to save the Argentine people from themselves.

But it has been a thankless job, this business of saving the people from themselves. Now, in a strange twist of fate, Peron has been permitted to return home in something not altogether short of triumph. In one of his first acts, he has called for free elections, in which he will either run for president again or, because he is 77, will designate an "heir."

Supporters of Peron, as well as others, urge that he be given the right to run, if only that he may decline and in this way retire into history "with honor."

Gen. Alejandro Lanusse, the current president, may let Peron do just that, if only because he knows that Argentina can never return to stability and constitutional democracy and begin building for the future until the nation finally comes to terms with the myth of this man who is idolized by so many Argentines.

If the living Peron is willing to help lay his own ghost to rest, he may yet render a lasting service to his country.

Deadly 'Bottleism'

A Michigan drugstore chain (Arnold's) is trying a new approach to reducing the dangers of home poisonings.

It's paying 10 cents for any medicine bottle with the prescription label on it that is turned in at one of its stores.

While the offer may not tempt those who don't live in or close to Michigan, it wouldn't be the worst idea of the year for everyone to make an inventory of his bathroom cabinet — both of its old, no longer needed and no longer potent prescription drugs and of those medicines which should be kept out of the reach of children.

Of the 700,000 home poisoning victims every year, three-quarters of them are children under five. And most often, the cause of poisoning is a common household medicine or prescription drug.

Harper Community Orchestra Lauded

Last night I heard my second concert by the Harper Community Orchestra under the direction of Dr. George Makas. Although both concerts were free, they were rather poorly attended, except for Harper students, and friends and relatives of the participants. This is truly a community orchestra but perhaps the community knows little of its existence.

The orchestra is made up of professional and semi-professional musicians, businessmen and housewives who are there for the joy of playing. Harper College students who are earning credits, high school students, and even several junior high musicians. Of these latter, Dr. Makas encourages them to play in his ensemble saying, "... the experience and challenge is good for their development."

With such a conglomeration of instrumentalists — and abilities — one might expect a rather mediocre level of music-making. Certainly there are some "burbles," "blue notes," false entrances and so forth. On the other hand, there are many other moments of fine orchestral playing. No one can deny that every member is trying his level best to "start and finish together," as Sir Thomas Beecham once quipped. But the real tribute to Dr. Makas' musicianship is that he gets the orchestra to respond to his interpretation of each score.

The music thus far chosen is standard concert repertoire, certainly nothing to scare the hesitant listener: Dvorak's "New World" Symphony, Liszt's "Les Preludes," the overtures to Rossini's "The Thieving Magpie" and Humperdink's "Hansel and Gretel," a movement from Bach's Double Violin Concerto. Last night's concert also featured some sensitive interpretations of Christmas carols by two excellent Harper choruses, which seem to be made up entirely of Harper students. For those whose tastes are a bit more venturesome, and the highlight of last evening, was a perfectly lovely "Fantasia on Christmas Carols" for Baritone, Chorus, and Orchestra, by the 20th century English composer Ralph Vaughn Williams.

I, for one, am delighted that part of my tax money is helping to support these worthwhile endeavors. But an orchestra needs more than mere dollars; it needs an interested audience. I believe one exists if it were only more aware of the availability of these concerts. Of course, the concerts are not for those who derive pleasure from "nit-picking" a program heard in Orchestra Hall, but for those who enjoy an enthusiastic, live performance of serious orchestral music. Dr. Makas' Harper Community Orchestra can provide some evenings of enjoyable music-making.

'No Alarms' In Apartments

Concerning the lead article in the Monday, December 4, edition of the Elk Grove Herald: Fire Chief Allen Hulett is quoted as saying that, during the fire on the previous Saturday "occupants of the building and the fire department were notified of the blaze by an alarm system that it (sic) activated by smoke." There is no alarm which sounds within the apartment building. Tenants of the burning building either were awakened by unknown persons, after the fire had become full-blown, pushing the front entrance buzzers or saw the lights of the fire-fighting equipment or smelled smoke from the burning apartments.

An internal alarm system would be a welcome addition to our buildings; given the conflagratory history of this phase of the Terrace Apartment development, it seems a warranted expenditure on the part of the owners.

Referendum: 'Yes'

On December 16, we, the residents of Arlington Heights, will have the opportunity to vote on a referendum to further the growth and expansion of our park district.

I will vote yes because I have been a part of its growth and expansion.

As one who has been involved with the tumbling and trampoline program for the district during the last eight years, I can truly say that working with the park district staff has been a gratifying experience for me. Almost every suggestion that I have recommended to upgrade the program during this time has been adopted by the park board. Last year classes were smaller, class periods were longer and staff was added to the program.

The Arlington Heights Park District is not only doing an outstanding job in providing quality programs for its residents, but it has planned ahead to build new facilities and to acquire land to meet the much needed growth in the area of recreation. Wouldn't it be great if the park district could acquire the complete Nike Base for recreational purposes?

Recreation is the key to the future. With more leisure time in this generation than ever before, we will need these facilities.

The question is, will you give so little for so much. The answer is a yes vote for our park district.

Carey-Moore Team Regrettable Loss

by ROGER CAPETTINI
Metropolitan Editor

Bernie Carey officially took over the state's attorney's office Monday amid much hoopla and fanfare in the County Board Room, an arena normally reserved for Democratic celebrations.

More important than what happened there, however, is who attended and what did not happen.

In addition to the expected throng of loyal Republicans and countless relatives and friends, the crowd of several hundred included several blacks, several Democrats and several Black Democrats.

Those blacks, Democrats and black Democrats may have been there out of simple curiosity or sheer courtesy. Or, their presence may have been some indication of just how it was that Carey managed to shove Ed Hanrahan out of a job.

For example, the master of ceremonies, Tim Sheehan, announced there would not be enough time to introduce all the distinguished guests in the room, but then took time out to note the presence of County Board Pres. George W. Dunne, who, of course, is a Democrat.

Sheehan joked that he introduced Dunne because Carey soon would be appearing before the county board during budget hearings and that Carey has requested extra money to hire investigators. That may have been the case, but it is also true that Hanrahan lost heavily to Carey in Dunne's ward and Dunne once refused to allow Hanrahan to address a Democratic ward meeting.

Other notable faces in the audience included those of Barnabas Sears, the attorney who unsuccessfully prosecuted Hanrahan in connection with the Black Panther raid charges, and Bill Hampton, brother of Fred Hampton who was slain in the infamous raid.

What did not happen at the induction ceremony was that Donald Page Moore was not announced as the first assistant state's attorney, as many people expected.

Moore is the independent Democrat who, along with Judge Raymond Berg, opposed Hanrahan for the Democratic nomination to run for the prosecutor's job.

The popular speculation had it that Carey would name Moore to be his right-hand man, but during the ceremony Monday it was reported Moore would not be appointed.

A major question remains, however. Did Carey not offer the job to Moore or did Moore tell Carey he didn't want it? A check with Carey's office later in the week to get the answer was largely fruitless.

A spokesman for Carey couldn't or wouldn't say just whose decision it was, explaining only that Carey and Moore did meet to discuss the matter. A second spokesman said he doesn't know for sure, but he believes Moore turned the job down because he couldn't afford the loss of earnings Moore would realize if he left his private law practice.

Moore couldn't be reached for comment.

If that's the way it happened, and that's Moore's position, it's understandable. Regretful and curious, but understandable. Some have estimated he would lose about $35,000 a year. It would be naive and idealistic to expect anyone to sacrifice that much for the sake of public service.

But it was Moore who originally suggested lawyers should make that type of sacrifice.

It was back in March — during the primary campaign — that Moore, sitting in the Herald offices, said he would, if elected, scour the law schools and the prominent law partnership seeking young, well-qualified assistants.

Moore said he would ask the law firms to make some of their best young men available to work in the state's attorney's office to help with the cause. He said he would ask top law school graduates to work for less pay in his office for a given period to get the job done. Moore said he would ask them all to make that kind of sacrifice in the name of good government and for the sake of the legal profession. He would seek a "moral commitment," from young lawyers to join his effort.

"No man can do it alone," Moore said in March, "but with help it will be exciting."

It's possible, of course, someone could have exerted pressure on Carey to name a Republican, and that would be understandable also. But if that's what happened it would represent some departure from the non-partisan approach to law enforcement promised.

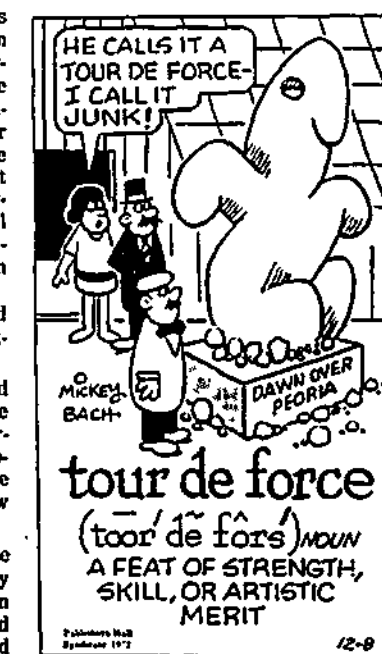

Whatever the case, it's regrettable the team of Carey and Moore apparently won't be formed. That would have been the kind of bi-partisan, reform-minded combination which could have tackled the many problems head-on.

As of this writing, Carey had not yet named his right-hand man. The only news to come out of the office were disclosures that the locks have been changed, that Carey is having the state's attorney's limousine checked out for electronic eavesdropping devices and that all the offices and phones are being examined for "bugs."

And all that is understandable too.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Snowmobiles have become big business in more ways than one. Not only are sales of the vehicles for sport and business use booming but snowmobile racing has become a huge attraction.

More than 60,000 attended a snowmobile weekend racing meet at Boonville, N.Y., and more than one million persons watched snowmobile oval racing last winter. Now, snowmobile endurance racing is drawing crowds almost as big. It's an ice and snow version of the great European bicycle classics like the Tour de France.

The most important event is the four-day St. Paul Winter Carnival race which starts at Winnipeg, Man., and ends at St. Paul. It usually begins in 30 below zero weather and a strong wind. The racers, who include women as well as men, must cross fields, ditches and streams. A girl named Dorothy Mercer, racing for Polaris Co. of Minneapolis, a Textron, Inc., subsidiary, finished third in a field of 300 last year.

SNOWMOBILES are used as utility vehicles by ranchers, farmers, lumbermen, forest rangers, power and telephone companies, oil companies, peace officers, doctors and clergymen. Utility and sporting owners of snowmobiles are enrolled in more than 3,000 clubs.

Snowmobiling and snowmobile manufacturing continued their mushrooming growth almost unchecked by the 1969-70 recession and the unfriendly reaction in many communities against reckless practices by snowmobilers. Some people objected to the loud noise created by the vehicles and others said the cutting of thousands of snowmobile trails through woods and across snow-covered fields was creating ecological problems.

Local law enforcement authorities have curbed many abuses in the last two years.

Francis X. McGrath, a Polaris vice president, said recently that the states of New York and Pennsylvania appear to be the best market for further expansion of snowmobile sales. New England and the upper midwestern states have produced the most sales in the past. It has been predicted that snowmobiles may become a $1 billion a year business this year. Sales have grown from 8,000 in 1964 to 560,000 last winter — $500 million at retail.

MORE THAN a score of manufacturers are in the business, including many older firms such as John Deere, Massey-Ferguson, AMF's Harley-Davidson division, Outboard Marine's Evinrude and Johnson divisions, and the three Japanese motorcycle makers, Yamaha, Suzuki and Kawasaki.

Many firms like Polaris make only snowmobiles. They include Bombardier, Alouette, Auto Ski, Autotech, Coleman Skirolite, Kometik, Roll-O-Flex and Northway, all Canadian, plus Alport of Norwalk, Ohio, Arctic Enterprises of Three River Falls, Minn., Brutanza of Broton, Minn., Chapparral of Denver, Columbia of Cleveland, Feldman of Sheboygan, Jac-Trac of Marshfield, Wis., Mercury Marine of Fond du Lac, Wis., Halder of Troy, Mich., Rupp of Mansfield, Ohio, Scorpion of Crosby, Minn., and Snow-Jet of Winooski, Vt.

Monopolies Need Competition, Says Sen. Hart

Natural Monopolies, such as phone and electric service, are more and more "unnatural" and should become "less and less monopolies," Sen. Philip A. Hart said in a recent New Orleans speech.

Hart told the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners that new technology, with their help, should be opening up these monopolies to competition.

In the past, we assumed competition was an ingredient we had to sacrifice in order to get reliable and economical service in the arenas of natural monopolies, Hart said.

"We all know the result of these 100 years or so of so-called regulation: we can't build new houses because of a shortage of natural gas, we have brown-outs and blackouts during periods of peak electrical demand, our mass transit is a shambles and our phone service is full of more promises of innovations than fulfillment of those promises.

"But developing technology may have bailed us out," he said. "For example, we now competitively and economically move large blocks of electrical power from Bonneville, in Oregon, to Southern California — about 850 miles," Hart said. "Doesn't that mean that municipals — or any buyer of large blocks of electrical power — should no longer be locked into the supplier next door?"

Lucky Stores' Sales Up 11%

Lucky Stores' sales were $490 million and earnings were $6,633,000 for the third quarter. William H. Dyer, Jr., chairman of the board, made the announcement.

Sales for the quarter showed an increase of 11 per cent over the $441,000,000 in the third quarter of 1971. Earnings were $6,633,000 compared with $7,512,000 for the same period of 1971. This is equivalent to 21 cents a common share, after preferred dividends, on the average number of common shares outstanding during the quarter, compared with 24 cents a common share in the third quarter of 1971. Pre-tax earnings were $12,281,000 compared to $15,157,000 in 1971.

Dyer said, "The inflexibility of price stabilization regulations continues to cause intensified competition as all retailers attempt to overcome rising expenses by increasing sales."

During the quarter, Lucky opened 20 retail stores and closed 3 stores. This represents the largest number of new stores ever opened in one quarter by Lucky.

IN 1972 TO DATE, 42 stores have been opened and 45 have been closed, including the sale of 35 Ardens Dress Shops.

For the 39 weeks sales were $1,436,000,000, compared to $1,305,000,000 in 1971. Earnings were $19,821,000 compared to $21,053,000 in 1971. Earnings for the year are equivalent to 63 cents a common share after preferred dividends, compared to 68 cents a common share in the same period of 1971. Pre-tax earnings were $37,745,000, compared to $42,717,000 in 1971.

Sales and earnings for 1971 have been restated to reflect the 1971 acquisitions which were accounted for on a pooling of interests basis. During the third quarter, the Evans Automotive Supply Co. Acquisition was completed.

Fully diluted pro forma earnings for the quarter, assuming conversion of all convertible securities and the exercise of all stock options outstanding, were 21 cents a common share, compared with 23 cents for the third quarter of 1971. Earnings for the 39 weeks, assuming full dilution, were 62 cents a common share, compared with 66 cents in the same period of 1971.

by CARLTON SMITH

We're about to give Mrs. H. a scolding, and we hope everybody will listen. If, like Mrs. H., you want to know how to make money in the stock market, you should not only listen but take notes.

"Would you be so kind," Mrs. H. has written, "as to tell me the name of the best stock outside of mutual. I am in a Growth Fund and don't think much of it because it split and I am not getting anywhere."

"Also please send me the book with 10 different kinds of stock. Would also appreciate if you would point out two of the best stocks. P.S. Please point out which stocks are hedge."

"When would be the best time for me to change my stock? I know, when it is highest, but when is that?"

MRS. H., there are some 900 publishers of investment advisory letters registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. All these experts are in the business of picking "the best stock" or stocks, and selling this valuable information to investors.

For some strange reason, these experts can't agree on what the best stocks are.

There have been a number of studies of the advisory letters' advice. In general (there are some exceptions), what they add up to is that an investor would have done as well to pick the names of stocks out of a hat.

One study covered 14 letters for a period of 4 1/2 years. Their selections did 4 per cent worse than stocks picked at random.

All right, so the experts writing the advisory letters can't pick "the best" stock, or stocks. Who can, then?

Why, the Wall Street brokers, wouldn't you say? There are the real professionals, with the inside track, and look at all the money they make, knowing which stock to buy.

Sure. In 1969 and 1970, more than 100 brokerage firms went bankrupt, folded up or vanished into mergers. So much for those experts.

Mrs. H., nobody knows what "the best stock" is. Nobody even knows, with any certainty, whether a stock is just good. Any stock you can name has the potential of turning out to be a bum investment.

NOW, YOU are right about one thing, Mrs. H. The best time to change your stock is when it is highest. We would all like to know "when is that" — but that is also something that nobody knows. There is probably only one thing that anyone knows for sure about the stock market — that it is unpredictable.

The stock market, Mrs. H., is not a magic money-making machine put at our disposal by the good fairy. Investing in stocks requires a good deal of knowledge and skill, and the ability to take losses — for every investor is going to have losses. Success as an investor is a matter of being canny enough to have more successes than failures.

To put it as charitably as possible, Mrs. H., you do not have the necessary knowledge and skill to deal in stocks, and the wisest thing you could do would be to keep your money in a bank or savings and loan.

And that undoubtedly goes for a lot more of you who've been listening to Mrs. H.'s scolding.

Wall Street Chatter

TPO, INC. says although the best gains of the current advance have been registered by the blue chips, signs are pointing to a gradual spreading out into the secondaries. "As with the two previous big drives which began late in 1970 and 1971, the current advance appears capable of continuing at least into March or April of 1973," the company adds.

THE RECENT performance of the advance-decline line, first in recovering its earlier losses and then in pushing ahead to new highs, is usually an indication the popular market indices will follow suit, said E. F. Hutton & Co., Inc. "But the market is no longer technically overbought and is in a good position to mount another advancing phase," it adds.

Five-Cent Deposit Is Debated

'Battle Of The Bottle' Is Raging

by BARRY SIGALE

The two-year battle to get the state to require consumers to pay a five-cent deposit on beer and soft drink containers to combat one of the most nagging pollution problems — litter — is the subject of fierce debates this month.

It has environment lists and officials of the beverage industry at odds over a solution. The two sides argued yesterday and Wednesday during special hearings on the deposit proposal conducted by the Illinois Pollution Control Board in Chicago.

At stake is the health and safety of the consumer who may find himself paying a nickel a bottle or can in deposit as an enticement to them to return the containers to the dealers instead of throwing them away.

The proposed beverage container regulations, submitted by the Illinois Solid Waste Management task force, is in its second year of presentation. The beverage industry has successfully kept the regulation from being enacted through legal maneuvers and other tactics.

The thrust of the regulation is aimed at litter control, the reduction of the quantities of solid waste and of disposal burdens, cost savings to the consumer and creation of large recycling facilities, according to a task force statement.

THE PROPOSED regulation, the task force said, applies to the transaction between the ultimate consumer and the dealer from whom he purchases beverages in beverage containers. When the container is returned to the dealer, the consumer gets a refund and the dealer then returns the container to the distributor. The distributor, in turn, refunds the dealer.

The regulation, similar in scope to a bottle ordinance in Oregon, is the result of a year of research by the task force, a body comprised of members of the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality.

A group of Champaign County citizens last year filed a petition with the pollution control board seeking restrictions on one-way containers to discourage littering and encourage recycling and the use of reusable containers. The task force studied the problem and concurred with the citizens, coming up with the proposed regulation.

The task force study concluded that the conversion by the beverage companies to only returnable containers would not result in increased costs to the consumer, would mean maximum profits and would have only a minimal effect on the number of jobs the industry said would be lost.

At hearings yesterday and Wednesday at the Field Museum in Chicago, both sides debated the merits of the regulation and before about 300 persons yesterday Hugh Folk, an economics professor at the University of Illinois, was questioned for almost six hours by a beverage industry attorney.

Reminiscing a courtroom scene, the two men discussed the pros and cons of the regulation and about the only thing they agreed upon was that the consumer holds the key to the effectiveness of the proposal, if enacted. More hearings will be conducted downtown later this month.

The Oregon ordinance, which was put into the books about two months ago after three years of debate, has resulted in bottles being brought back to the dealer at about twice the rate they used to be, according to the state's liquor control commission. But, officials there agreed it will be about a year before the effectiveness of the measure can be judged.

At stake is the health and safety of the consumer who may find himself paying a nickel a bottle or can in deposit as an enticement to them to return the containers to the dealers instead of throwing them away.

Road Material Made Out Of Reclaimed Glass

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI) — A street paving material known as "glasphalt," which is made of crushed reclaimed glass and asphalt, can meet design requirements even when such foreign materials as metals, bones, plastics and stones are included, reports a University of Missouri — Rolla research team.

The research project, to determine the amount of foreign material that can be included in the glass used to make glasphalt, was funded by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute (GCM) and headed by Dr. W. R. Malisch. Malisch and his associates developed glasphalt.

Almost 20 strips of glasphalt have been laid in the United States and Canada. Crushed glass for the projects was supplied in pure form from the glass container industry's nation-wide bottle reclamation program.

The significance of the latest findings lies in the fact that the crushed glass used to make glasphalt need not be in pure form. This will materially lower the cost of preparing crushed glass mixtures for glasphalt, particularly when it becomes possible to obtain it in larger volumes from mechanical solid waste separation systems.

Besides glasphalt, GCM is experimenting with products made of recycled glass, such as slurry seal, a road sealant, and such building materials as terrazzo flooring, bricks, construction panels and glass wool insulation.

Revenue Sharing Appeals Time Slated

Many municipalities learned today that federal revenue sharing checks will be larger than expected. Village officials less than happy with their revenue sharing allotments will be able to appeal later this month to the U.S. Treasury Department, according to a spokesman.

Victor Renaghan, a public affairs officer for the treasury department's office of revenue sharing said yesterday that checks will be mailed today to municipalities, townships and state governments throughout the country.

The five-year revenue sharing plan that channels federal funds back to the local level was approved earlier this year by Congress, and the bill was signed soon afterward by President Nixon.

Today's checks represent the first of two payments for the 1972 allotment, with the second scheduled to come early in January.

The amounts being sent out today were released by Sen. Charles Percy's office. No amounts were released for either

Comptroller To Stay In Office For Now

Cook County Comptroller James Gaughan will remain in office, at least temporarily, pending an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court by the county board which has attempted to take control of the office and fire Gaughan.

Gaughan has remained in the post, via a circuit court injunction against his removal, ever since the county board tried to replace him Oct. 2.

At that time, the board adopted an ordinance which, in effect, took control of the comptroller's office away from County Clerk Edward Barrett and placed it in the hands of the board. The action came in the wake of a scandal in the office which revealed the former comptroller, C. R. Hodgman, had been retained as a high-priced consultant after his earlier resignation under fire.

Friday, Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing ruled in Gaughan's favor, holding the county board did not have the authority to transfer the function of the office from the clerk to the board.

TUESDAY, SUPREME COURT Justice Daniel Ward granted a motion entered by attorney Thomas Mulroy, representing the county board, to appeal the case directly to the high court.

Justice Ward also approved an accelerated briefing schedule for the case, and said arguments will be heard by the court during the last week of January.

When the county board adopted the ordinance, County Board President George W. Dunne appointed Thomas Beck, business manager of the comptroller's office to succeed Gaughan.

Dunne said he thinks the county has the authority to take the action under home rule provisions of the state constitution, despite a legal opinion from then State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan that the ordinance was unconstitutional.

Referring to the scandal in the office at that time, Dunne said, "I feel that in light of what is taking place we should take this action right now."

Ma Bell Gets Christmas Gift

Illinois Bell Telephone got an early Christmas present from the Illinois Commerce Commission yesterday in the form of a rate increase for residents and businessmen in Palatine, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Aptakisic.

The rate increase, effective Dec. 16, will hike phone bills of some Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Aptakisic residents by 30 cents per month and would add 25 cents to monthly bills paid by some Palatine residents.

The increases affect only some types of service to which local telephone users can subscribe.

An estimated 10,000 phone subscribers are affected by the Wheeling-Buffer-Grove-Aptakisic increase which will apply to metropolitan residence service. That type of service includes most Call-Pak plans and has a wider toll free calling area than mere local service. Telephones with 537 and 541 prefixes are affected by the 30-cent increase.

In Palatine a total of 2,000 residential customers will pay the additional 25 cents per month. They are the subscribers to Call-Pak Limited service, two-party local service and one-party local service. Phones with 330-339, and 397 prefixes are affected.

THE RATE increases are the result of population growth in the four communities. The ICC allows Bell Telephone to set rates in 10 different brackets based on the number of phones in an exchange's toll-free calling area.

In order to get ICC approval for the rate increases Bell telephone had to show that the number of phones in the calling areas exceeded the bracket by 5 per cent for six months or more.

For business customers in Palatine the rate increases mean a $1 more per month charge for one-party local service, and $1.75 per month more per trunk for private branch exchange trunks (PBX).

In Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Aptakisic, business subscribers will pay $1 more per month for metropolitan business lines and $1.75 more per month for metropolitan switchboard trunks.

Des Plaines Panel Backs Flood Bill

The Des Plaines River Basin Steering Committee is backing legislation to protect the right of lowland property owners to have their property free of flooding. The committee is having one of its members introduce legislation to establish a state drainage commission to seek short-term solutions to drainage problems.

State Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, will introduce the committee's recommendations as a bill in the General Assembly.

Williams, who represents the 5th district, is municipalities chairman for the steering committee.

According to Jack Gilligan, vice chairman of the steering committee, the group is proposing amendments be made to the state's basic drainage law.

GILLIGAN SAID although few communities commented on the proposed legislation after receiving copies of it from the steering committee, those communities which did comment were in favor of the changes. The steering committee includes all communities whose stormwaters drain into the Des Plaines River.

It was formed to work with the U.S. Soil and Conservation Service to find solutions to flood control problems along the river and to seek federal funding to help correct those problems.

Basically, the proposed changes would alter a current law which allows property owners to drain their land without regard for the effect it has on downstream property.

"The right of an owner to drain his property should not be dependent on his elevation," Gilligan said.

"It deals with the right not to flood even though you may be at a lower elevation," he said of the proposed legislation.

The new law would place equal responsibility for flood control on all property owners, Gilligan said.

THE RESOLUTION calls for state government to take "primary responsibility for the solution of state-wide flooding."

The resolution calls for the new state drainage commission to work with problems which can be solved in one or two years. The commission would be appointed by the governor and composed of 11 members of the General Assembly, two members of state government agencies, one representative from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, one from the Metropolitan Sanitary District, and one from the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. Other members of the commission would include three municipal officials and three members at large including one resident of an unincorporated area.

It calls for the commission to come up with a plan for solving flooding problems within the state within nine months after its formation. The proposal also would require municipalities and counties to enforce drainage laws and to cooperate on flood control.

Square Dance News

BUCKS AND DOES

Beginning at 8 p.m. tomorrow night at the Dempster Junior High School (just west of Rte. 83) in Mount Prospect, "Christmas Bells" will be ringing as the Bucks and Does celebrate the Yuletide season. Calling the squares throughout the evening will be Paul "Foggy" Thompson with Lee and Shirley leading the rounds... and we even expect a visit from Santa. All area dancers are invited.

Bucks and Does members will again donate Christmas gifts to the Marklund Hilltop Foundation, a school for the mentally handicapped children. Guests may contribute if they feel like sharing with these unfortunate children. The foundation can use terrycloth bibs or permanent press clothing for school age children. It is asked that the contents and size be marked clearly on the package so "Santa" will know what child can use the gift.

HAPPY TWIRLERS

Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with the Char-Lee Wellers calling the squares. Everyone is invited.

New figure workshop begins at 8 p.m. followed by intermediate dancing from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The exchange of Christmas gifts at the Happy Twirlers Christmas party, Friday, Dec. 15, at the church will have a different "twist." Instead of the usual "grab bag" distribution of gifts, generally having little actual "significance" to either giver or recipient, Happy Twirlers and their guests will bring "gifts" of canned food, vegetables, fruits or meats, that will help provide a Christmas dinner for needy families in the area. These gifts will be added to those collected by the church, the following Sunday, Dec. 17.

RAND RAMBLERS

Bruno Zoni of Decatur, Ill., will be calling the squares for the Rand Ramblers tonight, when they meet at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights. Everyone is invited.

Edna and Gene Arnfield, the club's regular round dance leaders will begin the rounds at 8 p.m. All area dancers are invited and dancing will continue until 11 p.m.

ARLINGTON SQUARES

The Arlington Squares have chosen "Sleigh Bells" as the theme for their dance when they meet tonight at St. Simon Episcopal Church, 717 W. Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Edna and Gene Arnfield will cue the rounds beginning at 8 p.m. and Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be on hand to square them up at 8:30 p.m.

The Volunteer Bureau

A 'Clearinghouse' For Volunteers

Careers, careers, careers!

The Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County, which acts as a clearinghouse for people who want to be volunteers and for agencies that need volunteers, once again is in the middle of the careers programs of the school districts included in the agencies served by the Bureau.

Careers don't just happen, say the educators. An electrician doesn't just become an electrician by the very process of growing up. There are skills to be acquired, such as reading blueprints. There are attitudes to be nourished, such as the satisfaction of taking something apart and putting it back together again.

And a very important aspect of developing such a career is that of being exposed to people who actually have made a career in electricity, and that the student have an opportunity to ask questions of such a person. Again, education in its finest sense involves two-way communication. Being "talked to" or "viewing a film" may be education, but not in its finest sense as it is a one-way communication.

THE VOLUNTEER Bureau arrives on the scene at this point, as community resources are tapped for a Careers Day Program. The volunteer is recruited for a half-day session perhaps twice a year, at which he is given his space and small groups of students come to hear his presentation and to take part in the discussion.

Pat Sutherland, director of the Prospect Heights branch of the Volunteer Bureau, again is planning a Careers Day Program to take place at MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. As in 1972, the 1973 program, planned for February, will gather approximately 25 volunteers representing that many different careers. The volunteers will represent secretarial careers, electricians, carpenters, stewards, x-ray technicians, teachers, medical technicians, barbers, florists and others, depending upon available volunteers.

Other schools served by the Bureau have variations of this type of program. Career education, a vital part of the Northwest Educational Cooperative, is encouraged at the elementary school level and continues into the high school level at still another variation. Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village recently utilized a volunteer woman chemist, who spoke of her career and positions available in her field. This presentation was made directly to science students rather than the school at large. Hersey High School, through volunteer coordinator Mayme Andrews, has presented such programs to its students; and community resources have been presented in the home economics classes at Hersey in the form of techniques of hanging wallpaper, rug making, floral arrangements and other enrichment volunteer presentations.

HERSEY IN Arlington Heights, Wheeling High School and Elk Grove High School, are schools in the area that are continuing to plan career presentations through the Volunteer Bureau.

When a match point duplicate player sees that he is in a normal contract he usually forgets about safety plays and concentrates on giving himself the best chance to make a lot of tricks.

Thus a match point player would grab the spade lead; run off four rounds of diamonds in order to get some discards from his opponents; lead a low club from dummy and finesse his queen.

Assuming that his opponents discarded perfectly on the diamonds and that West led a heart after getting in, the match point player would probably be set. We said probably because he could still make the contract if he knew just what to do.

The rubber bridge player would play his hand in an entirely different fashion. He would ask himself, "how can I be sure of making this contract and winning the rubber?"

Then he would come to his hand with a diamond and lead a club toward dummy's jack. With West holding the king of clubs this would give South three club tricks. Put the king in the East hand. South would only collect two club tricks but he would have time to get a second spade also since a heart lead from East would not hurt him.

Inventor's Life Has Been Spent Trying

Will Man Soon Fly Like A Bird?

(Ed. Note: The solitary tinkerer, once the primary genius of American technology, has given way to corporate research and development. Still, a few of them continue undaunted, building their better mouse traps or, as in the following case, a better flying machine.)

by TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK — Ever since Icarus was flitted with wings and died when he flew too close to the sun, man has dreamed of similar feats with less disastrous results. And why not? When the German aeronautical engineer Otto Lillenthal was asked why he thought people might fly like birds, he replied that he just could not believe that "a three-week-old stork" was that much smarter than all of humankind.

So it is that for the past 40 years James L. G. Fitz Patrick has labored in lonely compulsion, secure in the conviction that one of these days now, one of these days, he's going to flap his man-made feathers and imitate the action of a stork.

Already the hardware is ready. It took 2,000 construction hours and perhaps $20,000 in out-of-pocket cash, but it's ready. The body, an improbable marriage of cables and sheet metal, sits on flat tires in the Fitz Patrick basement. The wings, 20 feet apiece, which resemble prehistoric drawings of the pterodactyl, are scattered in parts from the workshop to the attic. All that needs to be done is to bring them together at some suburban airport, do a bit of check-out testing, insure that the screws are all tight, and James Fitz Patrick will be off and, presumably, up.

But first, a small prayer:
"God," says the inventor, "I hope everything works."

EVERYTHING should work. That is, if Fitz Patrick's nearly half-century of study means anything. Since 1932, when he first began to "seriously plot this thing out," he has compiled a reading list of 2,000 books and papers on the ornithopter (a bastard word referring to the study of birds), has examined 500 "flapping wing" patents (the first was obtained in 1864), and has worked out a thick publication of his own which proves, to his thinking anyway, that his machine, all 350 pounds of it, will fly up to 40 m.p.h. if five horsepower of force is applied to each nylon pennon.

"Look," says the inventor, flapping a model of his wing, "when the wing goes down, the force of air propels it forward. That's why you don't need a propeller." To fly like a bird, he grins, one simply has to have an arm that operates like a bird.

There are those, certainly, who say poppycock. Fitz Patrick receives mail regularly which insists he is going about the project for naught. "If God wanted us to fly..." and that kind of thing. Even the U.S. government, which has backed such quacky theories as the potential of frisbee discs in warfare, has refused to recognize Fitz Patrick's claims of revolution. "I gave up trying to get government backing 20 years ago," he says, shrugging, rubbing a strut on his yet unnamed machine.

AND, in truth, there have been times when Fitz Patrick himself has wondered about the viability of his idea. His wife also. He failed in his first attempt to put a flapping machine in the air (in 1960) — "Its wings were too rigid," he says. As for his wife, she has kept her temper admirably. "With all these wings hanging all over my home," but she admits to inner doubts: "Well, what goes up, you know, must come down."

Yet Fitz Patrick has persevered. With single-minded pluck. "Somewhere along the way," he says, "I made up my mind to do this one thing no matter how long it took." Besides, he adds, so what if it has taken 40 years, and so what if the home does look like Dracula's balcony, so what if there are doubters?

"Look at this fellow Wankel. A lone individual. Like me. I bet he was told a thousand times that nothing could replace the piston engine. But he kept on plodding. Last I heard General Motors alone had paid $50 million for the development rights to his engine."

Indeed, all things are possible. Thus James Fitz Patrick, a 66-year-old former physics teacher, now dean of Staten Island College, refuses to let the dust settle on his pterodactyl wings. He files the appendages in an improbable looking wind-tunnel in his attic (when the tunnel is operating he has to duck down the attic stairs for safety).

He perfects his equations and theories in his aeronautical library (the boiler room). He combines an absolute genius (he has worked out a graph which determines a bird's wing-beat-per-second by its size and weight) with woeful field expediency (the weight on his attic wind tunnel is a water-filled milk carton).

HE KNOWS he's right. "And I'm not the only one who thinks so. There are some others doing this same thing. I know of this one remarkable man, 90 years old, in Los Angeles who has a machine that he says can be flown using only muscle power."

And so one of these days, one of these days, Fitz Patrick will be ready. "I hope to begin final testing in January." His plan is to move the ship to a take-off point, check it out slowly, strip it down for flaws after each step — and, varoom!

But even then, after the varoom, if there is a varoom, James L. G. Fitz Patrick's lonely compulsion may not be over. Ahead would be the job of sales and explanations. Gad, the tribulations of a solitary tinkerer. Fitz Patrick insists the plane can fill a need for cheap, quiet, clean, efficient, short-trip transportation. But there will inevitably be those who wonder, in this day of space rockets and intercontinental jets, if the world really needs a flapping machine.

Zsa Zsa Promotes Diamonds (Almost)

by STEVE NOVICK

There she sat... Zsa Zsa Gabor, regal at the center of a U-shaped banquet table surrounded by local press and banking people who came to lunch with her last week at an Arlington Heights restaurant.

She was in the Northwest suburbs promoting simulated diamonds on sale at the Suburban National Bank of Palatine, the Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village, the Palatine National Bank, and the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates.

Her large dark eyes shone more intelligence than the sex appeal she's better known for. Her mixed yellow hair was brushed back in flowing sweeps and her profile was port and perfect.

A modest black dress adorned only by a white scarf and collar and a piece of jewelry she was in the area to promote at the banks, hid her other physical assets from view.

BUT THE physical assessment of Zsa Zsa soon ended and her wit overlooked the attentions of those who met her.

ZSA ZSA GABOR was all smiles for the crowd who greeted her at the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates last week. She also visited Suburban Bank Group locations in Elk Grove and Palatine following a luncheon for her in Arlington Heights.

In an upcoming movie she'll be playing a psychiatrist who has a handsome patient on her couch. Giving away the outcome of the plot she said, "I end up on the couch... with the man, of course."

She told of contracting for the movie despite hopes to be able to take it easy after the election last month. She worked for President Nixon. But now she's committed to a television series involving a Saint Bernard named George. "He's sort of an overgrown Lassie," she said.

The things Zsa Zsa does gave way to the way she thinks when she was asked about Truman Capote's statement that actors and actresses are dumb.

"Truman Capote doesn't exist," she said at first, later adding, "he's a lost little man." She said Capote's favorite actress is Lee Radziwill, then casually mentioned, "Her sister (Jackie Onassis) is a much better actress."

After displaying the more caustic side of her personality in comments about Capote, Lee Radziwill, and Mrs. Onassis, she demonstrated another side by telling of all the charity work she does.

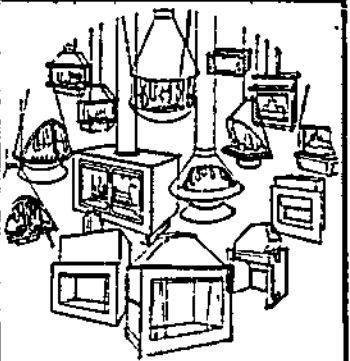

ZSA ZSA said she was recently in Baltimore for a personal appearance where nearly $5 million was raised for the East Coast flood victims of last summer.

The appearance was part of her nearly constant travels. Her visit to the Northwest suburbs was her second visit this year. She appeared at Arlington Park Theatre last summer.

Her travels take her to Europe several times a year, she said, and her California home is a place she gets to only a month out of the year.

The house has a gymnasium where she exercises 45 minutes a day with a Swedish instructor. "It used to be a husband's bedroom," said Zsa Zsa.

THERE'S QUITE a bit of fuss made every fall over something that stands only 18 inches tall, weighs about 50 pounds, and actually is a dark brown hunk of sculpture running and stiff-arming across a slab of ebony.

The head does seem overly large, the shoulders just a little narrow, and the legs short, but this ill-proportioned figure looks as beautiful to the recipient as any Oscar does to someone in the movie business.

It's called the Heisman Trophy. Few relics have created more melodrama in college football than the Heisman, an award that is supposed to go to the outstanding player in the United States every year, and sometimes does.

John Huarte comes to town Monday for the Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon. He has a Heisman. He won the trophy in 1964 in a mild surprise, topping such other candidates as Joe

John Huarte

Namath, Gale Sayers, Tucker Fredrickson, Craig Morton and Dick Butkus. John had a great year as the Notre Dame quarterback, but it was still a surprise because he was a total unknown at season's beginning.

All of us learned Tuesday that Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska won the Heisman for 1972, but what do we know about Heisman? Probably about as much as the man who in 1946, some 13 years after the trophy was instituted, introduced that year's selectee, Southern Methodist's Doak Walker, as the "Wasserman winner."

John William Heisman was a superb athlete. He played baseball, ran on the track team, and was one of the first football players to earn letters at two colleges. He played tackle for Brown for three years, then moved on to Penn to play tackle and end and pick up an L.L.B. degree.

Even after graduation, football continued to show a greater appeal to Heisman than the law and he went on to win a place in Football's Hall of Fame as one of the game's most successful coaches and innovators. He coached at eight colleges and his 1916 Georgia Tech team ran up the highest score of all time, beating Cumberland College of Lebanon, Tenn., 222-0.

As an innovator, Heisman devised the center snap, the first legitimate scoreboard and was responsible for the ultimate legalization and recognition of the forward pass.

Each fall as the football season began, Coach Heisman would face his recruits holding a football. "What is it?" he would ask rhetorically. "A prolate spheroid, an elongated sphere — in which the outer leathern casing is drawn tightly over a somewhat smaller rubber tubing." Then, after a melodramatic pause, he would say in muted tones, "Better to have died as a small boy than to fumble this football."

When Heisman's coaching days ended in 1927 he moved to New York City and became athletic director of the Downtown Athletic Club.

It was that organization, a year before his death, that decided to perpetuate his name in a suitable award known as the Heisman Trophy, an award decorated with the figure of a man clutching a prolate spheroid as if he would rather have died as a small boy than now to fumble it. Very suitable.

There have been those years when a single player was so magnificent week after week that the selection of the Heisman winner was obvious. No player has ever won the award twice although O. J. Simpson was probably the best player in the country in 1967 and 1968. He didn't win both times. Doak Walker, Frankie Sinkwich, and Tom Harmon were other players who probably should have won two Heismans but picked up just one.

Voters lean toward seniors. Only four juniors have ever won — Doc Blanchard, Doak Walker, Vic Janowicz, and Roger Staubach. The voters seem to prefer talent from the Midwest and quarterbacks. Twenty quarterbacks have won it since 1935.

The battle for the Heisman begins to be waged early in the season by all of the campus publicity directors and provincial writers and broadcasters who hang around the teams. Over 1,300 newsmen are eligible to vote on the award annually, including many who never see a college football game.

The Herald can't vote but we get flooded with material all season on potential Heisman candidates. A release just came in last Saturday on Purdue's fine running back Otis Armstrong, dramatically illustrating how not to run a Heisman campaign. The big push should have been much earlier.

It obviously helps to play on a winning team. All but one Heisman winner has been a member of a team which won more games than it lost and 16 have played on a team which captured some kind of national championship.

Notre Dame's Paul Hornung is the one loser who sneaked in on one of the great publicity coups of our age. He played on a 2-8 team, a team which lost 40-0 to Oklahoma, 47-14 to Michigan State, 33-7 to Navy, and 48-8 to Iowa.

Charlie Callahan was the Notre Dame publicity man at the time and he knew how to run a campaign, what newspapers to hit, what radio and television stations to bombard with information. After all, said Charlie, this Hornung was great. Golden Boy and all that.

The East went to Jim Brown (yes, THE Jim Brown), the South and other areas split their votes, and Callahan had the Midwest all to himself.

The Notre Dame publicity man was so proud of the victory that he sent for Hornung in class to tell him personally. As Paul walked across the South Bend campus, Callahan placed a long distance call to Hornung's mother in Louisville and had her waiting on the phone when he strolled in, wondering what Callahan wanted.

Charlie just sat there without looking up, casually pretending to be sorting through some papers on his desk. He handed the receiver to Hornung and mumbled, "Here, tell your mother you just won the Heisman."

Not everybody gets that excited when they first hear about or see the Heisman.

It seems that Ohio State fullback Les Horvath, who won the award in 1944, and his wife moved from Columbus to Los Angeles in about 1947 and Horvath's wife noticed this ugly statue, yes, the ill-proportioned Heisman, being unpacked and placed on the living room mantel.

"What's that thing?" she asked. "Out. Get it out of here. It's hideous."

Horvath explained that it was among his most prized possessions. He explained what it was, what he had done to win it. Couldn't he just leave it there? If she really disapproved after awhile, he would move it to another room.

A couple nights later the Horvaths happened to have dinner at the home of the Tommy Harmon's, and Horvath's wife noticed that a Heisman Trophy adorned Harmon's mantel. And two night later they happened to have dinner with Glenn Davis, the former Army star, and his wife, and Mrs. Horvath noticed that another Heisman Trophy had adorned that mantel as well.

Driving home that evening she turned to Les and said:

"You know that thing you want to keep in our living room? What's so special about it? Everybody we know has one."

Having tried their hands outside their own domains, Mid-Suburban League basketball teams will turn their efforts inward toward their own divisions in a five-game league schedule tonight.

All varsity games, following 6:30 preliminaries, will begin at about 8:00.

Each MSL squad, after a couple of non-conference games and cross-division clashes last week (which DID count in the standings) will embark on competition in their own groups.

One game stands out as particularly interesting in each division. In the North, it's darkhorse Palatine visiting impressive pre-season favorite Hersey. In the South, two top contenders square off when Conant journeys to Prospect.

Other games find Wheeling at Arlington, Rolling Meadows at Fremd and Schaumburg at Glenbard North. (Forest View and Elk Grove are idle this weekend).

Three MSL units will return to action again Saturday evening in non-league action with Fremd at Willowbrook, Conant at East Leyden and Lockport Central at Wheeling. The latter clash spotlights some polls' top team in the Chicago area — and one of the best in the state.

Tonight's matches:

CONANT AT PROSPECT

The way this rivalry has gone for the past two years, it might be that either team would rather play the other in hostile surroundings. Conant has won the past two years at Prospect while the Knights have triumphed twice in a row at Conant.

The two teams tied along with Forest View for the South Division title last year, and both should figure just as prominently this time around. So this is the biggest game so far in the young season for both.

The home-court advantage has been non-existent in the recent past, but one advantage the Knights will have is in height. Not by too much, though. The Cougars are bigger than average, too.

Consistency is Conant's general goal now. The Cougars ran both hot and cold last weekend, splitting to bring their record to 3-1. They topped Fremd 54-48 before taking their first loss at Lake Park, 55-46.

According to coach Dick Redlinger, in only one half of each game did Conant play well — the first half of the Fremd game and second half of the Lake Park clash. The rest of the time, Redlinger felt, the club was lackadaisical.

"We know Prospect always works on their fast break," he said. "We have three objectives against them. One, we've got to keep the ball away from (6-7 Tom) Bergen. Two, we've got to stop their fast break. And three, we have to rebound them."

Conant also pays a visit to tough East Leyden Saturday night and incentive shouldn't be lacking since, according to Redlinger, "Their coach (Norm Goodman) called our players a bunch of girls."

Inconsistency is also the key word in

ANOTHER REBUTTAL...

Dear Sir:

In rebuttal to A. Cayer's factless attack on "Muscle-bound empty-headed" athletes, we would like to state that in order to participate in athletics one must have a minimum of a "C" average. One half of the graduating seniors of 1972 at Palatine High School who were on the National Honor Society were athletes, cheerleaders, or pom pom girls.

According to World Book Encyclopedia, sports demand a combination of physical skill, strength, enthusiasm, purpose, actual group or individual teamwork and have an alert mind! It states: instead of hindering a person in today's society, sports develops and makes a person well adjusted to daily life, teaching them the ability to get along.

"Prowess in football does not make one a good engineer, physicist, doctor, dentist, etc." What about Mark Spitz, a dental student and the winner of 7 gold medals? The late President Eisenhower was a halfback on his football team in college and graduated 61st in a class of 161. The late President John Kennedy was a letterman in college. President Nixon played football and won an academic scholarship to Duke Law School and graduated in the upper third of his class. There are thousands more of athletes who have made great achievements in life.

How many athletes are receiving a formal education because of scholarships? This they lose if they don't keep up their academic grades. And Cayer said sports got them nowhere unless they were good enough to play pros...

"TIRED OF DOUGLASS"

Dear Herald:

I for one was happy to see you got two more quarterbacks out for your next sports luncheon. I'm tired of Douglass and of the unbelievable "he can't do wrong" treatment he gets from the Bears' organization. I'd like to hear what Bratkowski (Zeke) and Huarte (John) have to say about the situation at your luncheon next Monday. I hope they're frank because Bears' fans are sick and tired of listening to Abe Gibron constantly defend Douglass when there isn't a coach anywhere in the NFL who wouldn't make a change late in the game when his No. 1 (and I use the term loosely in Douglass' case) quarterback shows he can't move the team. And it's also time the press stops treating Gibron as some super coach. What has he done but coach a team downhill?

Stanley Bobak

TIME TO PLAY HUARTE

Dear Sirs:

I've had it with the Bears, Gibron, Douglass, Halas and all the rest. They keep pushing this inferior product on us every Sunday and they don't do anything to change it.

Why, Abe Gibron, do you insist on being so stubborn with your absurd commitment to Bobby Douglass as your quarterback?? Not giving John Huarte a chance to play in that embarrassment at Minnesota last Sunday was inexcusable.

It's time to play Huarte. Nobody has any confidence in Douglass any more but you're so stubborn (and obviously getting orders from Halas) that you won't make a change. You don't want to admit you and the rest of the Bears' organization are wrong about Douglass.

Douglass has had his chance. He is a strong runner but he is not now, and never has been, a consistent passer. His execution is predictable. His teammates obviously have no confidence in his abilities to lead the team.

But Gibron insists on being stubborn. He won't give Huarte a chance.

This is your chance coming up, Abe. The Bears play hapless Philadelphia and a decent Oakland team. Give Huarte a chance. Let him play one poor team and one decent team. That should tell us what he can do. Douglass has had his chance. He didn't produce!

"THEY'VE HAD THEIR GLORY"

Fan's Forum:

Wake up, administrators of Elk Grove High School. Football is over. Sure, we are extremely proud of our No. 1 football team, but they have had their glory.

Now it is time for the other sports. You are putting undue pressure on the other sports. All our winter sports have fine teams and excellent boys participating in them. Give them a chance.

Every year we have had extra assemblies for football but nothing for the other sports or other extra-curricular activities. Don't place one group better than the rest of the student body.

Shamrock Challenge Next For Lions; Travel Tonight

by LARRY EVERHART

St. Patrick has always provided a rugged basketball challenge for St. Viator each winter and that tradition should hold true tonight when the Lions of coach Ed Wasielewski invade the domain of the Shamrocks.

Tonight's hosts are only 2-2, but Wasielewski expects that "they'll be as tough as they always are." It's not an easy game in which to try to reverse last weekend's results, when the Lions twice were beaten decisively — 70-48 by Carmel and 72-53 by Palatine.

With only a victory over Rolling Meadows, the record now stands at 1-3.

An encouraging sign in the last game against Palatine was the return of Mike Cook, who had missed the early part of the season with tendonitis after the football season. Cook scored 17 points against the Pirates.

"He was pretty impressive," said Wasielewski. "He scored and helped on the boards." Besides being the only Lion over six feet tall at 6-3, Cook is the only one with varsity experience from last year.

Dave Hutcheson has been the most prolific scorer for the first four games with a 14.5 average. No other Lion is averaging in double figures.

St. Patrick has run up a couple of one-sided wins and lost two close ones to Thornton and St. Benedict. But, as veteran coach Max Kurland says, "We need a lot more experience." Which puts them in the same boat as St. Viator.

The Shamrocks have had balanced scoring with forwards Pete Zimmerman and Paul Gruss and center Dave Teper all about even.

St. Pat, though on the small side, is slightly bigger than St. Viator. But for ones the Lions won't be at a big deficit here.

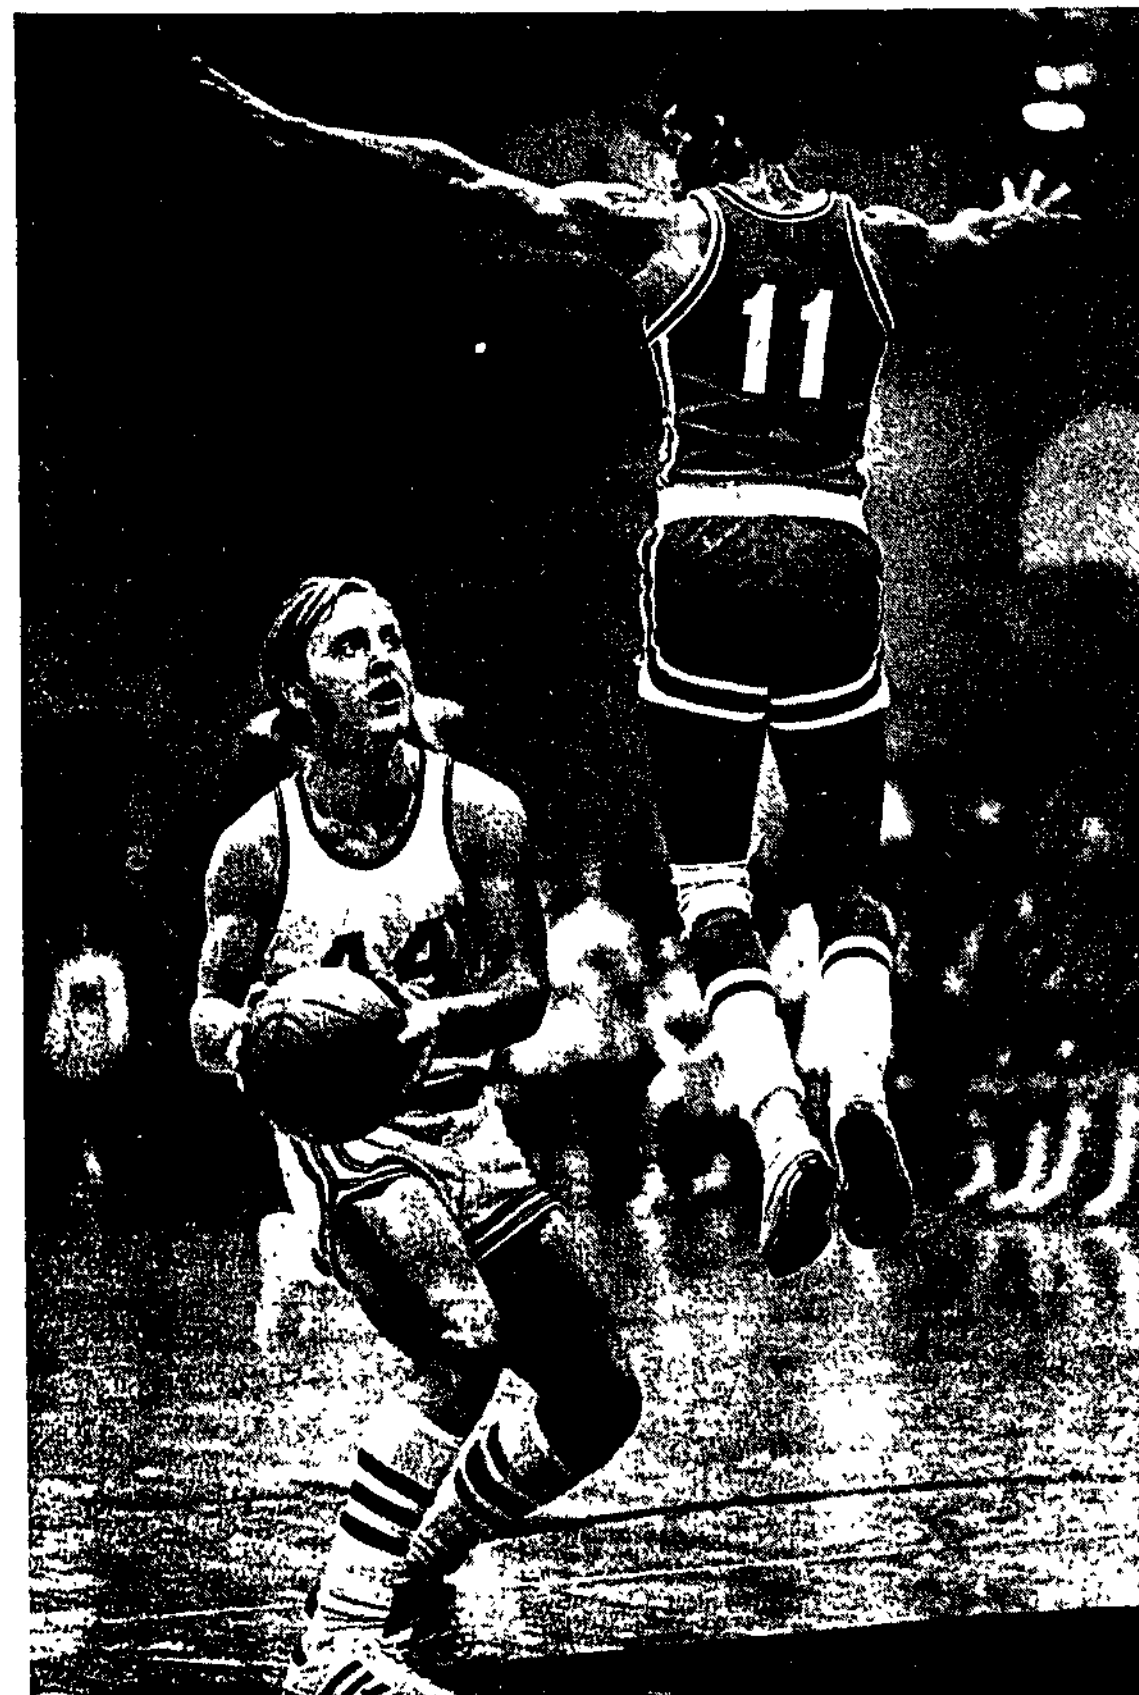

"We play together as a team and are strong defensively," says Kurland. "As the season progresses, we should put the ball in the hoop better."

"I haven't seen St. Viator play, but they usually have good shooters out there."

Former Heisman Trophy Winner To Speak Monday At Luncheon

Does winning the Heisman Trophy put too much pressure on you after graduating from college?

Do the pro coaches expect too much from Heisman winners?

Does the Heisman really help open some business doors or is it an overrated award in this regard?

Former Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, the Chicago Bears' backup quarterback who earned the coveted college award in 1964 at Notre Dame, will answer those questions and many more next Monday as one of the special guests at the Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon.

Huarte and Bears' quarterback coach "Zeke" Bratkowski will be the main speakers, subbing for linebacker Doug Buffone who will be in New York Monday on personal business.

Tickets are $5.00 per person, including tax and tip, for a chef's steak lunch and the sports program. Call Anne Chalikis at 394-2300 for reservations.

UCLA Coming To Stadium

The perennial national champion UCLA Bruins will appear in the Chicago Stadium again this winter as part of Loyola University's doubleheader basketball slate.

UCLA will face Loyola next Jan. 25 after Notre Dame and Illinois play the opening game at 7:30 p.m.

The Loyola Ramblers will host three other basketball doubleheaders in late January and early February.

Two nights after UCLA comes to town, it will be Marquette versus Loyola and Illinois against South Carolina. On Feb. 3, Loyola plays the opener versus Dayton. It will be Northern Illinois and Oral Roberts in the nightcap.

The final twinbill features Iowa against Bradley and Northwestern versus Loyola, those those games on Feb. 10.

Tickets, scaled from $6 through $2 for reserved seats, can be purchased at the Stadium or through Ticketron.

Palatine, Oh Palatine

A host of athletes claiming allegiance to Palatine are scattered over the nation's college campuses. And some are performing with distinction.

The most successful has been ex-Pirate quarterback Phil Donahue, recently named recipient of the John V. Magnabosco Award at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind.

The award goes to Cardinal athlete demonstrating the best scholarship, leadership and playing ability. Donahue was also selected the Most Valuable Offensive Player.

Donahue established a new single season total offense record at Ball State this fall, totalling 1,693 yards on 1,482 passing and 212 rushing.

Randy Blake, who makes his home in Palatine but played high school football in Middleburg, Ohio, has been selected to the All-Ohio Conference football team. Blake plays tight end for Marietta College. He will appear in the first annual Ohio Shrine Bowl on Dec. 9.

Two former Palatine eagles are continuing their careers at the college level. Jeff Agnair is playing guard for Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa. Douglas Fyfe, a Pirate graduate in June, plays varsity basketball for Lawrence University.

And Chris Andriano, yet another Palatine product, caught six touchdown passes this fall for Millikin University in Decatur. That set a new school record.

Get The Bird

Why are three strikes in a row called a "turkey?"

Years ago, around the turn of the century, when bowling was new and it was difficult to get good scores, the owners of bowling alleys would often give turkeys to the first man on a team to record three consecutive strikes.

From then on, anyone getting three straight strikes called it a "turkey." The phraseology caught on and can be found in the rules books today.

AD's In National Spotlight

Palatine athletic director Chic Anderson and Ken Olson, AD at Maine West, will both be on hand at the National Federation's Third Annual National conference of High School Directors of Athletics, Dec. 10-13, in Denver, Colo.

Anderson will make a major presentation on "Administering The Girls Sports Program." He will review the program of interscholastic athletics for girls, paying particular attention to schedules, staffing, financing and facility assignments.

Olson will act as moderator during the workshop sessions concerned with "Getting School Leadership From Lettermen." Both are veterans in their fields.

New Coach, Same Tradition In Arlington Gym Program

by JIM COOK
Gymnastics Editor

The head coach is new, but the tradition is still there.

And when Tom Chapman guides Arlington in its opening gymnastics meet tonight, the prospects for a successful season are no less doubtful than during predecessor Tom Walthouse's decade of annual state contenders.

Chapman, however, has his work cut out for him during his initial season at the reins of the Card strongmen. Only five lettermen return from Arlington's conference, district and sectional championships and runnersup in the 1972 State Meet.

John Golbeck, Geoff Rieder, Kurt Davis, Pete Hendricks and Ray Herman form the foundation of Arlington's hopes. The Cards will be severely tested in their first appearance under Chapman when they open at the tough Evanston Invitational tonight at 7.

"Our immediate goal is to improve," Chapman said after viewing his team in preliminary practice sessions. "Our state placement this year depends on our side horse and trampoline events. All I can say is judge us by what we do."

Golbeck and Rieder anchor Chapman's horse team which also includes Chris Freas and Nick Noehnke. Also considered a Card stronghold is horizontal bar which will be manned by Hendricks, junior Gary Glader and sophomores Don Tatro and Drew Parlee.

Sophomores Tatro, Parlee and Don Marquis join Davis in floor exercise while Herman, Davis and Bob Flubacher are slated for work on the trampoline.

Hendricks, Glader and Parlee will challenge the parallel bars with Hendricks, Glader and junior Jay Ackorlund scheduled for a test on the rings. Chapman may choose from either Glader, Tatro or Parlee as his all-around competitor.

With three sophomores and five juniors playing important roles in Chapman's initial program, the Cards may be building another dynasty that has characterized its gymnastics accomplishments in years past.

—Five Contests On Mid-Suburban Schedule Tonight

the Prospect camp where head coach Bill Slayton has watched his unpredictable quintet lost their first three straight before posting amodest two ame win streak that will carry them into tonight's contest.

"You always look better when you win," Slayton admitted while hesitating to concede that his Knights had begun to put their game together.

"We've just got to play our style of game and nobody else's," Slayton continued. "Our big men have been doing our scoring and even that's irregular. We need a better floor game and some points from our guards, too."

Despite the ironic results that have been registered on each other's court, Slayton will never turn down a chance to play at home.

"I think it's important that we're playing in our own gym, especially against Conant who tends to be a very physical club," Slayton said. "I think the kids have a different feeling when they play on the baskets and floor that they've been practicing on all year. There has to be some kind of advantage tied to it."

Slayton is leery about Conant's full-court press — a tactic that has plagued the Knights in each of their three losses. "This is where our ballhandling comes in and if we don't get it, we're going to be in trouble."

PALATINE AT HERSEY

Hersey doesn't have a track meet scheduled for this weekend, but it's probably ready for one.

Head basketball coach Roger Stelengraber watched his "tired" team of cagers get hit by Maine South last Saturday and has vowed the Huskies' lackadaisical performance won't happen again.

"We've been running hard every day in practice," Stelengraber said. "I can understand that back-to-back games are a strain, but Maine South didn't show it."

Hersey's physical-conditioning program will be severely tested again tonight when fleet-footed Palatine pays a visit in a key North Division contest.

"Running has always been characteristic of (Palatine head coach Ron) Finfrock's teams," Stelengraber said. "They're not as fast as Maine South, but they're awfully quick. And I'm told they have a full court zone press, so we've got to be physically ready tonight."

Physically and mentally.

"We were really down after that Maine South game," Stelengraber admitted. "We've got to learn not to get down on ourselves during the game. We've got to keep our heads out there."

It will be most interesting to see how 6-11 center Dave Corzine recovers from the Maine South nightmare that found him scoreless and the owner of just five rebounds. If Big Dave and his teammates can forget about that game as fast as it happened, the rest of the league might just as well forget about catching Hersey in the standings.

Finfrock knows only too well the importance of this first big North Division game.

"We'll get our first test against the big kids (Corzine and Greg Hale 6-6) this week," said Finfrock. "This is the first really big kid we've faced. We'll be able to tell a lot after this ball game."

Palatine, now 3-1, posted double wins last weekend, but Schaumburg and St. Viator aren't as loaded as Stelengraber's team. Nevertheless, the Pirates' coach is cautiously optimistic about the David-Goliath confrontation.

"I think our kids will do well against Hersey. I think we have a quality basketball team and I think we'll prove that as the year goes on."

One crimp in Finfrock's plan for his first victory ever against the always towering Huskies is Rick McCormick's injury. He's a doubtful starter because of a knee injury he sustained last weekend.

Without their fine quarterback and top assist man, the Pirates may experience more problems than normal. However, a fine full court press, an abundance of speed and the scoring ability two Jims — Sander and Arden — should still make them a tough opponent.

Finfrock knows the Huskies will especially be fired up after the humiliation of the 63-39 loss to Maine South. "I was flabbergasted. I just couldn't imagine anybody beating Hersey that bad."

Any Palatine fan would gladly take a one-point victory.

WHEELING AT ARLINGTON

The sneaker will be on the theater foot, so to speak, when Wheeling moves into Arlington's gymnasium this evening for a pleasant round of basketball that will be broadcast on WWSM-FM.

For the past three seasons George Zigmán's Cardinals have had to look up when the Wildcats were around with their lofty 6-11 center Roger Wood. Big Rog is gone now and it will be Arlington's 6-9 pivotman Dan Donahue dominating the scene for the time being.

This is not to say that Zigmán is counting on dominating the boards and the game tonight as well, however. "We'd like to, but you never can tell what will happen when we meet up with Wheeling. It's been a good rivalry since I've been around even though it hasn't always produced the expected."

The Card coach indicates rebounding will be crucial factor in this North Division opener, but isn't taking anything away from the Wildcat board game despite his club's obvious height advantage. "They've got some good-sized, aggressive kids who can hit the boards hard. They're also more experienced inside. Our big boys, Dan and Brian (Gaare) are coming along but they still haven't been tested under fire enough to have Wheeling's pulse."

The Cardinals will be hoping to rebound from a narrow setback at Barrington last Saturday with the type of play that allowed them to upset a veteran Elk Grove club the previous night. "We just ran out of gas last Saturday. Our defense held up but our shooting was poor. If we can get the same brand of action out of our kids that we got last Friday, though, I'm sure we can give Wheeling a good game."

Every Wildcat but Tom Marzec will be in top shape for the physical battle that's expected at Arlington. Marzec, plagued with injuries this season, came back from a shin bone injury only to receive a muscle strain in his back against Glenbard North. His ability to play is doubtful.

Arlington may be keying on George Kaage tonight. The reason is simple — he threw in 29 points against a Glenbard North team that head coach Ted Ecker feels is "the best we've ever played."

Ecker said that he didn't expect Kaage to continue his blistering scoring pace, but added this, "We have very high expectations of George. He's a good basketball player who is improving all the time. He's very consistent on his output (all phases of the game)."

Of the 76-60 victory over the Panthers, Ecker said, "We definitely jelled in that game for the first time this year. Not throughout the game but mostly in the second half. It was very obvious to me that the kids finally believed that they could do something. It was a tight ball game in the first half (37-30)."

Nevertheless, Ecker is very concerned with tonight's test. "It's a must for us right now if we're going to be a contender in the conference."

Saturday night's Lockport game is also a big one, but for different reasons. The Porters boast the best 1-2 punch going in Ellis Files and Alvin Green. Ecker called them "fantastic individuals" and added that Files pulled down 31 rebounds as a sophomore as Central romped past the Wildcats.

As for an upset, Ecker said this, "That's what you hope for. With the potential pulse that they (Cats) possess, that's a possibility."

MEADOWS AT FREMID

Then there was the guy who kept pounding his head against the wall because it felt so good when he stopped.

Fremid experienced a similar feeling last week. After pounding their heads in defeat three straight times to initiate the season the Vikings stopped by beating Downers Grove South last Saturday and it felt so good.

Now Viko helmetsman Leon Kasubosko is sure his charges would like to maintain that nice feeling by turning back Rolling Meadows as they strike up North Division combat by entertaining the Mustangs this evening.

"I'm sure Meadows has similar sentiments about stopping us," observed Kasubosko. "Especially after Prospect beat them last Friday. But I think we're a lot better prepared now than we were at the beginning of the season." His optimism is borne out of the fact that in experimenting with a number of faces during the past couple of weeks, and especially last weekend, Kasubosko believes he's come up with a going combination at last.

"It wasn't so much a case of individuals not doing the job as getting a group that meshed in together well. Last week the guy who seemed to provide the spark . . . seemed to tie everything together . . . was Mark Funk and we're going to give him an opportunity to continue at it Friday night."

The Fremid mentor also indicated that Doug Mize, a 6-3 junior hiked from the joybees only last Saturday, may be getting more varsity exposure as time goes on. Against Downers Grove, Mize plunked in 10 points while playing about half a game and this sort of productive display is welcomed on a team that has been doing the job defensively but not overwhelming anybody on offense.

Meadows' problem still lingers on. It'll be forced to look up again when Fremid takes the floor — "but not quite as high as we did last week against Prospect," Mustang head coach Ken Arneson said.

"Their height advantage doesn't bother me as much as their quickness," Arneson said. "They play the good, aggressive game like they always do and their good speed is really going to keep us on our toes."

To accommodate Fremid's style of ball, Arneson will introduce two new starters into tonight's lineup. Bill Geegan will get a shot at a forward and soph sensation John Hogan has been given the nod at a guard spot.

"Hogan was out of school Tuesday with the stomach flu," Arneson expressed with concern. "So whether he starts or not will depend on how he feels physically and how much practice time he gets in the remainder of the week."

Arneson thinks the additions of Geegan and Hogan will beef up the Mustangs' offensive production, but he's still worried about how to defense the quick Vikes.

"We may have to play them a little looser than we'd like to," he said. "We're willing to sacrifice the outside shot to keep them from driving inside on us. We'll be trying to get as much pressure on the ball as we can and at the same time, our rebounding game will have to be effective."

"If it is, maybe we'll try to run a little bit too," he concluded.

SCHAUMBURG AT GLENBARD NORTH

There won't be much experience on the floor tonight when the Saxons pay a visit to Carol Stream. Both teams have starters just getting used to life in varsity basketball.

Each will be trying to rebound from last weekend, too. Schaumburg's record dropped to 1-2 as it lost decisions of 63-68 to Palatine and 80-54 to West Leyden. Glenbard, meanwhile, was toppled by Wheeling 76-60.

The Saxons were at a height disadvantage especially in the West Leyden game, so it will be nothing new when they face a taller Glenbard squad tonight.

Saxon coach Joe Breault said of the Panthers, "They're a solid ball club this year. They rebound and they're well-disciplined. But we think our defense can cause a few turnovers."

Translation: Look for Schaumburg to press to try and offset its size disadvantage.

Forwards Trem Tucker and Charley Lindberg were tops in the most recent game with 13 pins each, after Tucker scored 20 in each of the first two games. He is averaging 17.6 for the first three contests.

The Panthers, under the direction of Terry True, will be hoping to break out of a three-game tailspin when they host Schaumburg this evening. They'll take a height advantage into the action but very little else.

"We're pretty inexperienced," shrugged the new coach. "We've got some kids with good potential but it's going to take us a while to develop as a unit."

True will be shuffling his lineup slightly to start Daryl Feltes at one of the forward slots. The six-foot junior is a newcomer to the varsity cage ranks but a veteran in terms of overall athletic service, having quarterbacked Glenbard's football team since the beginning of his sophomore year.

The individual Schaumburg will probably have their biggest difficulty in containing is guard Mike McHale. He thlied 24 against Wheeling last week and figures to be among the leading scorers in the circuit all season.

McHale was elevated to varsity status at about mid-season last year after maintaining a torrid scoring clip on the jayvee circuit. He averaged only about 6-7 points per game to begin with but finished strong, collecting 75 in his four final conference appearances, and will undoubtedly pick up now where he left off.

Although McHale is a biggest scoring threat, he is not the only one opponents will have to keep a wary eye on. Marlon Brooks, another ex-griddier, is the most seasoned member of the club.

He played in virtually every game last year, notched a 7.5 scoring tempo and averaged nearly seven rebounds a contest. He should be even better now.

Milton Richman

NEW YORK UPI —Dan Devine was driving along in his car when he turned on the radio and recognized the voice he heard immediately.

He should've. It was his own.

This was a year-and-a-half ago shortly after he had given up what had all the earmarks of a lifelong job as athletic director and head football coach with the University of Missouri to take over as general manager and head coach of the Green Bay Packers.

Much was made of the fact that here was Dan Devine coming fresh out of the college ranks to take over the two top jobs with a professional club. That doesn't happen very often. Usually a man either plays professionally or comes in as an assistant, then works his way up.

But Devine came in cold and he was coming into a place and into a job where one of his predecessors, the late Vince Lombardi had grown into a legend.

Did he think he could ever possibly take this man's place? Did he feel he could bring the Pack back? Why? How? When?

The truth is nobody will ever replace Vince Lombardi at Green Bay. Phil Bangston could have told Devine that. But it's also true Devine has restored some of the Packers' previous dignity, particularly among themselves, and even if he isn't another Vince Lombardi, and never will be, the effect essentially is the same because Green Bay is back on top again and conceivably could keep on going to the Super Bowl.

Devine remembers how he was bombarded with questions when he first came to the Packers. He remembers how he was riding along in his car that evening a year-and-a-half ago and how he heard himself being interviewed.

"I was really tired of listening to myself make statements, but that was and still is really part of my job," he says. "I tried to explain that to my squad, the part of my job was to answer questions somebody would ask me I hadn't even coached a down yet, and suddenly I had become an expert on pro football and the Green Bay Packers. Quite frankly, I couldn't take much more that night I was riding home listening to myself being interviewed. I was making myself sick. So I turned the radio off."

That is something the late Vince Lombardi might have done. He wasn't that enchanted with interview sessions.

Devine also plays more or less that same type football Lombardi did. In a nutshell, do what you do best and keep on doing it. Stay with your ground game. The sweep is the dominant factor. Throw only when you have to.

You walk into the Packers' dressing quarters now and there are still some signs there Lombardi put up.

Like "We can't spell success without you," and "There's no laughter in losing," but the fact is Devine made sure to establish his own identity after taking over the Packers and although the name Lombardi still comes up from time to time, and no doubt always will, Devine and the late Lombardi are nothing at all alike.

To begin with, Devine doesn't appeal to his players' emotions the way Lombardi did. For another thing, soon after he took the job, Devine dealt away some of the so-called Lombardi players and brought in his own.

He sent quarterback Don Horn to Denver — Lombardi always was high on Horn — in the first deal he made, and it worked out fine for the Packers because they acquired the Broncos' first draft choice who turned out to be John Brockington.

Others who Devine sent packing were Doonay Anderson, Jim Grabowski, Travis Williams and Lionel Aldridge. All here the Lombardi stamp.

Most of Devine's deals have been good ones.

When he first arrived in Green Bay, Devine was always being compared with Lombardi. Not so much anymore, although as Lane says, Lombardi's name always seems to pop up some way.

Devine is in the second year of a five-year contract now. He obviously is beginning to feel more at home than he did a year and a half ago.

During Monday's press conference in Green Bay, for example, someone asked him how he felt about the game with second-place Minnesota coming up this Sunday. Was he looking ahead to it?

Devine, used to answering all kinds of questions by now, said: "The only thing I look ahead to is the re-hiring of the head coach."

Now there's something Lombardi wouldn't say.

That wasn't his kind of humor.

Elk Grove Hockey Facts

Stretching their unbeaten streak to 10 straight games, the Elk Grove Midsets beat Oak Lawn 7-1 in a non-conference game, then in another non-conference game tied Naperville 3-3. In last week's Polar Dome action, they tied Elmhurst, 2-2.

In the Oak Lawn contest Bob Brunn of Elk Grove opened the scoring after he received a perfect pass from Jim Samuels. A few minutes later Samuels scored assisted by Bill Halpenny and Bob Morita, to give Elk Grove an early two-goal lead. Fine goaltending by Elk Grove's Larry McDermott kept Oak Lawn off the scoreboard in the first period.

Mark Rodseth opened the scoring in the second period on a rebound after following shots from Mark Gustafson and Mark Christensen. Larry Miltch made it 4-0, assisted by Tom Balcer. It was five straight goals for Elk Grove when Bob Morita got his fourth goal of the year, assisted by Mike Tucker and Samuels.

In the third period Oak Lawn scored first. Tom Balcer came back for Elk Grove assisted by Mark Gustafson. Gustafson got the final goal himself assisted by Christensen and Rodseth.

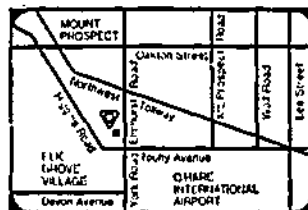

Against Naperville, Elk Grove started quickly, scoring the first three goals. Larry Miltch got the first goal unassisted. Tom Balcer scored his seventh goal of the year on assists from Mike Tucker and Bob Lamentia. The third Elk Grove goal was scored from Bill Halpenny on assists from Joe Danca, Naperville scored the last three goals to tie it.

In the Polar Dome action, Mark Christensen gave Elk Grove a 1-0 lead in the second period on assists from Mark Rodseth and Mike Tucker. Elmhurst came back with two goals to make the score in their favor 2-1. Bob Brunn tied the score on assists from Larry Miltch and Tom Cleckler in the final minute of play.

Paczkowski, Tobin Earn No. 1 Rank In Division

Arlington High School netter John Paczkowski and partner Geoff Tablin have been ranked first in the boys' 16 doubles division of the Chicago District Tennis Association rankings for 1973.

Paczkowski, a junior, was an upset victim in the finals of the Paddock Tennis Tournament during the summer.

Jim Merkel of Arlington High was ranked 15th and Don Rodig of AHS was ranked 21st in the boys' 18 singles. Merkel won a third position ranking with Dane Petchul in boys' 18 doubles.

A newcomer to the men's division rankings is Barry Magee of Streamwood, winner of this year's Paddock tournament.

Ken Mackowiak, pro at River Trails Tennis Center in Mount Prospect was ranked 14th.

Jose Villarete, former Philippine junior champion and Southern Illinois University star who won three major tournaments on the local circuit last summer, has earned the CDTA's No. 1 men's ranking for 1973.

Villarete, No. 2 last year behind New Zealander Graham Snook, was followed by Ray Cahnman, Thad Ferguson, Steve Williams and Harvey Spiegel, all perennials; Jorge Jimenez of Costa Rica, Rubi Blau of Israel, veteran star Chris Scott and transplanted Texan Laddie Birge.

Ellyn Levin, still a junior, won top ranking among both the women and the 18-and-under. Sue Graham, recent winner of the national girls' 18-and-under indoor title at Boston, was placed third in the District 16s.

With Eric Friedler, No. 12 nationally, having insufficient data for local ranking, Greg Russell copped the top spot in the boys 10s.

Al. and Ford Car Price Boosts Given Federal OK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Ford's request to sub-plant safety, noise, and pollution improvements not required under federal manufacturing standards. A spokesman said the changes included a 10 percent increase in the size of the engine.

After the commission announced its decision, it said it would seek to increase prices for each 1973 car.

Grove Launches Gym Campaign With Road Trip

by JIM COOK
Gymnastics Editor

While Elk Grove is the 11th out of 12 Mid Suburban League teams to open its gymnastics season, veteran head coach Fred Gaines considers his squad at a disadvantage at this point in the campaign.

"We had a late start compared to most schools," Gaines commented in an obvious reference to the Grenadiers' worthwhile extended football season. "We'll be hurting early in the season, but should be average by tournament time."

Gaines cautiously welcomed nine returning lettermen back from last year's potent club that captured a tie for second in the Mid-Suburban League's overall standings.

"That number may be a bit misleading," Gaines said, "since we may be lacking the solid routines. We're just hoping that each boy will work to his potential."

Heading Elk Grove's returnees is side horse ace Bob Siemianowski who, as a junior, captured an impressive third place in last year's state meet. Joining Bob are all-arounder Scott Phillips and juniors Mike Heiberger and Tom Chen.

Free exercise will house Phillips, Kerry McMahon, Bill Bosslet and Randy Kornacki, while horizontal bar duties will be shared by Phillips, Jeff Chernick, Bosslet, Mike Broderick and John Frank. Workhorses Phillips and Bosslet also man the parallel bars along with Dave Neimeyer and sophomore Willie Walsh while Phillips heads the rings with Jim Adreon, Jack Henry, Scott Earnest and George Beahan supplementing. Phillips and Bosslet are both all-around possibilities.

Gaines hesitantly tabbed his parallel bars, trampoline and rings as his top three events, but his major worry is his third man on both high bar and side horse.

The Grenadiers will get their first taste of interscholastic competition tomorrow at Addison Trail at 7:30 p.m.

Arlington Minor Hockey

ALL-STAR TEAM ACTION

Arlington's Bantam All-Stars traveled to the home of the Evanston Huskies last Tuesday and suffered a 5-0 defeat. Evanston's fast skaters took advantage of Arlington's defensive lapses on several occasions and skated in almost unopposed on 2 while John Roth for scores in all three periods.

The Free-Wee All-Stars played a fired up game against Evanston. The whole team worked hard and outskated and outchecked Evanston. Jeff Rosewood, Tom Anderson, Bob Reinke, and Andy Chatten played well on defense.

Evanston scored in the first period but Tom Anderson tied it up in the second period with an assist by Larry Hermanson. Jim Murphy played one of his best games in goal. The game ended in a 1-1 tie.

MIDGETS
The Midget All-Stars won all three of their games this past week. Tuesday they traveled to the new Winfield rink (Winfield's new rink) and beat the Winfield All-Stars 2-2. Scoring Credits will be reported next week.

On Thursday, the Arlington Minor Hockey Coaches gave them a good battle for one period, but the Midgets won 7-1. Scott Glander got a hat trick, Jerry Weber scored twice and Rob Hudon and John Verdino once each. Assist went to Jim Fenderson (2), Weber (2), Verdino (2), Jim Ryan, Bill McGuire, Rob Hudon and Mark Smith.

On Saturday, the Midget All-Stars edged the Evanston All-Stars in a tight, hard checking game 2-1. Arlington's goals were scored by Mark Santelli and John Verdino, with assists to Mike Reizer, Scott Whittier and Smith. The defense played their usual strong game.

Northwest Suburban Tankers Romp

The Northwest Suburban YMCA boys and girls swim team traveled to Northbrook Saturday for a meet with North Suburban YMCA. It was another fine performance by the team as they defeated their opponents 550-210.

'B' Tankers Win 3rd; Whip Racine

It was an afternoon of sheer excitement last Saturday when Northwest's "B" swim team hosted their rival "B" team from Northbrook.

While Northwest's boys beat North Suburban boys 159-111, the girls made sure there was no question about their victory as they matched the boys' total with a 159-79.

The team spirit seems to be more evident every meet. There were cheers of welcome to the opposing team, cheers for the racers, cheers for the coach, and an overall show of good sportsmanship. Coach Quimby has stated that he feels this development of team spirit is every bit as important as winning the meets. He seems to be doing a fine job of both.

"B" team's next challenge will come when they face West Communities "Y" on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 3 p.m.

The results are according to age group and event:

NORTHWEST CATHOLIC CONFERENCE

The 11th week of action in the 10-team conference will include the following games Sunday, Dec. 10: St. Colette at St. Alphonsus, St. Anne at St. Thomas of Villanova, St. James at St. Hubert, Our Lady of the Wayside at St. Raymond, and St. Theresa at St. Emily.

St. Colette vs. St. James
In eighth-grade action, after St. James held a small lead in the opening minutes, St. Colette took over control and went on to win easily, 75-33. Every saw action for St. Colette as Bob Rose led the way with 24 points and Lew Winslow tallied 13. Mertins was high for St. James with 10.

St. James took charge from the start of the seventh-grade game and won 48-13.
In the sixth-grade contest, St. Colette was a 15-7 winner. Keith Zurawski and Jim Rose paced the Tigers with six and four points. For the fourth straight game, Rose was high rebounder with nine.

St. Raymond vs. St. Thomas
St. Raymond's eighth grade defeated St. Thomas 41-39. High scorers were Joe Kellner and Louis Citro with Jack White, Bob Cantieri and Steve Wilkinson playing heads-up defense. In the grade game, the hot shooting of Paul Ishan, Andy Loos and Johnny Rohrer and the tough rebounding of Peter Tummaro and Paul Hogoinski led St. Raymond to a 37-11 victory over St. Thomas.

The Raymond sixth-graders took their game by a 22-12 score and the fifth-graders were 41-26 winners over St. Thomas.

St. Theresa vs. Our Lady of the Wayside
First-place Our Lady of the Wayside overcame an early 17-12 deficit against St. Theresa and moved to a 61-39 victory in the eighth-grade contest. Andy Peterson's shooting helped St. Theresa to its early lead over the undefeated Wildcats, but Wayside rec'd off 14 straight points behind Frank DeSimone's scoring and moved to a 24-17 halftime lead.

Wayside pressed the Trojans in the second half, causing several turnovers, to stay in front and hand St. Theresa its third loss. It made the Wildcats' record 4-0. DeSimone was high scorer with 20 points and Peterson collected 18 for St. Theresa. Teammate, Jim Hamill had 10.

Despite a shaky start, St. Theresa's seventh-grade team earned a 27-20 victory over Our Lady of the Wayside. Center Dave McKinney's 11 points led the way. Wayside pulled within two early in the second quarter, but then Plazak hit three straight baskets and St. Theresa never trailed. Plazak ended up with eight points. Theresa hit only five of 24 from the free throw line.

St. Theresa vs. St. Peter
In a balanced scoring attack in Skokie the St. Theresa seventh grade defeated St. Peter 66-37.

Theresa had no trouble breaking a full-court press in the first half and moved to leads of 21-3 after one quarter and 39-17 at the half. McKinney led the attack with 14 points in the first half. Mark Brehm handled the half well and scored four points. John Kierth scored 11 points, John Josten 10 and Chris Plazak sev- en It was the Trojans' eighth win of the season

SOUTH JUNIOR HIGH

Vs. Miner
South Junior High handed old cross-town rival Miner its first loss of the season in a 51-48 thriller. It was nip and tuck throughout after South got into early foul trouble.

Miner led at halftime, 20-19.
High scorer for the winners was Greg Klobner with 34 points including two free throws which put the game out of reach with five seconds left. Top scorers for Miner were Louchman and Finley with 14 and 12 points, respectively. It was South's second win in as many games.

Vs. MacArthur
The Cardinals raised their record to 2-0 with a 51-43 triumph over MacArthur. The Cards had to come from well behind in this satisfying win after MacArthur was ahead 18-3 after a quarter and 30-18 at the half. South then outscored MacArthur 20-3 in the third quarter and coasted to the win.

Klobner again was high scorer for the winners with 21 points. MacArthur's high men were Becker with 15 and Mendrala with 14.

ST. MARY'S (BUFFALO GROVE)

Team defense was the key as St. Mary's sixth grade won a battle from Santa Maria of Mundelein, 20-6, to secure first place in the Northwest Catholic League. Donal Henson led St. Mary's by holding Santa Maria's top scorer to only one free throw through the first three quarters. Jack Quinn also was outstanding defensive while Fred Muchin Steve Taporek and Steve Reidingler led the offense. St. Mary's has held all opponents to an average of 8 points per game and now stand 5-0 for the season.

The seventh grade's record now stands at 5-1 after a 32-22 victory over Santa Maria. The game seesawed throughout the first half with St. Mary's leading 15-14 at halftime. In the second half Paul Villot took charge and scored 17 to lead the Blues to their third victory in four league outings. Bill Lilly with six and Ken Poczekaj were outstanding both offensively and defensively. The St. Mary's defense held Santa Maria scoreless in the fourth quarter to secure the victory.

The varsity's record dropped to 3-3 overall and 2-2 in the league after their 42-35 defeat by Santa Maria. Fred Hecsch with 12 and Tom Lindholm with 10 were about the only consistent offense St. Mary's could generate. Santa Maria, trailing 22-18 at halftime, took the lead for the first time early in the fourth quarter and pulled away from St. Mary's. St. Mary's next game is with St. Joseph's of Libertyville at Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove, Sunday, Dec. 10.

ST. JOSEPH THE WORKER
All of the St. Joseph the Worker basketball team's important first place after last Sunday's important conference games with St. John's of Johnsburg.

The sixth grade team moved its conference record to 4-0 with a 37-11 victory. The tight Charger defense held St. John's to one field goal in the first half.

Leading St. Joe to its sixth victory in as many games were David Cluck with 10 points and Mark Degrowicz with eight points. In the seventh grade battle for first place, St. Joe put on an awesome display of offensive power as the first team rolled possession of first place. The final was St. Joe 60, St. John 32.

Steve Majkowski led all scorers with 13 points. The victory gives the seventh grade an overall mark of 5-1. The loss came in the St. Luke tournament to St. Cyrian by a score of 20-16. St. Joe was guilty of very cold shooting and poor execution of its offensive rebounding. The St. Joe varsity defeated a very tough St. John team 45 to 41 to remain undefeated and in sole possession of first place. Brian Degrowicz led the Chargers to their ninth victory in as many games with 17 points. Scott Messenger threw in nine points.

Next conference action for St. Joe will be against St. Mary of Fremont Center on Sunday, Dec. 10th at 1 p.m. These games will be played at the Fremont Center grade school.

Mike Division-Traveling Team
Sparked by the excellent combined goaltending of Dennis Myers and Don Miller, the Bank of Rolling Meadows Mike team shut out the Dundee Mites by a score of 1-0 at the Polar Dome. By winning, the Bank of Rolling Meadows moved into a third place tie with Dundee, each team having identical 4-4 records. Mike Gellinger scored the only goal of the game and credit for the victory must go to Myers and Miller for their superior goaltending. On countless occasions they warded off Dundee shots.

The Mike team came close to upsetting the Schaumburg Kings. With only eight minutes left in the third period, the Palatine squad led the Schaumburg Kings by a score of 3-2, but Schaumburg quickly came back with three late goals to win 5-1. Paul Carney scored two for Palatine and Darren Stark one. Mike Gellinger had two assists with single assists going to Peter Calvert and Clark Lush. Dennis Myers and Don Miller shared goaltending duties.

The Mites then visited Evanston for an exhibition game against the Evanston All-Stars at Northwestern University. Winning with a shut-out 2-0, Mike Gellinger scored the first goal of Rolling Meadows while Clark Lush got the second goal on an assist from Mike Gellinger. Dennis Myers and Don Miller combined goaltending duties to record the shutout.

Tougher Mat Test Saturday

Hoffman Raiders Get Independence

Sam Goranson's Raiders dumped the Pioneers from Independence, Mo., 21-6. The visiting team was co-champions of their league for 1972, but the Raider defense held the Pioneers ground attack to minus 38 yards.

The Hoffman Estates offense click well, except for penalties, as the Raiders had three touchdowns called back. Doug Oslance was in good form as he tallied two touchdowns and two extra points.

Jeff Johnson scored the third touchdown and quarterback Bill Armstrong not only completed five passes, but intercepted four Pioneer tosses and made the most tackles in the game.

Raiders honored at their banquet Saturday night after the game were Billy Pichler (Most Inspirational Player), Brock Bomkamp (Best Lineman), Jeff Johnson (Best Defensive Back), Doug Oslance (Best Offensive Back) and Bill Armstrong (Most Valuable Player).

But, I'm 103.2 Per Cent Pregnant

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The birth rate in this country has finally dropped to the level necessary to reach "zero population growth," as they say in planned parenthood circles.

The significance of this development perhaps can best be explained through the Q. and A. method:

Q. What is zero population growth anyway?

how?

A. That is a technical term meaning the population only increases by zeros. The magic number is 2.1. If you and your spouse produce 2.1 children, they will grow up to be big fat zeros.

Q. Don't we have enough zeros in the population already?

A. Let's leave your relatives out of this.

Q. Do we have to produce exactly 2.1 children or can we get together with some other couples and maybe strike an average?

A. YOU CAN make any sort of arrangement you please as long as the vice squad doesn't hear about it.

Q. Why 2.1? If each couple had 2.1 children wouldn't the population continue to increase at a rate of one-tenth of one per cent?

A. No, dum-dum. We are talking about kids, not percentages. The 2.1 figure simply means that you have two children to the left of the decimal point and one child to the right.

Q. Does the death rate have anything to do with zero population growth?

A. Of course. To have a 2.1 birth rate, you need a 1.9 death rate. Putting it another way, 0.3 of the population must live forever.

Q. How can I best contribute to reaching ZRG?

A. Read the obituary page every day, then call the hospital and check on the number of births. If births exceed deaths, stay home and take cold showers. Otherwise, go on out and have a good time.

Q. At present rates, it will take 70 years before population growth actually stops. What happens then?

A. The sale of Pabulum will level off and people will have more money to spend on beer.

Q. BUT ISN'T an expanding population necessary to maintain economic expansion?

A. Not necessarily. With fewer children to claim as deductions, people will pay more income taxes, which will make a tax cut possible. Tax reductions, in turn, stimulate the economy.

Q. Will our population growth ever be subzero?

A. That depends on how many football games are televised at night.

Wholesale Prices Soar During Price 'Freeze'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Boosted by big spurts upwards in November, wholesale prices increased at a faster rate during the first year of President Nixon's Phase II wage-price controls than before prices were frozen, the government said.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said wholesale prices went up 5.4 per cent in the 12 months since the Phase II controls began in November, 1971.

In the 2 1/2 months of 1971 before the wage-price freeze was imposed, wholesale prices went up at an annual rate of only 5.2 per cent.

Wholesale prices, which usually precede movements in consumer prices, went up at an even higher annual rate, 5.7 per cent, during the past six months, the bureau said.

WHOLESALE PRICES, after declining 0.2 per cent in October, shot up by 0.6 per cent in November mainly because of a 1.6 per cent rise in prices for farm products and processed foods and feeds.

This was the largest increase in the Wholesale Price Index since July.

Farm products alone went up 2.8 per cent, due mostly to higher prices for fresh and dried vegetables, eggs, oil seeds, grains, raw cotton and wool.

Prices fell for livestock, live poultry, fresh fruit and fluid milk.

The index for processed foods and feeds rose 1 per cent. Price increases for fish, dairy products, cereal and bakery products, fruits and vegetables, and beverages more than offset declines for meats, poultry, sugar and confectionery products, fats and oils.

The BLS said the index for industrial commodities increased 0.3 per cent in November, highest in three months. This was mostly because of a 6 per cent jump in the prices of hides, skins and leather, a 4.6 per cent rise in coal prices and a 1.3 per cent increase in the price of gas fuels.

The over-all index increased to 120.7, which meant goods that cost $10 at wholesale in 1967 cost $12.07 last month.

The report was a setback to Nixon's hopes of bringing the rate of inflation down to less than 3 per cent by the end of this year. Wholesale price rises point rather quickly to retail increases in some cases, particularly for food.

Actor John Carradine

Four Decades In Theater

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Sitting at the same table with John Carradine and listening to the veteran actor tell of countless stage experiences and acquaintances is like a private history lesson on the subject of American theater. Only better than most classroom lectures... the stories are all first-hand accounts.

Sixty-six-year-old Carradine, whose career spans four decades, has partaken of it all... live theater, motion pictures and television too. Right now he's in town to appear in "The Fantasticks" opening next Thursday at Arlington Park Theatre.

But this time it's all brand new to him. Carradine has never played in this particular show before and neither has he worked with Richard Chamberlain, who co-stars with him in the musical production. Yet it isn't his first time in the Chicago area.

"I ALWAYS manage to be here in the winter," said the Californian who resides in a small town outside of Santa Barbara. In his spare time he sails and presently is owner of both a 26-foot sloop and a 37-foot ketch.

You can even go so far as to call him a "sea captain" since until several years ago he was master of a documented 65-foot schooner.

And by regulations specified by U.S. Customs, "the boat couldn't move unless the master was on board," he said.

Though not everyone would recognize John Carradine and match him to his name, there is little doubt that most people would notice him. He is one person who looks his profession... an actor. His lean physique and steel gray moustache and beard obviously bring a real life Don Quixote to mind.

HIS FAVORITE role, he will tell you, was Othello in the stage play of the same name.

"I also liked doing Thomas More in 'A Man For All Seasons' and I hope to play King Lear before I'm too old."

Carradine also appeared in the original "Stagecoach" motion picture and has made over two dozen horror flicks.

"The westerns we'll always have with us and the horror films too," he said.

"You can always find an audience for them."

"But nudity and violence are passing fads," he continued to comment about the various periods in the history of American filmmaking.

"There are still producers around who do have a conscience and hold on to their integrity. But most of them are just hacks."

CARRADINE'S FIRST stage appearance was in "Camille" at the Charles Theatre in Louisiana.

"More actors were needed and I just badgered the director until he gave me a part," said Carradine, who made up his mind in his teens to become an actor though for a time he supported himself as a sculptor.

Carradine's only teacher has been experience. He never had an acting lesson. He still doesn't believe in them.

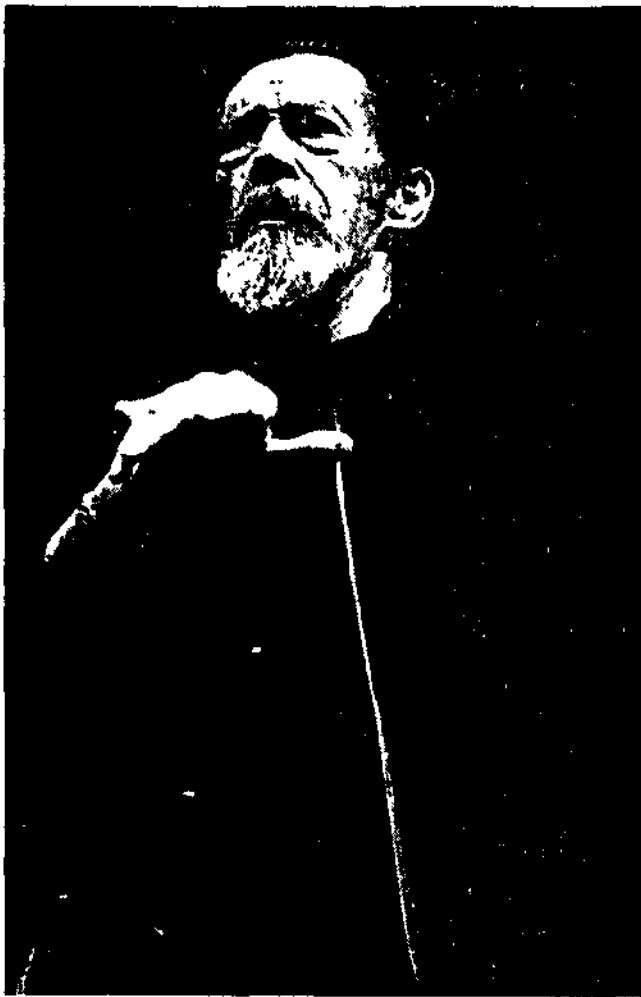

To strengthen his voice he took the advice of an older colleague and several times a week would drive out to the Hollywood Bowl where, before 20,000 empty seats, he would practice his lines. His voice was further trained by his love for singing and the opera.

"I used to play poker with a group of Italians," he continued. "Whenever we played five card stud, the winner of the hand would have to stand up and sing an aria. That's how I learned all of them."

CARRADINE BELIEVES community and college theater are receiving a great deal more attention these days and to the usual question, "Is theater dying?" he curtly replies, "It's been dying for the last three generations," something that is almost predictable, he further asserts, because the American government unlike many foreign countries does not subsidize the arts.

"Citizens in this country wouldn't stand having their tax money going to actors," he said. "The only actors who do get money are the politicians."

Three of Carradine's five sons are also actors and one, David, has his own television series, "King Fu." At the first of the year it will be televised on ABC every Thursday evening. The two, father and son, have appeared together in several movies.

VETERAN ACTOR John Carradine experiences something new with his appearance in "The Fantasticks," opening next week at Arlington Park Theatre. He's never played in it before, and this also will be his first time with Richard Chamberlain.

Following his run at Arlington Park Theatre Carradine will go to Philadelphia to narrate a pilot film introducing a new TV series about the American Revolution.

"It is a program to explore the effects on ordinary people, the common folk and not just the patriots," he said.

BUT CHRISTMAS will have to be spent here since "The Fantasticks" will be running throughout the holidays.

Carradine doesn't care if he gets out all that much while he's a guest of Arlington Park Theatre. "I like to read," he said, "and watch television too. I look at all the good old pictures I never had the chance to see. But I never watch any of my own."

Athens Theaters Facing A Crisis

by JOHN RIGOS

ATHENS (UPI) —The curtain may soon run down for the last time in many theaters in Athens, birthplace of the classical drama.

Directors of the capital's 42 theaters say the crowds stay away because of the "easy spectacles" of football and television. Others blame the anti-intellectualism of the people and the profusion of theaters.

"Saturday nights used to be packed and it was impossible to seat all those wanting to see the show," said Yannis Gloukakis, Greece's top comedian. "Now most theaters are half empty and on week nights it's even worse."

Weekly receipts of local theaters ranged from 90,000 drachmas ($6,333) for a musical review to 29,000 drachmas ($2,970) for "Operetta," a play by Goltz.

WITH SUCH takings, producers and theatrical entrepreneurs, who are usually the leading actors and actresses in each troupe, find they barely break even let alone make a profit.

Alexis Minotis, dean of Greek actors and directors, sees artistic values suffering a crisis more than the commercial success of the theater.

"Those theater companies trying to present something artistic are in far more trouble than the others," Minotis said.

"Unlike other European capitals where people queue to obtain a ticket for a classical play, in Athens ticket sales for good plays are nothing compared to those of routine plays."

Minotis said the 42 theaters in Athens were far too many for its population. "Now the pinch has come, some will close down. The theater where I am currently directing 'Captain of Kopenick,' may be among them. Expenses are twice as high as our receipts," he said.

DIMITRIS HORN, currently playing Shakespeare's "Richard III," said Athens was suffering from theatrical inflation.

"On the other hand, when audiences can see their favorite actors on television why bother to go to the theater," he said.

"Barbarians will not invade our country through the borders. They will jump out of television screens," said Anna Synodinou, leading lady of Greece's ancient tragedy.

Miss Synodinou was not worried about the number of theaters. "Compared to the number of discotheques, clubs, and soccer teams, theaters are not so many for a metropolis of 3 million inhabitants," she said.

Other popular actors, however, said they thought theater would survive the crisis and, what is more, that actors who remained faithful to the art would regain their popularity which today is overshadowed by the stars of television.

LAMBROS CONSTANTERAS, leading actor in a successful musical, said television and its stars would pass like any other fashion. "Fashions are temporary," he said.

Yannis Fertis, whose theater is showing "Teahouse of the August Moon," was also hopeful. "It was the theater's turn after the cinema to suffer the effects of television. However, it will not last more than two years."

B. B. King Knows All About 'Blues'

by THOMAS BROOKS JR.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The Blues Boy has a background of the stuff from which blues singers are made.

He awoke every day at about 4 a.m. to the sound of a bell that called him to the fields on a cotton plantation in Mississippi and he'd stay in those fields, except for a short break for lunch, until dark.

But Riley B. King, better known as B. B. "Blues Boy" King, has come a long way from the cotton fields. He's on the road 365 days a year now and performs an average of 300 days a year. He's been doing that for 25 years, a long time to survive in the come-and-go era of post-World War II popular music.

The 46-year-old King's music has transcended the rapid changes in popular styles in music in recent years, and crowds at his concerts are still predominantly young.

"THAT'S ONE of the things about my music," King said. "I've had to adapt it to the times. But the basic B. B. King is still there — the feeling."

The basic B. B. King is still simple. He sat in his hotel room a few hours before a one-night stand hoping to get some sleep before the next show. He had played a one-nighter the night before 650 miles away.

King got his nickname of "Blues Boy" when he first began trying to play professionally in Memphis, Tenn. He lived near the end of Beale Avenue in Memphis. The street was known as a center for blues and people ignored the fact that it was actually an avenue and called it Beale Street and the music that came from it was known as Beale Street Blues.

King first began playing live for a few minutes a day on radio. His live radio time was increased after a while and his popularity increased with the time. He was billed as the "Beale Street Boy" and people later began calling him "Blues Boy" and then B. B.

HIS SUBJECTS for songs have not changed much since that time. He has always written and played many songs that dealt with lost loves and cheating lovers. One of his biggest hits, "The Thrill Is Gone," dealt with the loss of interest on the part of a lover. He has been through two marriages and divorces since he started playing professionally 25 years ago.

A Southern tradition contributed to King first learning to play the guitar.

King was living with his uncle as a teen-ager and his uncle's sister was married to a guitar-playing preacher. The preacher ate dinner at King's house and, as was the custom, young King had to wait until his elders ate before he could eat.

While the others ate, King plunked on the preacher's guitar.

He named his guitar Lucille after an incident in which he almost lost his life.

HE WAS PLAYING in a dance hall in 1949 in Twit, Ark., when a couple of men began fighting over a woman and accidentally knocked over a kerosene heater. The kerosene quickly spread over the wooden floor and soon the whole building was in flames.

"Everybody made it for the front door including myself," King said. "Then I remembered I left my guitar and got to thinking that a good guitar was hard to find and hard to hold onto and I went back in."

"Well, I almost burned to death getting that guitar out."

"I found out later they were fighting over a girl named Lucille and I named my guitar Lucille to remind me never to do anything stupid like that again."

King takes his blues to the prisons now. His first prison performance was in Cook County Jail in Chicago.

"I always kid with them (inmates) and tell them I didn't come to bring them blues 'cause I'm sure they've got some, but I'll be glad to share some with you," he said.

"I'm a Virgo and I like to see everybody happy."

Long Grove's Covered Bridge

'Old' Landmark Really New

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Long Grove nestles quietly in yesterday. Earmarked by a bevy of antiques, country style decorating and fresh bread aromas, the 125-year-old village rewards all its visitors with slow-paced waves of nostalgia.

A form of commercialism swallowed willingly by a populace overwhelmed with bawling futuristic shopping centers, Long Grove continues to increase its business by erecting new buildings that look as though they were resurrected from the past.

The most recent "old" landmark to go up is the covered bridge on Long Grove Road that initiates visitors as they drive into the village from Route 53.

THOUGH LONG Grove's covered bridge was under construction for six weeks, the idea had been simmering for several years. Yet until the former bridge needed repairs, plans remained on the drawing board.

When the idea was first approved, Robert Parker Coffin, Long Grove's mayor and an architect by profession, designed one he hoped would be appealing in itself and also enhance the rustic setting of the village that primarily consists of small gift and artsy shops.

The bridge was copied from a covered one in Ashuelot, N. H., and built using a frame of Douglas fir covered with rough cedar and shingled in natural wood cedar.

With a clearance of only 12 feet, the bridge is not designed for heavy truck traffic, nor even for two cars to pass through at the same time.

Quite a difference from the entanglement of expressway lanes that run into Woodfield.

THE ENTIRE concept of having a covered bridge would be destroyed, it was felt, if the roadway were enlarged. So the bridge remains one lane shadowed by roadside trees. Signs request motorists to cross on the two steel tresses running parallel through the bridge.

Long Grove's bridge may be hedging on its reputation. It really isn't old. Yet because there are fewer than 10 covered bridges left in Illinois, the landmark is still unique... despite its youth.

THIS IS HOW Long Grove's covered bridge appeared when it was first opened to traffic the latter part of this summer. Remember the warmer days? Ah well, they will return. And even though the bridge is no longer shadowed by a blanket of leaves, it still remains the newest "old" landmark of Long Grove, a village that tries to keep everything looking of yesteryear. There are currently under 10 covered bridges left in Illinois.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

A Questers group (an antiques study club) visited my home recently and what an ego trip for me! These ladies don't look at cloudy windows and dusty floors; they are only interested in the contents of the china cabinets and shelves. Far different from our friends who can't stand antiques and who furnish their homes a la bean bag chair and chrome tables. The Questers' compliments brought to mind some of the quite different comments we've heard from our company, over the years, concerning our "Early Salvation Army" decor.

One couple came over a few years back (they haven't been invited since) and sat one on either side of a small commode I have in the family room. The husband is a carpenter and naturally very interested in anything made of wood. "It's m-m," he said, sighting over the top of the commode. "It sure is warped, isn't it?" I refrained from commenting that his tact was a little warped, too.

We had always wanted a Victorian hanging lamp for our dining room. At last I found one at my price (which never corresponds to the price the shops charge,) and we wired it, replaced some of the missing prisms and proudly hung it over the center table. Two ladies visited shortly afterward, one of whom was an "antiquer," and she said to the other, "Just see Grace Carolyn's antique lamp; isn't it beautiful?" "Well," answered the non-antiquer, "I suppose it will do until she gets what she really wants for her dining room."

LONG AGO, WHEN our children were young and demanding, instead of old and demanding, our furniture was almost entirely golden oak, the stepchild of the antiques world, which we had picked up in second-hand shops and refinished. But the total effect, I thought, wasn't bad and seemed fitting for the small home we had at the time. A doctor's wife, who lived in the most elegant home on the block, stopped by one day, surveyed our small domain, and pronounced what she probably thought was a compliment: "Oh, yes, I see the effect you're trying to achieve." And all the time I thought we had already achieved it!

The most common query I hear is "How in the world do you keep it all dusted?" You could answer that question by writing your name on the surface of any piece of furniture in the house with your forefinger.

One more anecdote (and these are all true) about the time I invited a couple, business acquaintances of my husband, for dinner. I used my best antique dishes and although you can't see your face in them, because I don't use the right detergent, I was rather proud of them. They are pale blue English Staffordshire plates decorated with scenic prints. We sat down and by way of conversation, I offered, "These plates are about 130 years old." "Oh," the husband assured me, "don't apologize. We don't mind a bit. It's the food that we're interested in."

WHAT IS IT they say? One man's meat is another man's poison? Believe me, I was tempted that night!

Such stories are common with us, that peculiar breed of people who are afflicted with antiquitis, or what used to be called "middle-aged sickness." That title is no longer appropriate, for more and more young people are becoming infected. It is incurable, so if you catch the sickness, just give in and enjoy it. And don't try to keep them all dusted.

Questions? A collection you'd like to tell us about? Write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

The Book Stall

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

The practice of medicine in peasant villages in the People's Republic of China has been observed by visiting American doctors and physicians from other countries.

However, the most comprehensive report on such medical practice to date — so far as topics and problems covered — comes via "The Peasants Village Physician's Handbook."

This handbook — 1,200 pages — is put out by People's Hygiene Press in Peking. According to a review of the medical tome of science, Journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), the handbook was compiled by the Medical Revolutionary Committee of Hunan.

The review is by Hans Agren, of Uppsala, University, Uppsala, Sweden. He currently is at Kyoto International Student House, Kyoto, Japan. Agren reports that copies of the book are on sale at exhibitions of Chinese products in Japan.

Said to be printed in over a million copies, it is intended for use in the Chinese countryside, to be studied as a textbook by all those having to deal with health and sick care, and to be used as a handbook by doctors with more extensive theoretical training.

"It is of extraordinary interest," Agren notes in his review. Highlights follow:

— "The book covers a vast range of subjects from protection against nuclear and biological warfare (43 pages) to ear acupuncture which involved a choice among nearly 100 points on the ear to affect various parts of the body."

— "The first chapter is entitled 'Extinguish the Four Pests,' these being rats, flies, mosquitoes and bedbugs. Poisons for these four as well as for cockroaches, fleas and lice are described in detail."

Agren said the picture given of treatment methods in common or recommended use shows that modern Western medicine and traditional Chinese medicine have to an astonishingly high degree been synthesized into a kind of eclectic medicine.

"Citations of Chairman Mao . . . appear not only in the headings of different chapters but also in discussions of particular problems," Agren reported.

"They are especially prominent in the discussions of matters on which public health policy has focused popular attention — general hygiene, harmful insects, schistosomiasis, venereal diseases . . ."

Among diseases the handbook indicates are treated almost exclusively by traditional methods are acute bronchitis, chronic gastritis, portal cirrhosis, rheumatoid arthritis.

Three big, beautiful books, each devoted to an artist whose works reflected the social and political atmosphere of the Depression and two decades that followed. Easily the season's prize books on American art.

ding march played in Dixie style," Nicholson said. "I asked the name of the composer, thinking it was by some jazz composer."

"IT WAS, of course, the famous Wedding March of Mendelssohn. I was a Mendelssohn lover from that day on."

Nicholson came to war-torn Berlin as a soldier in 1946, looked for Mendelssohn's grave but could not find it.

In 1958 he returned for a second tour of duty here and again looked in vain for the grave.

But in 1970, he found the grave, unmarked, forgotten.

"It was bad enough that the Nazis had banned his work because he was of Jewish descent. It was perhaps worse that nothing was done about the grave and his work after the fall of the Nazis," he said.

Nicholson, 46, now is retired from the U.S. army and living in Berlin.

"I am delighted that Berlin is honoring Mendelssohn this way," the ex-GI said. "He is Berlin's musical genius whose music continues to refresh the ear and charm the spirit."

Ex-GI Finds Mendelssohn Graves, Sparks Festival

by JOSEPH FLEMING
BERLIN (UPI) —When Sgt. Robert J. Nicholson found the grave of Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy in a graveyard at the Holy Trinity Church in the American Sector of Berlin, he almost wept.

"It was a rodent-infested mound covered with weeds," he said. "I was overjoyed at finding it after a search that extended over 24 years. But I nearly cried at the condition of the grave of this musical genius who created such beauty."

Thanks to Nicholson the grave now is cared for, and the month of November was set aside to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the composer's death. A Mendelssohn Festival was proclaimed by the West Berlin government after Nicholson suggested it to Mayor Klaus Schütz.

The 150th anniversary of Mendelssohn's birth passed unnoticed in 1939, but the anniversary of his death on Nov. 4 was marked by six major concerts, two by Herbert von Karajan, at the city's Philharmonic Hall.

"I was a boy in New Orleans when, at a wedding of a jazz lover, I heard a wed-

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

In the short space of a five-year career Duane Allman proved to just about everyone that he was one of the better guitarists around and one who really dug his music. But a motorcycle accident in October 1971 cut all that short.

What Duane left was some mighty fine recordings and a generous collection of those — 10 songs — have been collected in "An Anthology" (Capricorn SCP-0108). The two-record set traces his musical career from his first group with brother Gregg, called The Hourglass, to the popular Allman Brothers band. (Who are on Channel 7 at 10:30 tonight.) In between, Duane got into a lot of session playing for other artists like Aretha Franklin, Wilson Pickett, Boz Scaggs and Eric Clapton to mention just a few.

Just about any selection from this album could be called a highlight. However, special favorites are "Layla" by Derek and the Dominoes, "Hey Jude" by Wilson Pickett and "Lean Me A Dime" by Boz Scaggs. At times his guitar was so sweet; at other times so powerful and rockin'. All aspects of his work are included and a generous photo album and essay by Tony Glover rounds out this fine album.

Put simply, Joni Mitchell is amazing. She writes the most personal of songs yet makes them appealing to thousands.

"For the Roses" (Asylum SD-5037) may be her most introspective album yet, but it has enough beauty in style and phrasing to make it popular. With the few details of her life that are found in the fan magazines, one may hurriedly try to unravel her personal visions. This time round it seems easy as at least five songs appear to tell of a worried and then lost love.

Perhaps the line "pack up your suspenders" from "See You Sometime" says it all (James Taylor?), perhaps not.

The differences in the music are more subtle this time and the assistance of others that she uses is used sparingly — a stroke of the brush here and there. The lyrics range from the sprightly fun of "Barangirl" to the almost resentful lines of the title song: "Just when you're getting a taste for worship, they start bringing out the hammers and boards and the nails."

She remains one of my favorite singers and this album is a must for those who appreciate beauty and depth in a song. If you're unhappy, Joni (as the songs seem to indicate), it hasn't made a difference in your performance.

Nell Diamond cranks out hit after hit and they are genuinely good, pleasing songs. Then every now and then he takes a rest and issues a greatest hits album. As with "Gold" the new "Hot August Night" (MCA Records 2-8000) are live versions of his best songs. But this special package is all taken from concerts last summer at the Greek Theatre in Los Angeles.

Chatter is kept to a minimum and those hits just keep coming and coming. Diamond seems to pick up steam as he goes through the performance and by the encore ("Soulaimon/Brother Love's Traveling Salvation Show") the effect is quite moving. A 36-piece string section helps out his own band.

"One Man Dog" (Warner Bros. BS-2660) is the latest chapter in the James Taylor saga and it is the poorest. There is no faulting the voice or the delivery, but as far as the material goes, I don't think Taylor was ready to put out a new album. There just aren't enough good, solid songs here. Like the early Paul McCartney albums, Taylor is handing over a bunch of fragments.

Admittedly, the fragments are hummable and make nice background music. But what happened to all those Taylor songs we listened to — to hear what he was saying? "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight" is about the only one here. (Michael Brecker's tenor sax is a good addition.) The novelty song, "Chill Dog," is fun, but even that he's been singing for years in concert.

James Taylor as superstar appears to be a harried artist who must produce because his contract says so. He appears to need more freedom.

Newport Festival Seeks New Talent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young, undiscovered talent will perform side by side with veteran jazz greats for the first time at next year's Newport Jazz Festival in New York.

A 25-or-under jazz group, a rock combo and a pop vocalist are to be selected from 21 areas around the United States as a result of a "Young Discoveries in Tea & Jazz" talent search now under way. Co-sponsored by the producers of the Newport Jazz Festival and the Tea Council of the U.S.A., winners will be screened and selected on the basis of audio tapes submitted.

Areas where the talent search will be concentrated are Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, Detroit, Hartford, Conn., Houston, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Memphis, Miami, New Orleans, New York, Pittsburgh, Providence, Rochester, N.Y., San Francisco, St. Louis and the Tidewater Area of Virginia.

Further details may be obtained from "Tea Talent Search" 777 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Hoffman Hallmark Chorus Presents Concert Sunday

Dancers from Deanna's School of Dance, instrumentalists and vocal soloists will join the Hoffman Hallmark Chorus in its Christmas concert, "Sing We Now of Christmas," this Sunday. Directed by June Kessler Cowin, the concert will be given at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of Jane Addams Junior High School on Springinguth Road, Schaumburg.

Soprano Rosemarie Morgan and Elaine Woolard, alto Renata Kuczyński and bass Al LaMont will be featured soloists in Antonio Vivaldi's "Magnificat," for which an organ accompaniment establishes the religious atmosphere. Tenor soloist will be announced later.

Deanna's School of Dance will provide the featured performers in Harry Simeone's "Sing We Now of Christmas."

"The Adventures of Peter Macaroon" has all the elements of the usual children's play: a villain or two, a pretty heroine, a hero who is an inventive storyteller, a comic for lighthearted relief, a song and dance, plus a few talented child actors to adulate.

However, the Village Theatre production, which will be presented Dec. 16 and 17 at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, is not a usual children's play. While it has the same qualities of a familiar fairy tale, the dialogue and action are more suitable to a children's audience of today, according to its director, Roger Krupa of Mount Prospect.

Village Theatre will present the first two of a series of Peter Macaroon stories, which were converted into a successful television show by the University of Minnesota. When presented in a repertory situation at Western Illinois University, "The Adventures of Peter Macaroon" was voted the most popular of all the children's shows.

"SIMPLY TO name the characters is to establish a feeling of the show. In children's theater the characters must be clear cut. Thus the names in "Peter Macaroon" give the actors a springboard for their characterizations," Krupa explained, giving a rundown on the cast of characters.

The Duke of Dirtydom (William Bailey of Bensenville) is only a pseudo-villain, for in his bumbling awkwardness he is a humorous character. Similarly Countess Nasty (Alice Orlsen of Arlington Heights) is a likable villainess: sometimes absent-minded, occasionally nice, generally nasty, but likable. Princess Fair (Wendy Green of Mount Prospect) is just that.

Sam the Sad Serf (Hank deGroot of Arlington Heights) has the only incongruous name. The sadder he claims to be, the more he laughs. Sam is the Candidate of children's literature. The towering Serf and his master, the Duke, are what Krupa calls "a delightful Mutt and Jeff."

The name of fruit seller Carmen Banana (Margaret Mulgano of Palatine) will bring to mind another Spanish singer-dancer, Carmen Miranda. Peter Macaroon (Eileen Kiley of Arlington Heights) shares the first name of another elf-like teller of stories, Peter Pan. The Son of the Man in the Moon (Mark Jensen of Arlington Heights) Krupa describes as a "cheerful and optimistic non-earthling," complete with outer space costume.

THE EVER-PRESENT witch in "Peter Macaroon" does not come from any particular point on the compass, but rather she is The Wicked Witch of the Woods (Jill Johnson of Palatine).

Even the names of the supporting actors pose interesting speculations, according to Director Krupa. Justaposed Timmy and Tommy Try-Again (Brook Baucke of Arlington Heights and Stephen Threlkeld of Mount Prospect) and Re-

'Little Murders' Has No Stars

Like most contemporary experimental theater being done off-Broadway, Jules Feiffer's "Little Murders," to be performed Dec. 14-17 at the Schaumburg Township Library, is an ensemble play.

"Little Murders," now in rehearsal, is a play whose script calls for both slapstick and near-tragedy.

The difference between the ensemble play and the average play is that there are no star roles. The parts are of equal value; there is no one glittering part designed to attract a big name actor, surrounded by a number of bits, said director Joe McAvillie.

Playing in the uninhibited comedy are Iris Tompkins of Lombard and Dick Kelly of Hoffman Estates as the mother and father. Barbara Ashby of Schaumburg and Harding Stephens of Hoffman Estates are the daughter and son and Bill Schumacker of Hoffman Estates is the daughter's boyfriend.

MIANK NETTER OF Hoffman Estates is the Judge, Steve Heller of Hanover Park is Lieutenant Practice and Glenn Markgraf of Schaumburg plays Reverend Dupas.

Others are Lois Word of Hoffman Estates, Jo Ann Wolf of Streamwood, Bob O'Connor of Rolling Meadows and Pat Eddington of Schaumburg, who portray wedding guests.

For ticket information, reservations and group rates readers may contact McAvillie at 529-1732.

In Children's Play Names Clue To Character

CARMEN BANANA (Margaret Mulgano) professes to be "speechless, speechless, speechless." The Duke of Dirtydom (William Bailey) wishes she were. The scene is from the Village Theatre children's play, "The becca Right-or-Wrong (Monica Powers of Arlington Heights) are thought-provoking, he commented.

"Best of all, there isn't a whiff of romance to repulse the male sub-teen observer," he said.

Complete ticket information is available through 259-3200.

'Dark Of Moon' Festival's Next Play; Auditions Set

Auditions will be held Tuesday and Thursday, for the fourth major production of Schaumburg Festival Theatre's 1972-73 season, "Dark of the Moon" by Howard Richardson and William Berney.

Based on the haunting ballad of "Barbara Allen" and set in the Smoky Mountains, the folk play recounts the story of a witch-boy who falls in love with the beautiful Barbara. A compact made with the mountain witches gives the boy human form so he may wed and live with Barbara provided that she remain true to him.

Some time after the marriage is consummated, Barbara gives birth to a witch-child whom the local midwives burn. In the frenzy of a religious revival, designed to break the witch's spell, Barbara is led to betray her husband. She dies and he returns forever to the witches' world.

"Dark of the Moon" has roles for 12 males and 13 females ranging in age from the late teens to the mid-60s. Auditions will take place in the new meeting room of Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Residents of all areas may audition and several scripts have been placed at the main desk of the library for those who wish to familiarize themselves with the play prior to the audition dates.

ROY QUID of Arlington Heights will direct this production. He has previously directed for Village Theatre and the St. James Theatre Guild of Arlington Heights and, most recently, was president and acted and worked in all production areas for Des Plaines Theatre Guild.

Directing Kids 'A Joy,' Says Play Director

William S. Keller, director of the Guild Players' production of Charlotte Chornenning's "The Emperor's New Clothes," finds children "a joy to work with."

"Kids are so unpredictable and they are natural actors," he commented. A founder and past president of Tri-Village Theatre Guild, Keller has many directorial credits but this children's play is his first director assignment with Guild Players.

He has more than 25 years of experience in show business, including off-Broadway, summer stock, community theater, teaching and radio and television broadcasting. For Tri-Village, he directed its premiere production, "Take Her, She's Mine," "The Song of Bernadette" and "Little Red."

First performances of "The Emperor's New Clothes" were given last weekend at the Vogeley Theater Barn on Higgins Road just west of the Route 72 and Route 58 intersection. The play will be performed again at 1 p.m. and 3:30 Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are available at the door or may be reserved by phoning 529-9262 or 529-3897.

Night Out To Howl New Year's Eve Choose A Package Plan

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Whether you're worrying about finishing up Christmas shopping or just starting it, area restaurants and night-club spots are making their own important decisions about that all-important New Year's Eve package to attract a spirited crowd to usher in 1973.

Throughout the next couple of weeks in "Night Out," I will be suggesting things to do and places to go in the northwest suburban area. And even if you're still concentrating on Christmas, it's wise to begin making plans for Dec. 31 too, because reservations for the following celebrations are now being taken.

Something a bit more unusual and off-beat is happening at The Hanger, the restaurant located at Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling. FLY AND DINE is the new concept being introduced New Year's Eve, and in addition to a special dinner featuring sirloin of beef, guests will also have the opportunity of taking a 40-minute airplane ride to see Chicago by night. The entire package, which also includes live entertainment for dancing and cocktails, is $49 per person.

The arrival of 1973 will be celebrated in the ballroom of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE as partygoers dance to the music of BOB CLOSBY and his Orchestra. Also adding to the festivities will be special guest appearances by singer JOHNNY DESMOND and the comedian C. DINK FREEMAN.

A complete champagne-steak dinner will be served starting at 8:30 p.m. followed by an old-style New Year's Eve celebration with the whole works... hats, streamers and noisemakers. All drinks for the evening as well as the entertainment and dinner are included in the hotel's package price of $37.50 per person.

Guests who wish to stay over at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare can take advantage of special New Year's Eve rates of only $12.50 per person for double room accommodations.

THE SUNDOWN, featuring singers GREG and LARRY WRIGHT of Schaumburg, will be the main entertainment attraction at LANDE'S CHALET'S NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY. The package, $37.50 per person, includes entertainment, champagne and a dinner with a main choice of either steak or lobster.

KAY BALLARD will lead the New Year's Eve celebration at ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS. The hotel is offering two packages in addition to its annual Top of the Towers party.

For those needing a vacation as well as a place to celebrate Dec. 31, the Towers is offering one package for three nights and four days beginning Friday, Dec. 29, and continuing through Jan. 1. Cost is $99.50 per person.

A second one, for two nights and three days, begins Saturday, Dec. 30, and continues through Jan. 1 for $84.50 per person.

Celebrants in either package plans will see a special New Year's Eve show headlined by Kay Ballard with comedian MILT MOSS of "I Can't Believe I Ate the Whole Thing" fame as master of ceremonies. STANLEY PAUL and his society orchestra will play for dancing. There will also be a champagne-fillet mignon dinner and a "recovery brunch" on New Year's Day.

Package plan participants will also see "THE FANTASTICKS," starring RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN and JOHN

Kay Ballard

CARRADINE at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE.

The Top of the Towers, the penthouse restaurant at Arlington Towers, will also host a New Year's Eve Party that is completely separate from the two packages.

This includes dinner, champagne, dancing and the musical revue, "SATURDAY IN THE PARK." The celebration begins at 8 p.m. Price per couple is $45.

MOS Announces 'Promises' Tryouts

Music On Stage announces open auditions for its spring show, "Promises, Promises," to be held Sunday and Monday evenings at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights.

Tryouts are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday and at 8 o'clock Monday.

The Burt Bacharach-Hal David musical based on Neil Simon's "The Apartment" has many cameo roles in addition to the leads of Chuck, the apartment tenant, and Fran, the girl he wants to know better. There are parts for 13 men and 12 women. A chorus and dancers also are needed.

Prospective actors are encouraged to present songs from "Promises, Promises" as audition material. Further information may be obtained from MOS president Mike Wouds, 894-2182.

Tom Ventress is directing the show, which will be given at Wheeling High School, March 9, 10, 16 and 17. Musical director is Bill Cotsakis and choreographer, Camille Baranchek. Rehearsals begin in January.

Concert To Feature Original Compositions

Original compositions will be performed by Harper College Jazz Band members during a joint concert Tuesday with the Harper Concert Band.

The program for the concert band will feature "Sabbath Music for Symphonic Band," adapted from the organ works of Karg-Elert by William Rhoads.

Assistant Prof. Robert Tillotson will direct both concert and jazz bands in the concert which is open to the public with no admission charge. The music will begin at 8 p.m. in the College Center.

Presenting their own compositions will be jazz band members Mike Mayer on trumpet, Jeff Ostalson on trombone and Roy Vombrack on saxophone. All three musicians are Hoffman Estates residents.

Other numbers on the concert band program include "Fanfare for Freedom" by Morton Gould and "Variants on a Medieval Tune" by Norman Dello Joio.

Collectors' Bazaar

Antiques of all kinds including dolls, jewelry, clocks, post cards, memorabilia, silver, furniture, books and coins will go on sale at a Collectors' Bazaar being held this weekend at McCormick Place in Chicago.

The sale begins tomorrow at 10 a.m. and continues through the day until 10 p.m. Hours on Sunday are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. More than 100 dealers will be represented at the show.

Spiced Pecans

Here's a holiday gift to make for someone special. You'll need:

- 1 lb. pecan halves
- 1 egg white, beaten with 1 T. cold water until frothy, in a bowl
- 1 cup sugar, 1 tsp. cinnamon, and 1/2 tsp. salt mixed together in another bowl

Stir the pecans into the egg mixture until they are all moist. Then, stir the pecans into the sugar mixture until they are all coated. Spread them on a greased cookie sheet. Bake for one hour at 225 degrees. Turn them over after they have baked for a half hour.

When the nuts are cool, put them in an empty peanut butter jar or other container. To make it look pretty, paint the jar lid and stick on a Christmas seal or glue a circle of felt and a rick-rack border to the lid.

THE TRIBAL ROCK musical "Hair" has returned to the Chicago area for a three-week engagement at the Mill Run Theatre in Niles. "Hair" opened Wednesday and will continue nightly through Dec. 24.

Biggest Growth Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) —The CATV industry is entering its greatest period of growth, according to an electronics firm executive.

CATV already is a billion dollar business and is expected to expand to a $4 billion annual market by 1980, says Conrad J. Fowler, chairman of American Electronic Laboratories.

In addition to providing improved reception and a broader variety of programming for television, CATV technology has many potential applications in other areas, Fowler says.

These include two-way communications systems for shopping and banking from the home, mailing and other services via facsimile machines, fire and burglar alarm systems, computer time sharing, and utility meter reading by remote control.

A Reminder To Brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Indian Jewelry: A Vanishing Art

by JOAN CROSBY

CAVE CREEK, Ariz. — (NEA) — One of the many stores specializing in Indian jewelry and art in the Scottsdale-Phoenix area was burgled recently. It was not the first time and not the only store to have been robbed.

The owner made a no-questions-asked offer of 25 cents on the dollar for the return of the jewelry, but he never saw a piece. It was already in the black market, on its way to Europe.

It is possible to buy a piece of Indian jewelry cheaper in Denmark than it is right here and in New Mexico, where it is made.

A year ago, The Wall Street Journal said good, old Indian jewelry was one of the top investments in the United States. Indeed, from a personal point of view, the Journal must be right.

About 15 years ago I bought a tourist necklace in Denver. Made by the Santo Domingo Indians, it was pretty, colorful and handmade of shells. It cost $3. Today, if you can find one, they are worth upwards of $25. One old one, in Arizona, is on sale for $195.

TURQUOISE is becoming scarce. Some mines are closed. Some are on the verge of closing. In Arizona, people who know turquoise, look at a piece of spider web turquoise in a ring I bought for $45 say, "Oh, yes, old No. 8."

The No. 8 mine, which produced a particularly fine quality spider web (thin weblike black lines run through the blue stone), is closed. The $45 ring was appraised in California, shortly after I bought it, as worth $200.

American turquoise is a fine stone and if you have ever heard that it fades, forget it. Some of the cheap jewelry, made for and sold to tourists, is tinted. That will fade. But good turquoise (and many can identify which mine has produced a stone by its qualities) is strong and comes in color ranges from blues through greens. Color does not affect the value. The greater the iron in the area where turquoise is mined, the greener the stone. The greater the copper, the bluer.

IT HAS been widely printed that Indian arts are dying as the Indian artisans die. Indeed, no younger artist has quite matched the gunmetal sheen in pottery that marks Maria's work as hers, and Maria of San Ildefonso is now an old lady and nearly blind. A small jar made by her will sell for $800 and museums throughout the Southwest display her work.

But Indian silversmiths are teaching the art to their children and Mary Rhoton, the owner of Cave Creek's Turquoise Kiva, says she thinks there is a revival of industry in the pueblos.

Unlike many jewelry stores, which deal with traders who trade with traders who trade and so on, each one jacking up the price, Mary and her husband, Speed, buy directly from the Indians, pay them a good price for their work and then add on a small percentage for themselves.

This does not mean their jewelry is inexpensive. It can be, but you can also pay over $1,000 for a magnificent silver, turquoise and coral squash blossom necklace, or $900 for a belt done in the intricate and distinctive jet, mother-of-pearl, coral and turquoise inlay work characteristic of the Zunis.

BUT YOU can also buy, for $2, an extremely attractive handmade necklace of cedarberries with accents of colored beads.

"This is an area Indians overlook," Speed Rhoton said. "I think they could sell a great deal of these inexpensive items. They are stylish, and if you get several in different colors, they are very colorful. They are also authentic Indian jewelry."

The Rhotons have had their colorful and homelike store in the Village Square of Cave Creek for two years.

They got into the business by accident. Speed's folks were traders, but Mary didn't know anything about Indian jewelry when she married him. "But one look at one squash blossom necklace," she smiles, "and I was hooked."

Many of the Rhotons' friends admired Mary's jewelry and wanted pieces of their own. Because they were able to buy at prices less than most stores charge, they found themselves with a good collection in their home and a lively wholesale business going. When the electronics firm that Speed co-owned ran into financial problems, it was either go back to work for other people or open their own store.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Visiting some acquaintances some time ago, I remembered seeing a diffenbachia plant growing out of a water-filled glass vase. It was so luxuriant, I was fascinated. Not wanting a diffenbachia around (I don't care for these dangerous plants), I'm curious if you know of any other plants that I might start now in water so that I could have some lovely green plants around this winter? —Genevieve Maxwell

There are several plants that grow this way — geranium, wax begonia, peperomia, impatiens, hibiscus, coleus, ivy, aglaonema and grape ivy. All these have embryonic root systems at each point where a leaf originates and these pre-formed roots develop rapidly when placed in water. The containers can be glass jars, bottles, aquariums or vases.

Not only should the containers be spotlessly clean but the plants should be scrubbed before they are inserted into the water and no leaves should be below the water level.

As algae should be prevented and these won't grow without light, it would be a good idea either to use opaque vases or cover the glass containers with contact paper. The water should be changed frequently and a speck of plant food added once a month.

Then he remembered something he had heard once and thought it was worth trying. Lucky that he did. He put a piece of sandpaper under the part that "ling, held in place by a few cardboard, and opened and he heard a few times. The trick worked. The door swung easily. —Mrs. Lewis D.

Dear Dorothy: I find the best way to keep cats from bursting is to spray them with hair spray. —Ellen James (Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan, all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each pay check and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds - for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

JUNIOR AUTOMOTIVE buffs can create and decorate their own custom racers with a new kind of kit, Roll-Away Cars by Kenner which utilizes a formulation of natural clays —

Play-Stone — which hardens permanently without firing, invented by Chinese chemist Dr. Tien Liu for the makers of Play-Doh. The wheels actually roll.

Games Overcome Generation Gap

This Christmas, pre-schoolers will get a bigger share of the new toy action. There's continued emphasis on restructured classics, with enriched play opportunities for all age groups, and new games bridging the generation gap.

Look for surprises under the Yule tree. Consider Gabbigale by Kenner, who looks like a classic doll with hair designed for washing and waving; she will astonish her audience by saying back exactly what's said to her. The secret is a hidden tape recorder.

Blythe, a classic looking sophisticated doll, provides surprise in her eyes, which change to four different colors when a string is pulled — outdoing the grown-up technique of changing personality by switching colors of contact lenses. Blythe has a series of four different colored wigs, some matching sunglasses, and her own boutique.

Drag racing, a classic sport favorite with school age youngsters, now is adapted to the small fingers of even 2½-year olds, with SSP Pee Wees, operated by gyro power which dispenses with track and batteries.

An innovative aid to good health habits is the Snoopy Battery Powered Toothbrush, especially designed for small mouths. The Snoopy-shaped handle makes the brushing ritual playroom fun.

Catering to children's love of fantasy are Toddlers by Tonka, little trucks which combine the shapes of tomatoes, pumpkins, melons, pears and celery ingeniously with classic truck features. Wheels are spherical, so they're safe for even the fingers of six month old babies.

Classic Play-Doh has been adapted to new creative uses. Kitchen-Play, which features molds of turkeys, fish, bread, etc. for the very youngest cooks, plus menu planning and serving ideas as instructive. New hobby kits use Play-Stone, the formulation of natural clays by a Chinese chemist, which dries in paintable form without firing. Cool Jewels use Play-Stone to make ecologically correct costume jewelry. Roll-Away Cars use Play-Stone to create custom made car designs that really roll.

Formats of new games have broad age appeal. In tune with the jet age is Flight Captain by E.S. Lowe, a round-the-world jet racing game where every player is captain of a fleet of 747's. Yahtzee, a classic chance-taking favorite, has a fast paced new version, Triple Yahtzee. Haad to Head speeds up the fun of word game playing by dividing the board in half. Players build words crossword style simultaneously against a timer. Brainstorm is an intriguing new version of TicTacToe.

The fascination of the Juke Box has been recruited to interest children in reading. Storytime Juke Box plays favorite tales, as children turn the pages of a colorful story book, presenting the precise words of the narrative.

New on the ecological front is Smokey Bear Patrol Kit by Tonka, which includes Mokey, his forest ranger friend and jeep. Other Smokey kits include camping setups. Smokey's animal friends, and forest travel and fire-fighting trucks. See-A-Show has added "Tom and Jerry Discover Ecology" to its roster of popular cartoon features.

Have A Safe Christmas Check Lighting System

Millions of Americans are soon to begin their annual purchases of tree-trimming and decorative materials. However, the prevailing holiday atmosphere always overshadows one essential aspect of a completely Merry Christmas: electrical safety.

At no other time of the year are as many potentially hazardous electrical fixtures and flammable materials used in the home. Therefore, at no other time of the year do as many people leave themselves so susceptible to open disaster, whether it be loss of life or property.

As a public service, Underwriters' Laboratories, a not-for-profit organization testing for public safety, would like to offer the following safety suggestions in order that you may have a more complete holiday season.

Don't overload circuits.

Don't work on light strings while plug is still connected.

Don't stretch string lights or extension wiring.

Don't use string lights or extensions outdoors unless the attached label specifies you may do so.

Don't use flood lights on or near flammable material.

Don't place electrical fixtures within a child's accessibility.

Do buy only UL labeled string lights and cords.

Do inspect all wiring insulation for possible deterioration, especially if it has been stored for an indefinite period.

Do use rubber light socket gaskets where provided and replace if needed.

Do make certain lamps are not loose in their sockets.

While not seeking to minimize the importance of any of the above points, perhaps two should be stressed: overloads and physical inspections.

Overloads are primarily created by placing more current on a wire than it can handle but not enough to cause a fuse to blow. At Christmas this is usually due to placement of too many bulbs on a single extension cord. Result: overheating; melting insulation; exposed wire; shock, electrocution or fire.

Always look for the capability of the wiring supplying the lighting.

Examination of insulation is a minor task but one of major importance. Wiring that has been stored in attics or cellars for a long period of time can become vulnerable to the elements. Consequently, varying temperatures can easily affect the insulation to the point of being incapable of serving its protective purpose.

If you will attempt to follow the do's and don'ts we have given, you'll certainly make your Christmas merry and, more important, safer.

GENERAL ELECTRIC'S new Cleanline (TM) glass-ceramic cooktop is a smooth, one-piece built-in unit with no dirt or grease collecting cracks or crevices. Spills wipe up with a paper towel, and when it is not being used for food preparation the glass-ceramic surface provides additional countertop work space. Available from Landwehr's Home Appliances, Arlington Heights.

Class-Ceramic Cooking Top

An easy to clean glass-ceramic cooking top on which the homemaker can use any reasonably flat pot or pan has been introduced by General Electric.

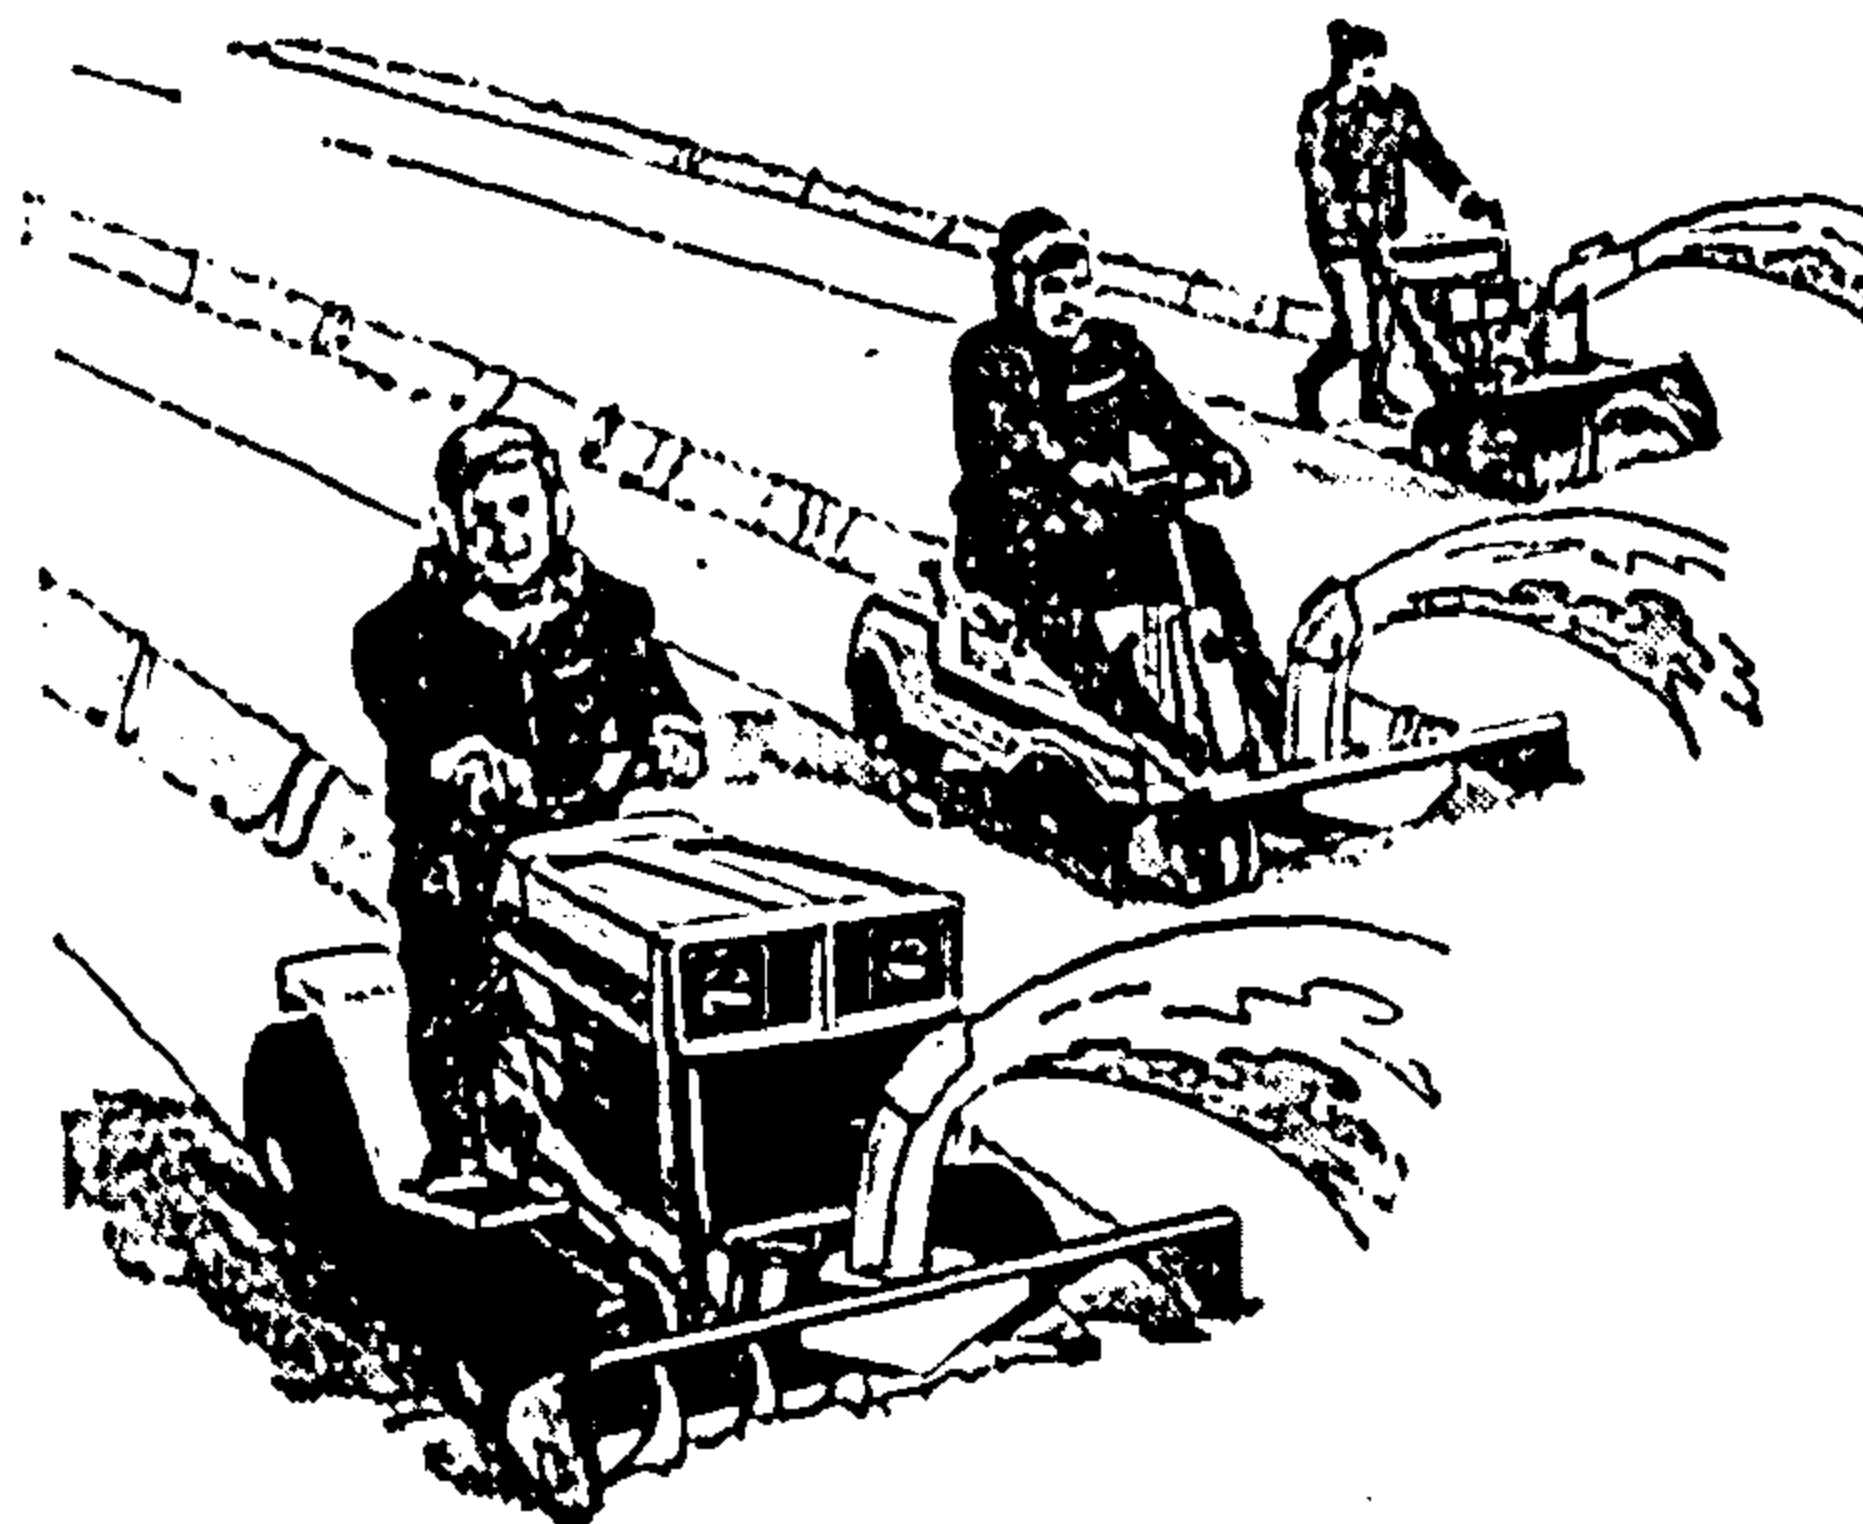

The new Cleanline cooking top, Model JP90, is a smooth, one-piece electric built-in unit with no dirt or grease collecting cracks or crevices. Spills wipe up with a paper towel, and when it is not being used for food preparation the glass-ceramic surface provides additional countertop work space.

Unlike earlier glass-ceramic cooking tops, the GE model does not require the use of special pots and pans to obtain satisfactory cooking results.

Cooking areas on the off-white smooth top are indicated by a special Sunburst design which turns yellow when in use. Infinite heat rotary controls for each surface pattern permit a full range of cooking temperatures, and individual indicator lights provide an added measure of safety.

Temperature limiting controls on the under-surface heating elements automatically turn the units off under no-load conditions, such as might occur if a utensil were removed with the heat left on, to prevent damage to the ceramic surface.

Stuffed Animals Remain Favorite Of All Ages

Regardless of the divergence of buyers and their reasons, it seems the stuffed toy will continue to reign as the monarch in the toy industry for many years to come.

There is a group of collectors made up entirely of the fairer sex, ranging from teen-agers to matrons in their sixties. They may own as few as one or as many as thirty toy animals. One manufacturer questioned several professionals on the psychological motivations behind this puzzling market development.

The answer was surprisingly fundamental: In every big girl, there is an element of the little girl, and that the stuffed toy pays attention to this element. Not so fundamental is the explanation that women, as well as men, felt a stronger security in their Teddy Bear days although men don't as readily manifest their desire to return.

For still other women, the stuffed toy in part provides the means for a woman to "play the kitten." These women pay, or have an admirer pay, anywhere from $5 to $30 per toy copy. For some inexplicable reason tigers seem to be the number one favorite of this group. It has been suggested that this can be construed as symbolic of the predatory instincts of a female on the prowl.

Let's see who some of these women are: a swinging divorcee of 62 has a baker's dozen of stuffed monkeys and is badgering her current beau for a toy poodle (about $25 worth); an attractive secretary for a weekly magazine has a menagerie of some twenty-five assorted animals, most of which were supplied by various males who apparently enjoy drawing out the little girl in this big girl; a model just in from England says that life in the States would be much fuller if she had not left her stuffed-animals collection at home; and a New Jersey teen-ager states that her collection of 30 Princeton tigers is "ultimately cool."

Don't think that men haven't caught on to the magic charm of the stuffed animal. With many, the traditional bouquet of flowers is taking a back seat to the stuffed toy gift. Many men have learned that there is no better way to cool angry female tempers, whether it's because of a forgotten birthday or after a night out with the boys.

Safety Precautions For Buying Toys

CHICAGO (UPI) — Keep joy in the gifts you give to children by following these tips from the National Safety Council:

—Consider the age and abilities of the child and select your gift accordingly.

—Look for an Underwriters' Laboratories label on electrical toys.

—Watch out for playthings that have points, sharp edges or removable parts, especially for little ones.

—Popular rocket and "shooting" toys can put eyes out. Give them only to older children who can understand their danger.

A New Twist: 'Pivot Pool'

Since the game of pool was first introduced in America, players have been adding on to the rules "to make things more interesting."

Nothing done to date can compare with the new pool game from Milton Bradley. It's called Pivot Pool. The cue stick has been changed to an automatic pivoting shooter that's attached to the pool table.

The shooter pivots a full 360 degrees to allow players to aim at any ball, anywhere on the table. You just aim and adjust it for hard or soft shots, position the cueball, and let fly.

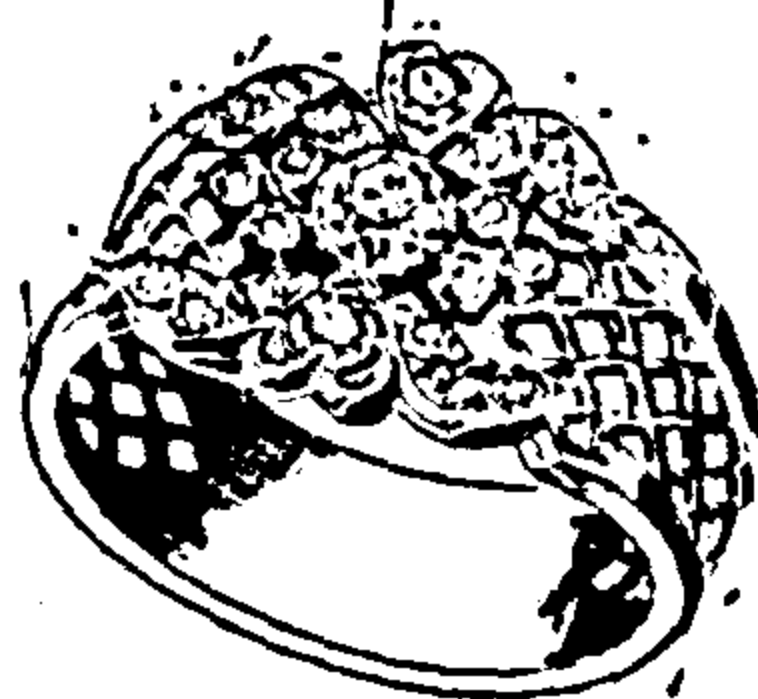

In addition, Milton Bradley has tried to fulfill the dreams of families who've always wanted a pool table at home, but don't have the room. Pivot Pool features a satisfying big pool table (19' x 32½") that fits easily into any family or rec room.

The table top is green felt, with two-tone wood grain finish on the frame and sides. Lively, built-in table bumpers provide shooting excitement for old hands and amateurs alike.

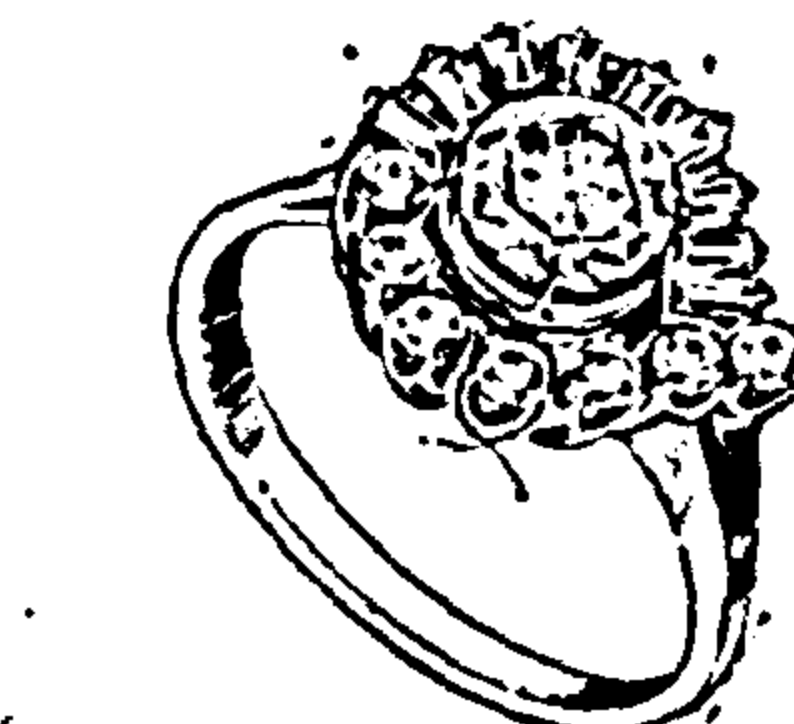

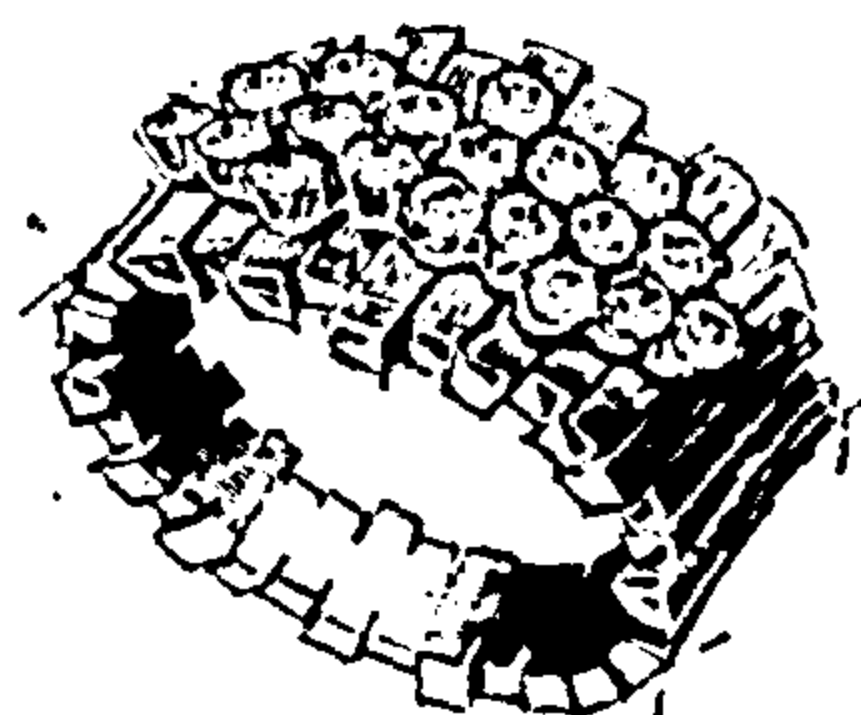

When the game is over, an automatic ball return brings the 16 balls back really fast. Then you just rack 'em up. Pivot. Aim. And shoot.

For many evenings of family entertainment. For parties. Or long Saturday afternoons. Now that there's Pivot Pool, life should be a lot more interesting.

Greeting card history offers a clue to Santa evolution as a holiday symbol.

The theme of Santa Claus was conspicuously absent from most nineteenth century Christmas cards, points out Miss Esther Mooney, curator of the Norcross Historical Collection. Early cards frequently favored children and flowers.

When Santa did appear occasionally on a greeting card, it was generally in the form of a dour, rather sad-faced Father Christmas, robed in a monk's blue garb and long gray beard, or as "Saint Santa," a semi-religious figure developed from St. Nicholas.

These were a far cry from the rotund, red-cheeked Santa depicted on Christmas greeting cards of today.

The modern Santa, fat and friendly, began to emerge at the turn of the century, and about 1909 he appears on a Christmas card. Here he is shown mounted on a hobby horse, rather than a reindeer-drawn sleigh.

The card shows him wearing the now-familiar red jacket, but his trousers still were blue. His stern expression, however, has given way to a slight whimsical smile, brightening his white-bearded, cherub-like face.

The concept of the reindeer sleigh was a still later addition in greeting card history. The early Santa walked with a wheelbarrow or carried his toys in a straw basket attached to his back, or rode a horse.

Today, a jolly Santa Claus, his originally blue robe changing to red, and riding his now traditional reindeer sleigh, is a dominating Christmas card theme.

Nature Supplies Tree Ornaments

Acorns were among decorations for the first Christmas trees. In the country, acorns were plentiful, small, lightweight and cost absolutely nothing. Gathering them became a happy holiday event.

ST. NICHOLAS, who precoded Santa as a Christmas gift giver, was pictured on an 1870 greeting card as a monk-like figure.

Give The Gift Of Light

The holidays come at the darkest time of the year. Thus, it is especially suitable to celebrate them with the brilliant and beautiful gift of light.

Holidays bring the fullest use of the house at any time of the year — with the most people and the most activities. A stroll through your home will show many dim corners where new fixtures would most brighten and enhance for enjoyment of the holidays, and the rest of the year.

A lost corner of the living room can be turned into an appealing conversational corner with a wall-mounted Colonial or Mediterranean lantern.

An old-fashioned fixture over the dining table might well be replaced with a shimmering new crystal chandelier, glittering on a well-laden table.

A dim bedroom could be dramatically personalized with a pair of gleaming brass sconces, or a low-hanging pendant, or other fixture.

Fixture designs have traveled far in recent years, as they have progressed from simply utilitarian to a wide range of decorative expressions.

The visitor to the Center will find a complete selection of all styles and sizes in lighting, for specific rooms and decors.

Contemporary decors may be accented with the sculptured beauty of smoked-glass globes, framed in mirror chrome. Traditionalists may select the glowing graciousness of Williamsburg brass, often a direct reproduction of Colonial styles. And more informal tastes (and rooms) will enjoy the rustic warmth of wrought-iron or colorful acrylic domes — a flash of pizzazz.

Candy Ornaments Kids Can Make

Making old-fashioned tree ornaments and house decorations is a stimulating project that will provide youngsters with hours of amusement during the holiday season. The handmade bells, trees and angles they create add an old-fashioned warmth to the Christmas scene, enriching the meaning and spirit of the season for everyone in the family.

A cheerful decoration for doors or chandeliers is a shiny cluster of silver bells made from paper cups, aluminum foil and ribbon. The swinging bell clappers are Tootsie Pops that can be unwrapped and enjoyed as a snack when the decorations are taken down.

These Christmas craft ideas for children were designed by home economists for the Tootsie Roll Family Food and Party Institute.

How to Make Candy Tree Ornaments

Materials: Tootsie Flavor Rolls, Candy Berries, Fruit Fills, Black Crows, Sour Drops, cardboard, gold or silver cord.

Equipment: Rolling pin, sharp scissors and double boiler.

Directions: Draw desired pattern shape — tree, bell, candle, angel — on three-inch cardboard squares, then cut out. Melt three vanilla Flavor Rolls in double boiler. Use melted Flavor Roll as "glue" to attach cord looped to top of cardboard ornament.

Flatten Flavor Rolls in other desired colors and flavors on cutting board, using rolling pin. Cut into shapes needed to form ornament's design with scissors. Complete design using Berries, Drops, Crows and other candies. Affix all candy to cardboard with vanilla Flavor Roll "glue."

How to Make Silver Bells

Materials: Seven paper cups in various sizes, aluminum foil, seven Tootsie Pops, ribbon and large bow.

Equipment: Skewer, scissors and stapler.

Directions: Use skewer, or scissors point, to punch hole in bottom center of each cup. Cut out seven strips of aluminum foil, each three inches wider than depth of cups. Wrap foil around each cup, tucking in edge at top and folding neatly over bottom. (Make certain the hole remains open.)

Candy ornaments 2-4 1/2" tall

Cut seven strips of ribbon in varying lengths from six to twelve inches. Run one length through hole in cup bottom, pull to inside and tie double knot around middle of Tootsie Pop stick. Push end of stick back through the hole and bend about one-half inch of stick end to secure pop inside cup as bell "clapper."

Place a band of ribbon around outside of cup to form design, secure edges by stapling. Complete remaining cups and staple tops of ribbons together, arranging bells to hang attractively at varying levels. Attach a large bow to ribbon tops, concealing ends, and hang on door or from chandelier.

Gifts For The Home

There's no place like home for gifting this holiday season.

There's no place like the jewelry store for finding all the excitement that's a splendid part of the yuletide, asserts Jewelry Industry Council.

China is a Christmas acquisition that does any home proud. Whatever pattern is chosen — the exquisitely simple, a fine border design, the delicately floral or the all-enveloping modern designs — china surrounds every meal with matchless beauty and grace.

Extra place settings and extra special serving dishes in the homemaker's chosen pattern will brighten her table long after the Christmas lights have been extinguished.

Clear and sparkling shafts of crystalware do their beautiful best to transform a simple meal into a spectacular banquet.

Unusual gifts for this year's up-to-the minute gifter are starkly simple and towering centerpieces of crystal, vases in weighty "massed" designs and holiday hued compotes on elaborately sculptured pedestals.

More beautiful table gifts to come out of Santa's generous pack are candlesticks of crystal and silver, long-lasting butane candles in decorator colors, delicate fine china figurines.

Gifts for the home that please Santa himself and make him the host of the season include bar accessories, coasters, smoking accessories. A cigarette box, unusual ash trays, a striking table or desk lighter are other home gifts that are high on Santa's list.

All over the house, the spirit of Christmas moves in time with the merry tick of a gift clock.

There are pendulum clocks for the hall, period or modern decorator clocks for the living room, designs for desk and den, homey clocks for the kitchen and a wide array of clocks for the bedroom, ranging from the tiny antique alarm clock to the elegant clock radio.

Create Clay Ornaments

The tradition of the Christmas tree spread from Germany through Europe and England to America. It is a symbol of the Christmas season.

For an old fashioned tree, decorate it with nothing but hand crafted ornaments. When you make your own ornaments, you not only have an economical advantage, but also a creative satisfaction and a helpful way to involve children in the Christmas preparations.

one-pound package). Stir in 1 1/4 cups cool water until smooth. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly, and continue to heat until mixture reaches a moist mashed potato consistency.

Turn out on a plate, cover with a damp cloth and let play clay cool. When cool, knead as you would dough for a smooth mixture.

Store it now for later use or roll out to a 1/4 inch thickness on waxed paper. Cut out a variety of shapes, making a hole in each for later hanging with string or yarn. Set ornaments aside on a protected surface to dry completely at room temperature. One batch of play clay is enough mixture for about 20 ornaments.

Prepare a batch of play clay, roll it and cut into ornamental shapes to be painted when dry. If your schedule tends to be rushed at holiday time, prepare the clay mixture ahead of time. It stores well when kept in a cool, dry place wrapped tightly in plastic wrap or bags.

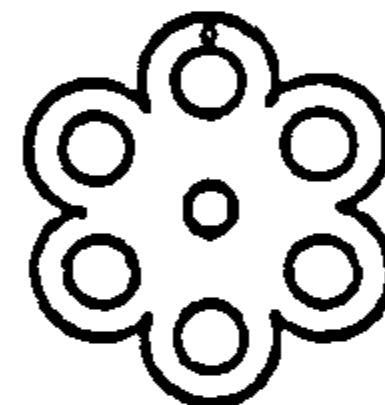

When the time comes, get the children to help cut out the shapes, using cookie cutters or paper patterns, and to do the painting when the shapes dry.

To make play clay, thoroughly stir together in a saucepan one cup Argo corn starch and two cups of baking soda (a

Use your imagination for the decorating. Play clay may be painted with water colors, poster paints or felt-tip pens. Before the clay has hardened, texture may be added by scoring with a knife or grooving with a fork. Bits of play clay in small cut out shapes can be added to the ornaments by dampening pieces slightly before joining or glue them on when dry.

Press in glitter, bits of shiny costume jewels, foil, or cloves for a unique effect. When decorating is complete and paint is dry, add a sheen and protective finish with a clear plastic spray or clear nail polish.

Nail Down The Gift List

Santa's elves aren't the only ones hammering out Christmas presents these days. Chances are that father is at the workbench too, because handmade gifts are now more popular than ever.

As everything becomes more computerized, we seem to appreciate the personal touch more and more. The satisfaction gained by the person who makes something with his own two hands is real — and so is the relief to the family budget at holiday time.

For all these reasons, father is well advised to join the giftmakers today. Here are a few ideas for starters.

The simplest carpentry skills suffice for making shelves, and if there's one thing a house can always use more of, that's it. Freestanding bookcases, stained or painted to suit a particular room, are always welcome.

Line every wall of a study or family room, and there's an instant library. Not enough books to use one? Fill the empty shelves with flowers or small statues until the books accumulate — which they will, at a surprising rate.

Boxes with hinged lids are easy to make. Small ones lined with velvet make pretty jewelry boxes. Large ones lined with contact paper become blanket chests. Add partitions, and you have a tiny button box or a silver chest.

Children always need another toy chest. Cooks need spice chests. Even carpenters need storage chests for nails and drills and other small parts.

Father might enjoy making simple furniture such as a picnic bench. Great for the patio. A smaller version would be a superb game table for the children's room. A still smaller version might be just the thing for a granddaughter's dollhouse.

Is Dad handy with a jigsaw? He can make a custom jigsaw puzzle out of a favorite picture. Have the picture blown up to poster size, mount on plywood and cut into puzzle shaped pieces.

A blown-up photo affixed to cork with good spray adhesive makes a unique dart board. Draw on the concentric circles for target, and throw in some darts.

When is father going to do all this cutting and sawing and nailing and painting? He'll make time for his pet projects by saving time wherever possible.

Modern convenience foods are a big help here. Carnation Instant Breakfast mixed with fresh whole milk gives a bacon-and-egg kind of energy in just a few minutes. Dad can take it to the workbench and keep right on going . . . till he's nailed down the entire Christmas list.

'Uniworld' Toys Depict Home-Lifestyles Abroad

Aurora Products Corp. has announced the marketing of its unique new line of "Uniworld" Toys in selected department stores in the U.S. Uniworld Toys were developed in concert with the United States Committee for UNICEF, which is receiving a share of the purchase price of the toys.

Uniworld are the first toys ever distributed under license from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. They depict the home-life styles, customs and activities of people in all parts of the world.

In its "Bam-Beano" World sets, Aurora has created a special new world for children featuring miniature and distinctive figures of the people of many lands which are squeezable and cuddly.

"Bam-Beano" sets are packaged in typical little "homes" with hinged or sliding doors and a carrying handle — a Spanish hacienda, an Eskimo igloo, an African grass hut, and others — along with unique accessories such as an elephant seat or Eskimo kayak, typical wooden animals and a distinctive sound — a bell, a horn or chimes.

The "Mary-Many-Face" dolls change their outfits and moods with a flip of a finger, from a pert and pretty African girl to a saucy Spanish senorita to a kimono-clad Oriental youngster. Other Uniworld items include "Center Ring Circus," where six little acrobats from as many nations perform on trapeze, high wire and parallel bars.

Uniworld activity sets include a U.S. and a giant international "Color 'n Glue Map" which comes with "stick-on" people, "stick-on" animals and "stick-on" flags. Also, "Color 'n Dress" dolls allow youngsters to design fashions for three charming wooden dolls — 12 outfits with matching accessories.

Uniworld Toys were developed by Aurora's product development staff with guidance from prominent children's specialists at the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. They are designed to help teach values such as brotherhood, understanding and cooperation while the child is having fun. Each Uniworld package lists the goods or services that UNICEF can buy with its portion of the price of the toy.

Treat Your Feathered Friends

Berries are a treat for many birds.
Bunch sprigs of berries into clusters and tie them on the tree with red waterproof ribbons. Bright red holly or dogwood berries, pewter gray bayberry, brilliant orange mountain ash, slate blue juniper or dark red sumac can be used. To give the the birds a real holiday treat, tie on tiny bunches of fresh grapes.

Keep bread and cracker crumbs, stale corn bread, rolls or biscuits, melon, squash and pumpkin seeds, pieces of suet and bacon fat.

The remnants of poultry dressing, cereals that are no longer crisp, stale po-into chips or the few peanuts left in a can can also be used. To make the pudding, melt the suet and bacon fat, add some peanut butter and crumble and stir in the other ingredients.

Some of this mixture can be put in star-shaped pudding molds to harden.
When they are solid, remove the molds, run a piece of heavy florist's wire through each and make a loop to hang on the tree.

This pudding can also be put in pine cones. Choose cones with spaces between the scales and fill the crevices solidly with the pudding mixture. Then hang them on the tree.

Mini-Oven Lets Hostess Enjoy The Party, Too

Whether it's a tree-trimming party, a Saturday for viewing the College All-Stars or Super Bowl Sunday, vite-size snacks make everything more fun for everyone, especially the hostess. The secret — preparing foods ahead of time and letting guests fix their own.

Eye-appeal is almost as important as taste when planning a buffet, so choose foods with both — crunchy vegetables for dipping, an assortment of cheeses and crackers, wedges of apples, pears and other fruits and, of course, some hot snacks for rest-up or half-time nibbling.

Here's where an appliance such as the GE Toast-R-Oven toaster really comes into its own. It preheats in just two minutes and will bake frozen canapes, individual little meat pies, all kinds of beautiful breads and just about anything else you might want on the spot and, in most instances, at the same times and temperatures used for conventional oven baking.

There's even a special "top brown" setting that's perfect for browning English muffins so guests can make their own little pizzas. Because it's portable and mini-size, you can put the appliance right out on the buffet and eliminate all that running back and forth to the kitchen.

So, the next time there's a gathering at your house, just set out the ingredients, plug in your mini-oven — and join them.

Try these snacks:

One-Bite Cheese Puffs

- 4 slices toast
- 1 egg white, stiffly beaten
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup stuffed green olives, drained and chopped
- 2 tablespoons grated nuts (optional)

paprika

Turn toast color selector to Top Brown. Cut each slice toast into 4 pieces.

Combine egg white, mayonnaise, cream cheese, olives and nuts. Spread on toast pieces. Sprinkle with paprika. Place on oven tray and set tray on toaster rack. Press control knob down and cook one to two Top Brown cycles, until lightly browned. Yield: 16 puffs.

Tomato Hors D'Oeuvres

- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 cup buttered bread crumbs
- 2 teaspoons basil
- 1/2 teaspoon onion salt
- 18 cherry tomatoes

Turn toast color selector to Top Brown. Mix together cheese, bread crumbs, basil and onion salt. Cut cherry tomatoes in half, and dip cut surface into crumb mixture to coat. Place coated side up on oven tray and set tray on toaster rack. Press control knob down and heat for two Top Brown cycles. Let tomatoes cool and serve with toothpicks. Yield: 36 hors d'oeuvres.

Table Decorations

Add instant fun into any of your holiday meals. Using a red tablecloth (or red felt), you put everyone in a holiday mood.

Some greenery (pine, fir branches) provides a festive look.

Napkins tucked in holders that look like St. Nick are easy to make: cut 3" lengths of giftwrap paper, paper towels, etc.; cover lower 2/3 of each tube with a strip of red paper, the upper third with pink paper. Add "belt" cut from colored plastic tape or draw on. Paste bow-tie under chin, paste strip of cotton above the forehead as hatband.

FROM TODDLER to teen-ager, Alexander Graham Bell's invention fascinates children of all ages. Hi Dottie carries on conversations with her young companion. Hi Dottie repeats one of 12 different phrases at random each time the hand set is squeezed. There is an authentic-looking telephone for the girl, a smaller version for Hi Dottie.

New Play Action Dolls Imitate Life Activities

Play action dolls are those which simulate real life activities, and are often a child's initial exposure to situations they will experience as they grow. Hi Dottie, for example, designed for three to eight year olds, helps familiarize the child with the telephone and telephone etiquette. Hi Dottie is 17 inches tall, and has a small telephone which she can place to her ear. The doll's voice unit is activated by a pneumatic bellows contained in the hand set of a second telephone, to be used by the child. Each time the hand set is squeezed, the doll repeats one of 12 different phrases at random.

Baby Play-A-Lot provides for a multitude of play action activities. The doll's right arm moves up and down, while her left arm moves horizontally and her head moves. Packaged with all the requisite accessories, the 15 inch action doll appears to groom her hair, brush her teeth, handle a knife, fork and spoon, play with her own pull-string toy and host a tea party.

The importance of dolls for boys has often been overlooked. Psychiatrists agree that young boys can derive as much benefit from doll play as girls.

Big Jim, and his friend Big Jack, personify the active, athletic life. These two action dolls can engage in a wide variety of activities . . . pass a football, shoot a basketball, play soccer, go scuba diving and much more. And now Big Jim and Big Jack can enjoy the outdoors with Big Jim's Camper. It is complete with camp chairs, a stove, ice chest, a rope climb and a boat and young boys can bring much of the adventure and excitement of the outside world into their own backyards.

The great interest in fashion dolls, as shown by the unparalleled success of the Barbie line, is a continuing phenomenon in the doll industry. Barbie and her friends can be used as appealing constructive examples of correct behavior, grooming and appearance for growing daughters, Mattel experts point out.

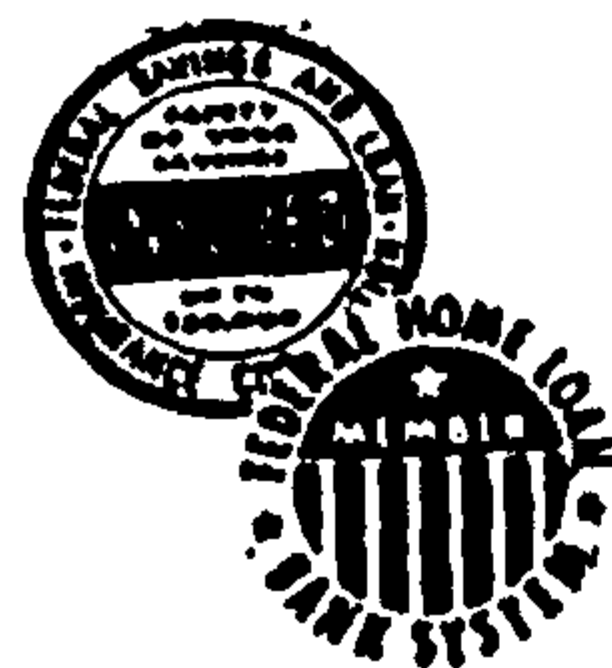

When a little girl is concerned with her Barbie's hair, clothes and etiquette, a mother can use that interest and initiate some early training in those same areas.

The Barbie Beauty Center is a perfect aid for encouraging a girl's interest in proper hair and skin care. An almost life-sized Barbie grooming head has an extendable ponytail, which can be combed, brushed and set in rollers in many styles. Other accessories include a cosmetic case, with a comb, brush, barrettes, bows and toiletry articles.

Mattel Enforces Quality Control On All Toys

To guide a line of toys past numerous stages of research, testing, manufacturing and marketing is to gamble thousands of dollars and hours . . . and success or failure depends upon how many small hands reach for a certain product on the toy shelves of America.

That challenge is one that is taken each year by the staff of Mattel's Wheels and Wings Division.

Dareplane introduces an entirely new concept — indoor, controlled airplane flying. Dareplane flies either in a seven- or ten-foot diameter around a control pylon. By operating the two levers on the control module, which is outside the Dareplane's flying diameter, the child can control the plane's speed and elevation. The plane can take off, loop, dive, stunt and land.

Following basic research and development, preliminary design gives physical appearance to the new products. After the success of its line of electric-powered Sizzlers cars, Mattel designers conceived a line of similarly driven three wheeled motorcycles, called Chopcycles. With removable riders, the Chopcycles can run on Fat Track or on the floor. There are four versions of Chopcycles designed by Mattel artists, Bruiser Cruiser, Speed Steed, Mighty Zork and the Blown Torch.

After preliminary sketches are transformed into three dimensional mockups, a one-of-a-kind hand sample is made to undergo a wide variety of tests.

A concern for safety is the basis for many of the tests. A new product must not only be safe in normal use, but any foreseeable misuse.

The Vertibird, for example had to pass many safety tests before any production could begin. Vertibird is a small helicopter tethered to the center of the Power Pylon. With one control unit, the youngster can maneuver Vertibird like a real helicopter. The Vertibird hovers over a miniature astronaut in a life raft and picks him up, much as in real life.

Safety testing of Vertibird, like that of all new Mattel products, is rigorous. None of the component parts, such as the astronaut, life raft or landing pad can be small enough to swallow. There must be no sharp edges that can cut tender skin. Repeated design refinements and subsequent testing assured that the helicopter's rotor blades do not cause damage when even the smallest finger is placed in them.

A variety of other tests, for reliability, for stress, for quality control and other product aspects are then conducted.

One of the most productive forms of preliminary market research is taking the product to the experts — children. Watching from behind one-way mirrors, and listening to hidden microphone conversations, market research analysts posed new product.

Aquarius Diving School Offers Full Instruction

If you are looking for an unusual gift that keeps on giving all year long, Aquarius Diving School has the answer: diving lessons.

"This is the best time of the year to learn," explains Robert Major, curriculum director of the school. "You learn in a heated pool and by the time spring arrives you are fully certified to take advantage of places in the area for diving." The area offers quarries, small lakes and Lake Michigan for underwater adventure.

Aquarius Diving School is a member of the National Association of Skin Diving Schools. The school uses the facilities of the Arlington Park Towers pool for instruction.

The courses offered include programs for youth, pre-scuba ages 9-14, basic scuba certification, senior diving certification and specialty courses in cave, night and ice diving and underwater photography.

The cost of the course is $70 ($50 for students) which includes pool instruction, lectures, certification, membership in program and open water dives with accompaniment of instructor or dive master. The course includes seven three hour sessions. A unique aspect of the school is the individual instruction. Class size is limited to four people and usually consists of only two when possible. When you are certified, the school guides you in the purchase of the necessary equipment and is a certified dealer of such equipment.

Students who certify are qualified for Club Aquarius, a national organization that sponsors trips to diving areas all over the world. Membership also gives the person a discount on all trips and equipment. Monthly meetings are held that feature films and lectures on the subject of diving.

Major explains, "The main purpose of the school is to introduce the person to the last frontier open to man — the sea. Once you learn the basic skills," he claims, "there is a tranquil feeling you get from the sea, the beauty of the underwater world is to be seen and a possible career in diving. Basically though, it is the enjoyment that keeps people diving."

If you are hesitant about diving or have any questions at all, Major suggests you come down to the pool and talk with him, see the layout and then decide. He is available seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at Arlington Park Towers' pool area.

A Clockwise Christmas

Happy hours and precious moments are both included when the Christmas gift is a clock. Traditionally the gift of kings and queens, clocks today are favorite Christmas presents for many.

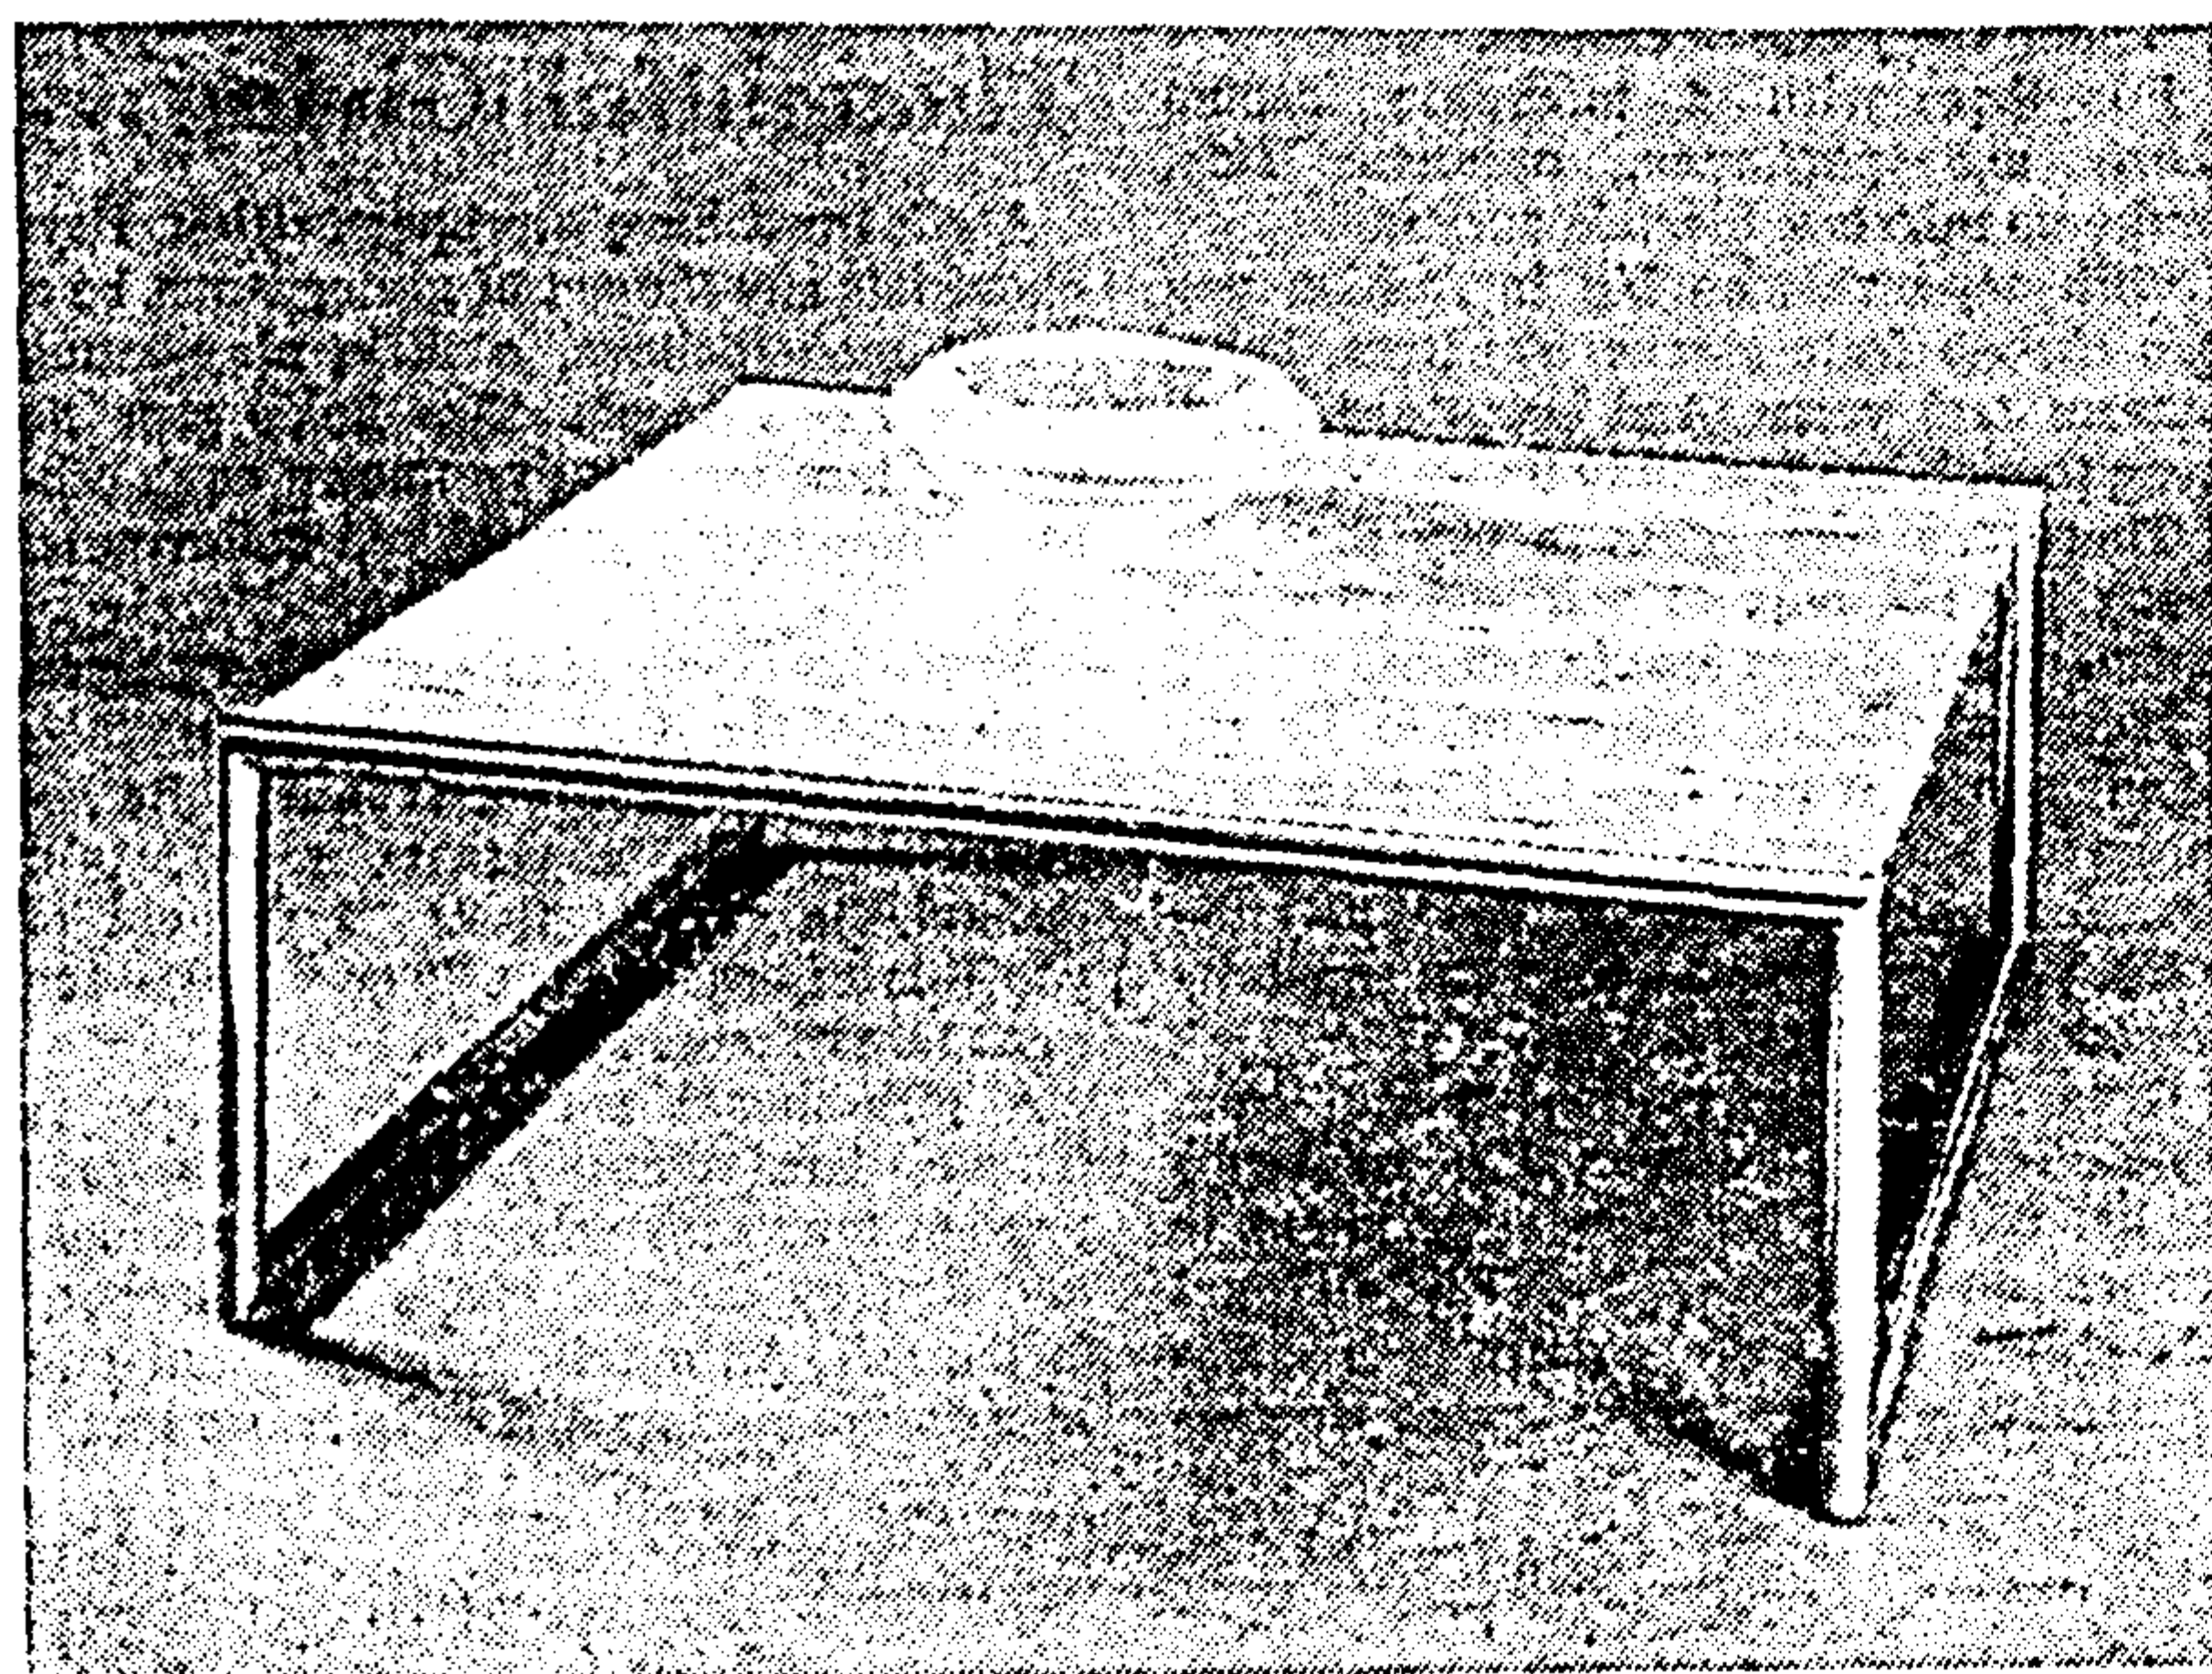

At least one good, accurate clock is a necessity in the home but convenience suggests a good clock for every room in the house.

In going over the gift list, remember that dad's den could use a desk clock, a timekeeper in the kitchen might be mom's favorite, an alarm clock for the sluggish teen-ager might stop early morning hassles and any child that's just learning to tell time would be thrilled with a clock of his very own.

Because clocks are consulted so frequently most people have very personal feelings about them. One woman, whose family frequently moves, doesn't feel that her new home is really settled until her traditionally styled clock is hung and working. The quieting ticktock and gentle reminder of the hourly strike stands, for her, for stability and continuity.

The most impressive gifts can be modern decorator clocks freed within the past few years with the addition of battery-operated movements. Contemporary styles, especially digital clocks that read out the numbers, give up-to-the-moment looks to modern digs. Many current styles are reflections of the clocks of times past, adding the final decorating touch to a period room.

BLONDES ARE BACK in contemporary home furnishings. This cocktail table, a gift suggestion for the home, is a proud example with its handsome northern elm top with natural dis-crossing. Tubular metal frame adds to its sophistication. It is 40 inches square and 15 inches high, at Peterson's Designer's Shop, Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

Gifts TO ENJOY

We've something for everyone . . . from luxurious pillows to snuggly ones for the teen-ager . . . from decorative accessories for bath and boudoir from our Golden Dolphin Bath Shop . . . to great stocking stuffers and grab bag gifts like our Christmas fingertip towels and soaps in all scents.

Gift Ideas For Women

What sort of holiday gifts bring a glow to the eyes of every girl from six to 60? Anything you select, when it is offered with love and chosen after careful consideration for the kind of person she is.

So take notebook and pencil in hand and plan your Christmas list for the ladies — giving thought to the individual likes and interests of each. This precaution will help even the most timid man to look at home right in the center aisle of "ladies lingerie."

For the financially well-endowed, both the selection and the shopping itself are a simpler matter than for the average working chap.

There are diamonds, real pearls, mink and chinchilla hats, jackets and stoles and lots of trinkets in real gold. And the places where these are sold generally preclude the jostle of crowds.

For those with a moderate income there are perfumes, cosmetic aids, make-up mirrors, electric curlers.

With separates so big in fashion you can choose from slacks, sweaters, belts, blazers and vests. And boots are "big" even though her feet may be small.

There are some gifts to buy that will bring joy not only to you and your girl but to many others less fortunate.

Many wonderful things made by the blind come from the Lighthouse and make delightful gifts. There are scents, too, made by Flame of Hope and the price you pay goes to help the mentally retarded.

Gifts for women run the gamut from ornate earrings to valuable reference books, from ski togs and equipment to ranges and refrigerators. For the gal who dwells in a college dorm or a studio apartment posters make quick decorating tricks possible.

Handbags for daytime or evening are always welcome gifts.

Fake fur flies in the most unexpected fashion areas — from hats to jumpers to boots, vests and coats and will make a sure-fire hit with the ecology-minded miss.

If the most important lass on your yule list is about three-feet high how about a pretty party dress or a pint-sized fake fur coat? Or an at-home wear ensemble with matching slippers that will outshine mom's?

For girls of all ages there is a plethora of pretty holiday presents available. Team them with thought and love from you and a truly happy Christmas should be the result.

Thoughtful Giving...

A gift must have a proper setting. Psychologists say the act of giving must be a bit of make-believe, a little play-acting between two people. This holds true no matter how long you've known each other, or how unsentimental you believe you are.

Never hurriedly give something as you dash out of the door, or as a peace offering after an unpleasant moment. Be relaxed, establish a pleasant mood, talk around the subject first: "I thought of you this afternoon..." or "I saw the most marvelous..."

A gift should not create anxiety. A fragile, hard-to-care-for or easy-to-lose present may make the recipient anxious, and destroy most of his or her pleasure in the gift. An overly lavish present can also create anxiety and embarrassment.

Prepare For Holiday Clean-Ups

Since no one solution will be equally effective on all spots, because of the variety of textures, weaves and dyes in today's materials, part of your pre-holiday clean-up preparations probably will include a kit with different cleaners for treating food, ink, dye, oil, paint, gum and even pet stains.

The gay, but unstable colors in holiday wrapping paper and ribbons, or skirting around the tree will leave a stain on sofa or carpet when wet or moist. As quickly as possible, mop up the excess coloring and apply a synthetic cleaner specifically designed for fabrics.

Use the sponge-and-blot approach.

Lacking a first-aid cleaner, dampen the spot with water to dilute the discolorations and blot as long as moisture remains.

To remove candle drippings, scrape off the solid wax. If necessary, slice an ice cube in a plastic bag over the top to harden the wax, then peel off. If some substance remains and the fabric pile is not too deep, hold a blotter over the area, then use a warm iron to remove the spot. Spray on a solvent cleaner to take out the last trace of wax.

Gum and chewy candies also can be sprayed free with the same solvent-type solution.

Foot Care For Tired Shoppers

Armed with master lists, charge plates, and an extra reserve of energy, thousands of shoppers will soon start on holiday gift-buying rounds.

This Christmas, as always, the greatest burden of holiday shopping falls on the feet. Even without a load of packages, footcare experts at Scholl report, the average person brings down tons of weight onto the feet every day.

To help feet step lively and lightly along the department store circuit, the foot comfort people have these suggestions:

Get off to a fresh start by powdering feet liberally. Don't forget to spray powder on the insides of shoes and boots to keep feet dry and comfortable.

At the day's end, give feet a luxurious soak, adding a special preparation that will soothe and refresh skin.

Then "slip into something comfortable" that, at the same time, will give feet a lift. The new "shlipper," for example, a light-weight terry-covered cousin of the famous Scholl sandal, has a toe-relaxer crest that helps feet unwind. That's why the shlipper also makes a perfect Christmas stocking gift for other harried Santas.

Mini-Planes Developed For Junior Test Pilots

Testor's aeronautical engineers solved problems of safety, noise and size in designing the compact "Fly'Em," which requires a flying space of only a 20 foot circle (10' radius).

Almost eliminating irritating engine-noise pollution, the "Fly'Em" is equipped with a specially designed and built-in muffling device — for the neighbors — further eliminating the necessity of traveling away from home to open areas.

The "Fly'Em" is also equipped with Testor's new type "V" engine.

Made of crash resistant materials, the "Fly'Em" can perform acrobatic stunts hitherto reserved for the pro, such as strafing, dogfights and simulated aircraft carrier landings. An inadvertent nose dive won't ground the youthful test pilot from further flights.

"Fly'Em" requires no special or technical knowledge and can be enjoyed by both children and adults — or as a family hobby. A booklet with complete instructions for operation and for all maneuvers is given with each package.

Patterned after four famous World War II combatants, each bearing authentic markings, the "Fly'Em" series includes: The P-51 Mustang; P-40 Warhawk; Japanese Zero; and the Messerschmidt BF 109. A history of each of the four planes is detailed on the back of every package.

Testor spent several years developing these models to encourage non-professionals to take up the hobby. With model airplane clubs and national flying competitions becoming as numerous as automobile races, "Fly'Em" provides the junior pilot with an ideal "starter" to launch him on a spectacular national pastime.

"Fly'Em" measures 14 inches in wingspan with a fuselage length of 12-1/2 inches. The complete assembly, attractively packaged in red-white-and-blue, provides everything needed for immediate flying: battery, fuel, fuel funnel and control lines.

Perk Up Coffee Flavor

If you are one of the typical American real coffee lovers who drink about 750 cups a year, you'll probably agree that hardly anything can perk up your day better than a better-tasting cup of coffee. Here are some tips on making better coffee.

First, remember to always start with a really clean and "sweet" coffee pot. Coffee flavor is delicate, and a clean coffee maker preserves its natural flavor. Use a mild detergent to clean your coffee maker; or better yet, one of the already prepared coffee pot destainer products. Dip-It is the most popular.

Second, always use cold water when filling your percolator or other coffee maker. Percolators and drip pots are designed for cold water use.

Third, try placing one of the new "wraparound" coffee filters in the top of your coffee maker, before you add the correct measure of your favorite blend of coffee.

Using coffee filters is the newest basic step developed for getting better taste from any kind of coffee, made in any kind of coffee pot or percolator. Star coffee filters, the largest selling brand, are now available for little more than a penny each in supermarkets and other fine food stores nationally.

Here's how the filters work. When placed in the top of the percolator, they keep all of the coffee grounds, including the tiniest ones, from entering the brew and causing bitter taste in the coffee.

Recent discoveries showed that the tiniest coffee grounds when they fell into the brew were often causing bitterness. Why? The brewing part of the percolator gets up to 15 degrees hotter than proper flavor temperature, and the overheated tiny grounds secrete excess tannic acids, oils, and other distasteful elements. Coffee filters now prevent this bitterness.

Convenience is another welcome advantage to homemakers who regularly put a Star coffee filter in their coffee pots. After you pour out clear, full flavor cups of delicious coffee for your family, you simply dump out the entire "filter pack" of used coffee grounds into your trash receptacle. This saves you time, and helps you keep your filter basket clean.

Most important, your family and guests will wonder how in the world you consistently brew such excellent coffee.

Somehow Christmas gift lists get longer every year, don't they? The task of choosing the just-right gift for everyone — family, friends, office associates, the postman, the newspaper boy can be a mind-boggling one, to say the least.

Yet in the midst of all the Christmas-present confusion, there is one name that should be added to most of our lists — and one gift that not only will always be accepted with gratitude, but will also, in many cases, be worth twice what we paid for it.

The name is that of a college or university — and the gift is money.

Lionel Adds New Lines

Building on their tremendous sales success of 1971, Lionel will introduce two completely new train sets, including one with special playvalue features for beginners, as part of its 1972 line.

Called the Kickapoo Valley & Northern, the beginners' set highlights a new "Old West" styled dockside switcher engine, an operating dump car, gondola, caboose, eight curved tracks, two straight tracks and a 25 watt transformer. Despite its size, the set includes Lionel's powerful Pullmore motor.

Another new set, the Pioneer, also features the new dockside switcher locomotive. In addition, the set highlights special play value features such as an extended oval track layout with a manual switch and spur siding.

The locomotive features transformer controlled whistle, adding another dimension of reality to the set, hopper car, gondola, flat car with stakes, caboose, eight curved tracks, nine straight tracks, manual switch and 50 watt transformer.

A special feature added to the Allegheny, one of Lionel's famous "Sound of Steam" sets, is a transformer controlled whistle, adding another dimension of reality to the set.

Other Lionel sets included in the 1972 line are the Wabash Cannonball, Yardmaster, Silver Star, Allegheny, Santa Fe Express and Cross Country Express.

Added to Lionel's wide ranging line of accessories is the venerable "Hudson" 4-6-4 die cast locomotive with tender, featuring the "Sound of Steam" and transformer controlled whistle.

Samsonite Toys Introduces A Mini-Bike For Toddlers

Cycling has become a national pastime for millions of Americans. Pity the tiny toddler who looks with envy and awe at older brother and sisters or playmates because they're riding a two-wheeler, and he's peddling around on a tricycle.

Santa, with a little help from the engineers at Samsonite, can remedy that situation this Christmas by bringing a new two-wheeler designed specially for children as young as 1½ years.

This Mini-Bike sports super-wide barrel tires that provide the safety and stability needed by the very young child.

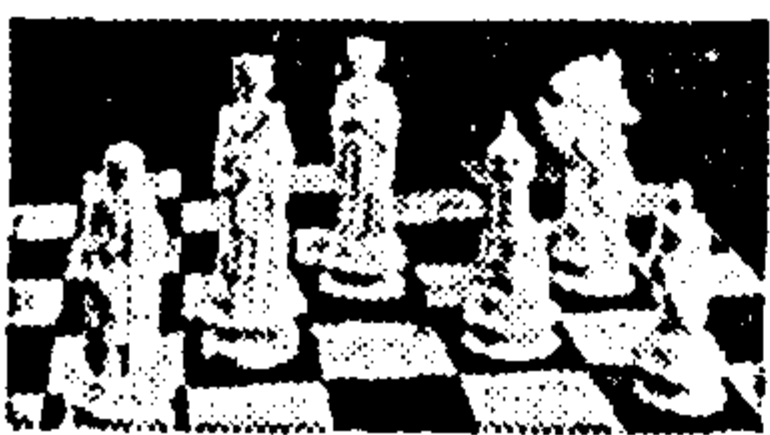

Imagine the delight on a toddler's face when he or she discovers this rugged two-wheel Mini-Bike under the tree Christmas morning. The child can jump on and begin to ride immediately because the wide blow-molded tires are equally at home indoors or out — even on sand and gravel.

While adult bike riders pedal to exercise and strengthen their legs, the mini-biker will get exercise and bouncing fun on the strong steel spring seat. He'll develop balance and coordination too while biking.

In bright red and black with white safety rubber hand grips, the Mini-Bike has a sturdy chrome tubular frame. It comes fully assembled (a fact that should please dads) and ready to ride.

Silver—Welcomed Gift Of Brides And Mothers

While the rest of the family's dreaming of a white Christmas, Dad can solve his gift problems this year with a sterling silver one.

There couldn't be a better time for entertaining such an idea, because both marriages and silver wedding anniversaries are soaring to unprecedented highs in 1972.

Many of the 2.3 million marriages predicted this year will occur during the holidays — for December's the third favorite month for weddings.

And no matter what month the silver anniversary's celebrated, Christmastime is sure to see a silver deluge for anniversary celebrants.

With such excellent reasons for gift-giving, the only thing remaining is for Dad to choose the "perfect" gift for both mother and daughter. And the problem couldn't be easier to solve.

Consider, for instance, the girl who's getting married. Chances are that she picked a sterling silver pattern even before she picked her favorite boy friend.

In fact, according to a recent magazine survey of teenage girls, the average age at which they actually begin to collect their sterling is 14.

This enthusiastic response can mean only one thing — sterling silver flatware is something the bride-to-be very much wants. And place settings are what she needs, first and foremost.

The parents' gift of enough place settings to meet her entertaining needs forms the basis for those special company meals she'll serve the rest of her life.

Even if she receives additional gifts of place settings from relatives or friends, the parents' gift gives her the security of a basic set upon which to build.

For mother, the gift solution could well be a serving piece to add to her set of sterling. Many of the women who are observing their silver anniversary this year did not receive sterling at the time of their marriage, for silver sets were in very short supply during and after the war.

They may have received — or bought for themselves — a few place settings in the succeeding years. Chances are, however, that they simply don't have enough of the serving pieces which are so important.

And there's nothing that spoils the looks of a pretty dinner table so much as the odds and ends of flatware which "make do" when company comes.

Now's the time to help correct this lack, for with the children grown, most women generally have more time — and incentive — for entertaining.

There are the essential serving pieces which are available in all sets of sterling: butter serving knife, tablespoon, cream or sauce ladle, gravy ladle, sugar spoon, and olive or pickle fork.

Others, which aren't used quite as often, but which add much to the looks of both dining and buffet tables, are: flat server, salad serving set, pierced table-spoon, pie or cake knife, cheese serving knife, and bon bon or nut spoon.

There's no generation gap when it comes to the appreciation of something as precious and beautiful as sterling silver — as any man who gives sterling flatware to the women in his life this Christmas is sure to discover!

Coordinate Him

Planning to give some guy a pair of slacks for Christmas? Adding a coordinated top, a shirt or a sweater, or both; will make the gift a thoughtful surprise.

Other additions are handkerchiefs, socks, a belt, a tie or neck handkerchief — all to go with the slacks.

Christmas Rituals From The Past

NEW YORK (UPI) — The beginnings of holiday rituals, from trees to Santa — according to Christmas historians:

—Christmas ornaments go back to the 10th century. An Arabian geographer, George Jacob, brought to the people of Europe the tale that on the night of the Lord's birth, all the trees burst forth with ripened fruits and blossoming flowers. The story spread until it was believed that this miracle had come to pass in memory of the birth of Christ. The legend led to the Christmas tree ornament.

—Martin Luther, some 400 years ago one cold Christmas Eve, lifted his eyes to the sky in contemplation. He saw that thousands of stars seemed to be clinging to the branches of the lofty pines by the wayside. His first thought: share this inspiring spectacle with his family. That night a glittering tree blazing with star-bright candles was Luther's gift to his loved ones — and a gift to the world. He is credited with cutting the first Yule tree and covering it with lights.

—Hanging stockings by the fireplace or someplace for surprise gifts is traced to New Amsterdam. The Dutch settlers brought their Old World customs. Ever a people to play, they chose a burgher to dress as St. Nicholas and had him distribute toys and sweets to the village children. He also filled stockings hung by the fireplace.

With him was a helper called Black Peter. The children shortened the name Nicholas to NIKlaus or Claus. The Spanish influence in the Netherlands changed saint to "santa" — hence Santa Claus.

—Mistletoe dates to the ancient Druids who populated Britain and Gaul before the time of Christ. The Druids practiced mystic ceremonies deep within the forests. Atop giant oaks they found a growing plant which drew its only life from the air — mistletoe.

They said it was heaven-sent and designated purity and love. They encouraged kissing under the mistletoe and used it in marriage ceremonies. To this day, stand under mistletoe and you're liable to get kissed!

—The original St. Nicholas, inspiration for the contemporary version of Santa Claus, was Archbishop of Myra in Asia Minor during the 4th century. This kindly cleric devoted his life to helping the poor.

Dealers Offer A Variety Of Trees For Decorating

WASHINGTON UPI — A Christmas Tree is a Christmas Tree. No matter how muggy December 25 may be in the South or blizzard-like in the North, the glamor of the tree is undimmed.

Most families put a Christmas tree high on the top of their holiday list. It may look like last year's. The same treasured baubles hang from the twigs. The lights may twinkle as before.

But who ever heard of Christmas Day without its own tree?

For about two-thirds of the buyers, Scotch pine is the favorite, and has been since 1962. It grows naturally into a shapely tree, becomes bushy with pruning, and in eight to 10 years of growth will measure in as a dense tree six-to-eight feet tall. Its three-inch blue-green needles grow in pairs, usually slightly twisted.

The Douglas fir, second in popularity, has needles about the same inch in length as the balsam fir, but they will grow all around the twig in dark yellow, green or blue green. The balsam has dark green needles, and both it and the Douglas fir are fragrant indoors.

Red or Norway pines have dark green, paired needles that can grow as long as six inches, but the tree is losing fans among the growers. Wet snow can bend branches or tear them from trees. Eastern and Western white pines have needles soft to the touch, dark blue green, and five to the cluster.

Spruces are long time favorites with buyers. They are bushy and cone-shaped. But once cut they tend to lose their needles, even though they are kept in water.

Norway spruce has lustrous green needles no more than an inch long, and since it is a slow grower for the first five years it makes an acceptable table tree.

White spruce holds its blue green needles better than other spruce and does not have the tar-like scent of other spruce and fir, but some persons are not pleased with the odor produced by their crushed needles.

Blue spruce, with its long, sharp bluish-white needles, will not mature for 12 to 18 years, and naturally is more expensive than other spruces.

Americans buy 35 million trees each Christmas to decorate their homes, churches, schools, and offices, according to the National Christmas Tree Growers Association. This generates $70 million on a wholesale level, $210 million retail, with the average price ranging around $6.

By comparison, the Forest Service estimated that last year 5 million artificial trees retailed for $75 million. Families who prefer the artificial trees argue in part that they are more convenient or ecologically preferable.

Growers, however, note that wood is a renewable natural resource, while materials used in artificial trees are not. Natural trees ultimately are biodegradable, unlike the artificial variety.

The National Christmas Tree Growers' Association offers some advice to buyers who must choose a tree already cut. Don't buy if a bent needle breaks, needles fall when the stump is bounced on the ground, and the cut stump is not moist and sticky. Otherwise, buy and enjoy the one you like best.

Jewelry—A Lasting Gift

Package your Christmas wishes in one spectacular gift and you'll make this a holiday season to remember, promises the Jewelry Industry Council. Precious gifts for your precious people is the spectacular gift match that does it.

Karat gold in all its abundant ways, warm, glowing and richly textured; sterling silver with its pristine shine; diamonds, rubies, emeralds, sapphires and cultured pearls: there's a triumph of jewelry designs available using any or all of these precious metals and gems. Surely some of them can bring happiness to Christmas stockings of your choice!

The women on your list are classically elegant and exceptionally aware of their flourishing femininity this yuletide. Grace them with the unmatched beauty of precious jewelry deservedly made for them.

In your favorite jewelry store you'll find such gifts happily representative of every budget in Santa's bag, from simple and delicate flower pins and budding earrings to magnificent bibs and rings heaped with gems.

Pearls are piquant pleasers Santa can rely on unerringly because they are so much in season this classic holiday season. Pearls in graduated layers, punctuated by color from precious and semi-precious stones, giftwrap her throat in sensuousness.

A pearl pin can hang from a neck wire to become an unusual pendant for a special holiday party. To-the-knuckle rings, swinging tassel earrings and rows of bracelets add dazzlement to a dazzling lady and make pearls her gift of great prize.

Save A Life: Drive Carefully

CHICAGO (UPI) — Winter road conditions and increased traffic can turn the happy tradition of holiday travel to tragedy. Don't let it happen to you, says the National Safety Council. Some safety suggestions:

Get your car in A-1 shape. Check brakes, lights, wipers, ignition system, battery.

Start early. Allow time for heavy traffic and unpredictable winter weather changes. Slow down.

Keep safety belts fastened.

Reinforced tire chains give best traction on snow and ice. Snow tires are good. Studded tires, better.

Watch out for pedestrians. Wintry weather puts them at a disadvantage, too.

Add A Personal Touch: Give A Homemade Gift

Everyone appreciates the very personal touch associated with a homemade gift. One that is both decorative and useful brings double pleasure to the receiver of such a thoughtful item. A good project for an older child or a group of adults is gold braided "straw" baskets. The basket filled with ribbon or metallic ornaments makes a simple centerpiece.

To make such a basket created by the Norcross Design Studios you will need:

Eight spools gold Lustre-Cord, 15 nine-inch pipe cleaners, heavy cardboard, white glue, florist wire No. 24, scissors, knife, compass and pencil.

To make the basket base: Cut 3 six-inch circles of cardboard. Cover the surface of one circle with a spiral of Lustre-Cord. Starting at center, wrap toward outside, gluing as you go. Mark edge of other circle into 15 equal spaces. Cut 15 nine-inch lengths of Lustre-Cord. Remove cotton core from each. Insert pipe cleaners into Lustre-Cord. Glue one end of each to mark on circle. Glue Lustre-Cord covered circle over them.

To make sides of basket: Make a four-strand braid by weaving right-hand strand across all others. Repeat with each new right-hand strand. Bend pipe cleaners up and weave braid through them. Side basket is eight braids high.

Glue braid to each pipe cleaner on inside. Bend top of each pipe cleaner downward on outside of basket to form "V" with bottom of adjacent pipe cleaner. Insert excess between layers of cardboard base. Make another four-strand braid to circle outside edge of base. Glue in place.

To make the handle: Cut four 24-inch lengths of Lustre-Cord. Remove core. Insert florist wire in each. Make 13-inch braid with four inches unbraided at each end. Form "Y" at each end by twisting wired Lustre-Cord into pairs. Cut end two inches from end of braid. Hook ends onto basket.

Center Offers Unusual Gifts

If you're searching for the unusual gift idea, mull over these suggestions from Randhurst.

Rare coins and stamps from starter collections to collector's pieces are sure to bring a glint to someone's eye Christmas morning. Try Tom Ryan's Coin shop on the Randhurst mall. Then there are 10 foot stuffed animals that are ideal gifts for tots right through teens from Toys by Rizzi.

Charm bracelets with just the right tiny silver image are available at Lorsey's or sparkling crystal friendship bowls or a domed terrarium from Brautigan's are gifts that will brighten the new year all year long.

A candle and a scent for the season are easily found at The Candle Nook. Down on the Town Hall level the Sports Chalet offers many ideas for teens including sport patches and school identification patches. Knit & Purl is hiding a bounty of kits and make-it-yourself supplies for those who like to give the personal touch.

If you are contemplating a winter trip, Bak Studios on Town Hall level provides while-you-wait passport photos as well as delightful photo charms and pendants.

Avoid Fires In The Home: Check Electrical Systems

The use of artificial Christmas trees has doubled in popularity in the last five years. It is estimated that plastic trees, for example, this year will help to beautify about one out of three north American homes.

For this reason, more care than ever is needed to avoid possible fires in the home. General Electric lighting experts offer these do's and don'ts for safe, effective lighting of artificial trees:

Use string sets with new, cooler bulbs. Plastic needles are more sensitive to heat than natural needles and will melt if subjected to excessive heat.

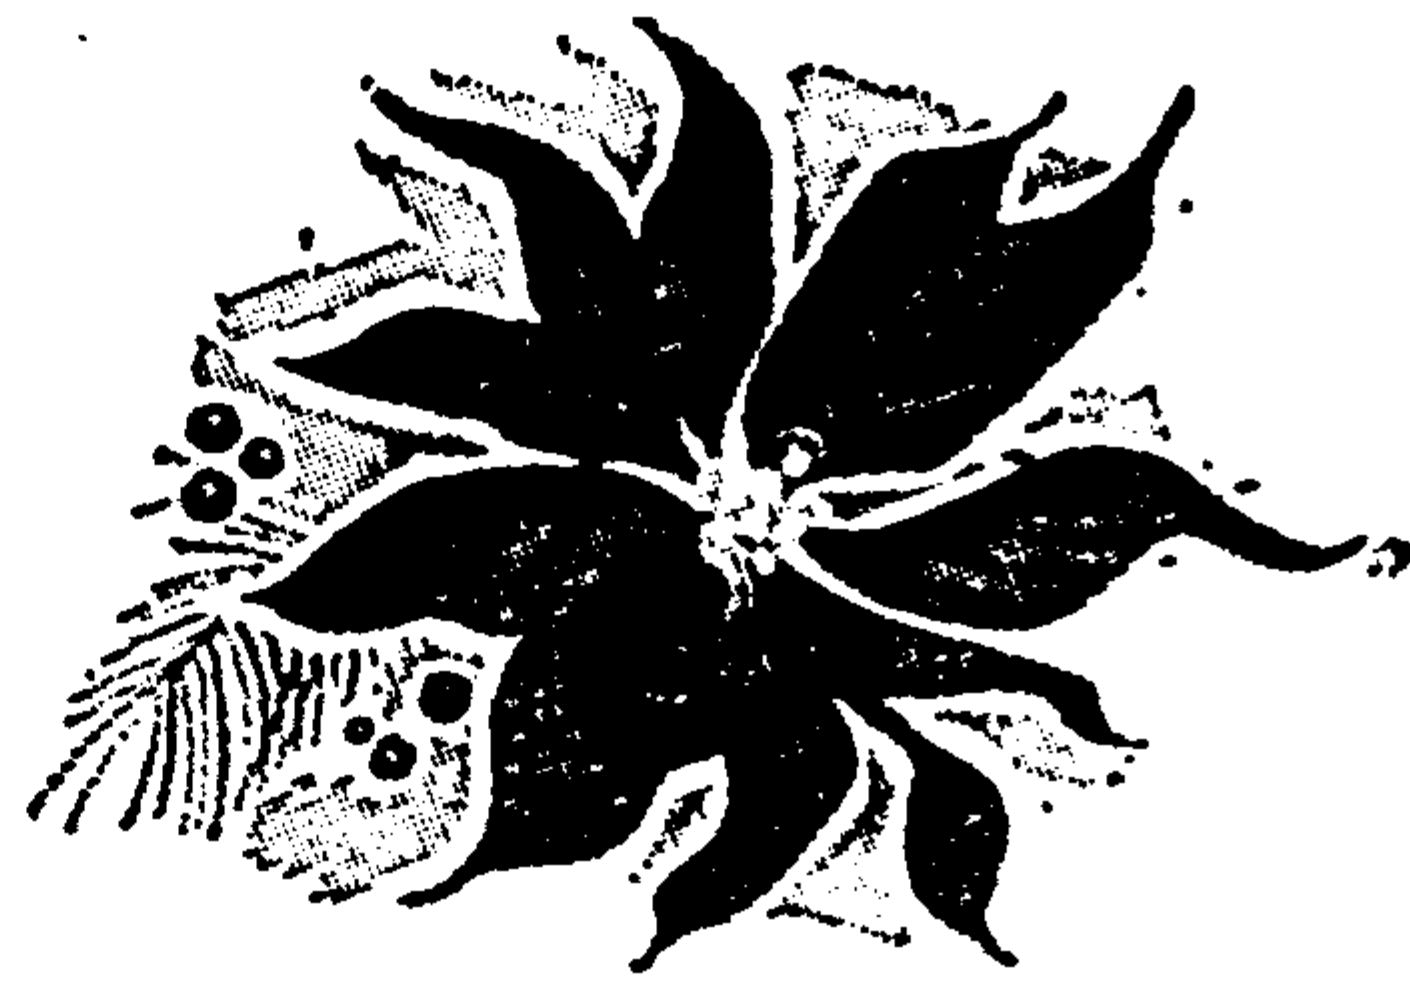

Typical of cooler bulbs are Cool Brights, Merry Twinkles and all string sets with midget type bulbs. Also cooler are lighted ornaments containing midget bulbs.

Also avoid ceramic-coated or translucent bulbs. Though delightfully rich in color, they are warm enough to deform plastic needles. These bulbs were designed to use on natural trees and for general decoration.

For a more dramatic effect this year give your plastic tree an over-all color by using a floodlight, perhaps a color floodlight or a color wheel with a clear bulb.

Whatever lighted string or floodlight fixture you buy, look for the Underwriter's Laboratory tag and remember that an old string of lights may be outdated by today's type of tree. Play it safe. Don't pinch pennies and take a chance on having a fire.

Demand Comfort, Warmth When Buying Ski Parkas

Whether you are a skier in the expert class or just ready to tackle your first mogul, your ski parka is an important part of your equipment. Before you go shopping for skiwear, it's best to know what features to look for.

"A ski parka should be carefully designed for protection from the elements, comfort and convenience," stated Othmar Schneider, famed Olympic skier and member of the Sports Advisory Staff of a large retail chain.

Schneider stated several features to look for in a parka. They include zippered outer pockets plus an extra inside snap pocket, lift ticket tab and detachable hood with its own carrying pocket.

"The two-way zipper is important for all parkas over hip length," he said. "When on the chair lift, you can unzip the bottom of the jacket and still keep the top closed."

As for construction and fit, the parka should be roomy at the back and shoulders for the forward lean position. And sleeves should have ample room for bulky sweaters.

"To keep out wind and cold," he said, "make sure the sleeve cuffs are either the knit cuff type, inner knit storm cuff or snap adjustable cuff. Any of the three types is suitable."

Tonka Toys Introduces New Concept In Play

Toy shoppers this year will find Tonka Toys celebrating its 25th Christmas season with the introduction of two entirely new play concepts as well as a variety of new models in its traditional toy truck and vehicle groups.

Newest Tonka ideas are Toddlers and Giggles, first Tonka toys to be specifically designed for the "playpen" age group — girls and boys from six months to three years of age, as contrasted with the two to eight-year-range for other Tonka toys. Now also are Smokey Bear sets which combine Smokey, the well-known symbol of forest protection, with other outdoor characters and set in conservation-oriented play situations.

New introductions in Tonka's toy truck and car lines include:

Three new dragsters have been introduced in the spring motorpowered Scrambler line. A "fifth wheel" under the nose of each dragster raises and lowers the front end simulating "wheelies" as the racers zip away.

In the Mini-Tonka category, the Track Duster settles the dust between make-believe racing heats by draining water from its ABS plastic drum through a hose at the rear; a new Mini-Tonka Roller for playtime road construction is a two-section, articulated design; two new Volkswagens with exposed, metalized engines carry the name "Lightning Bugs," and a new pair of customized Mini-Tonka Jeeps, the Honey Bucket and Bone Bruzer, for sand dune fun have been added.

A new Camper in Tonka's regular line feature a detachable camper unit, mounted in a pickup, just like the real recreation vehicles. Other new regular-size Tonkas are the Alley-Gator, a four-wheeled amphibian, as much at home in water as on land and a spanking-new design of Tonka's famous Aerial Ladder fire truck with safety extension ladder which extends three feet.

ON LAND OR SEA, Tonka Toys' new Alloy-Gator will provide long-lasting fun. Made of durable plastic, this amphibian vehicle is as at home in the bathtub or pool as the sandbox. Life preservers, life rafts and inside stairs are realistic with molded fittings.

Give A Two-For-One Gift

Sometimes the perfect gift for someone on your Christmas list does not seem quite complete. You feel it needs a little something more.

This year why not give a two-for-one gift? The complete present. A very special gift complemented by a more "practical" item.

Let's start with the young married on your list. The girl who tries to have a candlelight dinner just for the two of them. How about a gift of a sterling silver candle snuffer? Include two chunky bayberry candles to be used as a centerpiece with the addition of Christmas holly and greens.

Another combination might be a set of elegant sterling silver demitasse spoons, along with a generous supply of their favorite espresso coffee.

For the "not-so-newlywed" who hasn't added to her sterling service for years how about a sterling silver cheese knife with a selection of her favorite cheeses (a nice, extra-added touch might be a cheeseboard, too).

The young career girl who's just starting out on her first job and in a first apartment can always use a "two-for-one" gift. A delightful one would be one or two spreaders with your favorite hors d'oeuvre recipe.

Probably one of the most difficult people to get just the right present for is grandma. She seems to have everything — or does she? Does she, for instance, have an up-to-the-minute picture of her grandchildren — or you? Take a new family shot and march right into your favorite jeweler to get a handsome sterling silver frame.

Finally, did you know, statistically, there are almost as many brides at Christmas as in June? For the girl who will soon be starting her first home, the complete present would seem the most appropriate.

There's a good chance she's already started her flatware service, but what about those extra or fill-in pieces that have to be put off till tomorrow? Extras, like a sterling silver cake carver, gift-wrapped with a china cake plate or the handsome sterling silver salad spoon and salad fork with tiny, gem-like cruets for oil and vinegar.

Expert Advice On Tree Care

Government officials have offered some advice for keeping Christmas trees both pretty and safe:

When you set it up indoors, put the tree in a stand or container which holds water. Be sure to keep adding water as needed after the tree is decorated.

Set the tree in a spot away from heat sources such as fireplaces, radiators and television sets.

Buyers do their own grading best. If a tree is fresh, its needles won't fall off when the base is rapped on the ground.

Give Your Legs A Lift

THE HERALD

Friday, December 8, 1972

61

Has holiday hopping and shopping got you on the run? After decking the halls, are you the one feeling "decked?"

Then slow down for a moment, and take a load off your mind — and feet — with these shoppers' special legs-ercises. They can give your legs a lift while you're giving your spirits one.

Whenever you're standing for long periods of time, keep weight evenly distributed and balanced between balls of your feet and heels.

Avoid slouching or throwing entire weight onto one hip. (You may think you're resting one leg, but you're only tiring the other.)

When you do get a minute to sit down, stretch legs long, point and flex the feet to relieve muscle tension.

While you're seated, you can also rotate legs in a clockwise, then counter-clockwise direction. (You can also do this while standing if the elevator isn't too crowded.)

Pay attention to the kind of shoes and stockings you don before setting off, as these can make a big difference in the way your feet feel. Comfortable walking shoes with cushioned soles can add an extra bounce to your step.

Pantyhose of lightweight spandex are designed for the woman who doesn't need traditional support hose and who's not willing to give up sheerly beautiful legs for merely comfortable ones. She can put on a pair in the morning and know that they'll stay with her — in all the right places — throughout the day.

Pantyhose of "Lycra" are available from leading manufacturers like Burlington, Berkshire and Mary Grey at leading department and hosiery stores.

Once you're home, lie down flat with your feet raised six inches above your head. Also, you'll find that soaking feet for a few minutes in warm water and then splashing them with cologne or bath powder will make them feel extra pampered.

Smaller Tree Now Available

Demand has been growing in recent years for small "apartment-size" Christmas trees.

At least one firm now produces a large volume of 2½ to 4-foot black spruce — some of them small, complete trees and some tree tops — which are chemically treated to retain their needles indefinitely.

Other types of trees moving to markets in heavy volume include pines and the more costly firs and spruces.

Cutting of Christmas trees begin in some areas in October, but will not get under way in many places until December.

GP QUARTZ

Only the sun is more accurate.

Without a tick-tock, without a hum, the GP Quartz movement delivers accuracy to within one minute a year... and without a moment's care. It goes on and on and on without winding, without the usual maintenance expected of an ordinary watch movement, other than a simple, inexpensive power cell yearly replacement. It is sensibly thin and amazingly rugged.

Assorted models in stainless steel, gold-toned cases with stainless steel backs; also in 18K gold. Water and shock-resistant, of course. All styles available with leather straps or matching bracelets. GP Quartz watches start at $250.

The 'Wet Nose' Brigade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Looking for a Christmas gift that grows, moves without batteries and may try your temper on occasion? Consider a pup or a kitten.

Among the costlier canines, poodles lead the snooty parade. They are in demand because they are smart, gregarious and at times, comic. They also have been known to read their owner's mind.

Poodles cost from $75 up and come small, medium, large. There's upkeep to consider: grooming every six weeks at from $15 up per session at the dogdom beauty salon.

Another popular pedigreed pup is the beagle. Ever lovin' Snoopy of Peanuts' fame in comicland is a beagle. They're less expensive than poodles and don't require beauty treatments.

Other good family dogs, according to authorities at the Pet Food Institute in Chicago: German Shepherd, collie, dachshund, cocker spaniel and Boston terrier.

In catland, the choice is pretty big, ranging from the fluffy long-haired felines to sleek short-hairs. The Siamese leads the field among the shorthairs. Dazzling blue eyes and fawn-bodied, this type has paws, ears and tail tipped with darker color. Of all cats, the Siamese are the most active. As cat people put it, this type is inclined to be gabby. Talk is a raucous meow.

Quieter but also beautiful are the Havana, the Russian Blue and the Abyssinian cats. The latter resembles a small wildcat.

The long-hairs tend to be more placid than the short-hairs.

If you've decided a pup or kitten is to be in the Santa bag for your children this yule, where do you begin looking? How much should you pay? How can you tell if the four-footed furry creature is healthy?

Answers to those questions and others — from the Pet Food Institute:

—Begin the search by asking friends who own pets. Or ask a veterinarian to recommend a kennel, pet shop or animal shelter. Don't be bashful. Ask about prices and explain what you are looking for in a pet. Most people selling pets or placing them for adoption are interested in finding a good home for the animal.

—Let your eyes and nose as well as your emotions help you decide when you visit the place recommended. Are animals kept in clean cages? Do feeding bowls contain fresh food? Are water dishes clean? Is the puppy or kitten treated by shop owner or kennel manager with loving care? A pup or kitten treated kindly will make an easier adjustment to your home and family.

—Does animal act alert and friendly? The quiet, shy one with the "please take me home" look may be sick. Check eyes, ears, nose to make sure there is no runny discharge. Also, a healthy pup or kitten has a well rounded body that appears firm when you pick him up.

—As you cuddle the little pet run your fingers through the fur. A well-cared for pup or kitten has a thick, glossy coat. Inspect teeth and gums, too. Pink gums and white teeth are signs of good health.

—Have the pet you selected checked by a veterinarian. Most reputable pet dealers will replace an animal if a defect is discovered within a day or two.

A Learning Experience

Baby's first Christmas is a memorable day — just ask any mother. All the excitement can be hectic and tiring for your moppet and nerve-shattering for you. Take the advice of child care experts and make the day rich with learning experiences, free of rush and frantic activity.

The Christmas tree is a fascinating wonder for a tiny baby. He'll gaze delightedly at the bright shapes, colors and lights. Put him near the tree in an infant seat or on a soft blanket spread on the floor.

If the child is older and is beginning to reach and pull, make sure the tree is anchored securely. Show him how to touch the prickly evergreen needles without pulling the branch. If you let him touch some of the ornaments carefully, he'll be less inclined to grab them on the tree. Touch is an important learning experience, Gerber child care experts point out.

Christmas calls for packages and that's where tots really have a ball.

They love ripping the bright tissue paper from gifts. They're delighted with the sound, the feel of the paper, the discovery of something exciting inside.

You don't have to spend a great deal of money for toys and gifts at this age. If you do buy toys, get soft squeezable ones that squeak, a floating bath toy, a doll or stuffed animal. Tie up a package or two of Teething Biscuits and cookies... (babies adore Gerber Cookies). Since it's mostly the wrapping that pleases baby anyway, the first Christmas is a good time to add a few practical clothing items like babywear undergarments or vinyl pants and bibs, and fashionable easy-care Babygro stretchwear by Kapart.

When it's time for the big holiday feast, baby will be a welcome guest at the table in his highchair. Feed him his favorite baby foods such as strained or Junior turkey sweet potatoes and convenient Modilac Ready-to-Feed Formula before hand so you can enjoy your own meal. While everyone's eating, keep him busy with a silver spoon, plastic cup or a teething biscuit.

With all the excitement and activity, babies tire easily on this big day. So if your little one is fussy, take him to his room, away from the confusion and people. Be calm and reassuring. He'll soon drop off to a much-needed nap.

Experienced mothers will tell you to simplify your first Christmas with a new baby as much as possible. Make things easy for yourself. Cook simply, clean the house a little each day and don't go overboard on entertaining and late parties.

Do take time out to keep yourself well rested and looking attractive.

Last but not least, take pictures or movies of Christmas, 1972. Even though your baby won't remember his first big holiday, he'll love seeing the pictures and hearing about it as he grows up.

Disney Used In Klomp-It

GAF Corporation has announced its entrance into the children's game market with the introduction of the new GAF View-Master Klomp-It — a game for two, three or four players featuring Walt Disney characters.

Among the contents of the game are two GAF View-Master stereo viewers, four stereo reels, four Klomp-It game cards and four Klompers-suction cups.

The object of the game — played by children ages six and up — is to fill the nine squares of the Klomp-It game board with Disney character playing cards.

To start the game, a die is thrown. The players then click the viewers the number of times shown on the die. Looking at their viewers together, they call out the names of the cartoon character they see and try to be the first to "Klomp" such characters as Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and others. The game continues with players also being able to "Klomp" character cards from each other. As the viewers alternate, with player on the left receiving the viewer, the die is thrown to start the next turn.

Picture Yourself...

Live it up — sensibly. In the festive whirl of the holidays, you may find yourself staying up late several nights in a row. You'll feel better the next day if you observe a few party-time precautions.

To prepare yourself, set aside a few minutes during the day to rest, relax and conserve your energies. At parties, limit your late-evening consumption of food and beverages and try to socialize in rooms that have proper circulation of air to prevent next-day headaches and aching eyes.

If eyes feel irritated and look red, use decongestant drops to return them to their natural whiteness.

Tasty Ornaments

Handmade ornaments and sweets of all types were used as holiday decorations for hundreds of years. They gave the tree a glow of warmth often missing with today's electric lights and plastic ornaments. Everyone, down to the smallest youngster, shared in the fun of making decorations and trimming the tree. The finished product was truly a family creation.

To help you recreate the charm and nostalgia of an old-fashioned Christmas tree, home economists for Tootsie Roll have developed some festive, decorative ideas using materials commonly found in most homes during the holiday season. Because they are easy to assemble, many can be used as entertaining projects for vacationing youngsters. Each idea requires only a small amount of time but is big on eye appeal and taste-tempting as well.

In addition to — or as a replacement for — small gifts used in Christmas stockings, the home economists suggest wrapping tiny surprise gifts and hanging them from tree branches with velvet and metallic ribbon or strands of bright yarn.

Small jewelry boxes filled with candles or miniature baskets packed with popcorn are ideal for this purpose. To decorate the miniature gifts, use small scraps of ribbon and papers.

Large lollipops filled with chewy, chocolatey candy can be removed from their wax-wrappers, covered with bright cellophane and fastened to tree branches with red ribbons. They make wonderful ornaments and will provide many hours of happy licking when they are snatched off the tree.

Popcorn balls in all sizes add a festive touch of nostalgia to holiday decorations. With a large needle and regular yarn, string tiny popcorn balls alternately with satin-covered plastic foam Christmas balls to form chain garlands. Gaint-sized popcorn balls dangling from silvery ribbons will attract every sweet-eater in the neighborhood over for a look at your tree.

Here is a recipe for quick popcorn balls with a surprise ingredient to make them chewier and tastier than ever before.

POLKA DOT POPCORN TREATS

6 quarts popped corn
1 chopped walnuts
2 cups Tootsie Rolls, cut into ½-inch pieces (about 50 miniature rolls)
2 cups sugar
2/3 cup light corn syrup
2/3 cup water
½ cup (1 stick) butter

Mix together popped corn, nuts and candy pieces in a large bowl.

Cook sugar, syrup, water and butter together until they reach a hard crack stage. (240 degrees on a candy thermometer.)

Pour over popcorn mixture and toss to coat. With buttered hands, shape mixture into desired size balls. Let cool and set.

Yield: 40 to 45 miniature popcorn balls — 12 to 15 large balls for individual ornaments.

HERE'S THE space-age look for guys and gals, the new Silver Streak snowmobile suits by Ski-Doo.

A POWER TOOL for Christmas can give the man of the house an economical outlet for his creative energies. Sears recommends an electric drill for starting his home workshop.

Power Tools Welcomed By The Home Handyman

Homemakers agree that once a husband has a power tool or a set of them, he's inclined to be ultra-conscious of home repairs. Once a home workshop is started, the homemaker's Christmas gift-giving dilemma may be solved for years to come.

Selecting a power tool isn't as complex a shopping decision as it might seem. In most cases, department store salesmen are well-versed in the money-saving uses for various power tools and their ease or difficulty of operation.

The home handyman's first choice is usually a compact electric drill, according to Sears, Roebuck and Co. Chosen for its versatility, the electric drill may be equipped with optional attachment for buffing, sanding, sharpening, grinding, sawing, driving and removing nuts, screws and bolts — and even trimming hedges.

Another popular portable tool, the sabre saw, also can be used for a variety of jobs. It serves as a rip saw, hacksaw, crosscut, coping, jig, scroll band and keyhole saw enabling the hobbyist to create decorative shapes from wood or metal.

As the woodworking amateur's skills improve, a wood-turning lathe might be a welcome addition to his workshop. The power unit turns a piece of wood as a rotisserie turns meat, only much faster. A chisel blade applied to the rapidly turning wood creates symmetrical designs for salad bowl sets, coffee table legs and other decorative items.

Holiday Hairdo Trends

No doubt you're busy planning so that your house will gleam and glow for the holidays. Did it ever occur to you that your house might upstage you? That you ought to be more glamorous than your surroundings?

Sure, we're all busy, busy, busy at Christmastime — but kids and cooking should be put in limbo for just a little bit of time, while you concentrate on your own holiday looks and wardrobe.

There'll be some partying, of course, and some very exciting fashions and new coiffures. Evening clothes will be more spectacular. Sometimes the designers have accomplished this with color (red or black), sometimes with clinging, sexy fabrics. And long skirts will take precedence over severe trousers.

This new emphasis on ultra femininity is accompanied by sleeker, shorter, shining hairstyles. Short to mid-long (just sweeping the shoulders) is the trend. The look is romantic without being fussy or frankly wild, according to a noted hairdresser. That look depends on a good cut to establish the shape of the head, and hair in gleaming good condition.

Hair that's dull, mousey, or graying, just won't do. Rather than an indication of aging, gray hair is just one more beauty problem meant to be solved with one of today's beautiful semi-permanent hair color treatments. Go ahead. Lavish a little love on yourself without the worry of taking a chunk of time away from your holiday preparations.

Clairol's Loving Care hair color lotion or color foam is one haircoloring that will wash away gray or dullness, and condition your hair at the same time to counteract winter weather's dryness.

It's as easy as shampooing. The best thing to do in using a semi-permanent haircoloring (which means no peroxide; color washes out in about five shampoos) is to select a shade near your own natural color.

You shampoo in a naturally radiant color and, while you're giving a color lift to drab or graying hair, you can also make your hair better — silkier, glossier and fuller-looking.

Don't say: oh, holidays are such a drag — so exhausting. Say: partying. Say radiant . . . my house . . . my clothes . . . my hair and me.

Fake Bargains

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas season is the time some bargain hunters get led around by the nose.

It's the phony perfume racket spotted by Better Business Bureaus around the country each yule. The phony perfume gyp also shows up around Mother's Day and Easter.

Many vendors operate from sidewalk stalls. They rebottle toilet water or cologne in small containers and sell these fragrances as perfumes at $1 a bottle. This means that you are paying $1 for about 15 cents worth of toilet water or cologne.

Other promoters bottle phony fragrances in bottles marked with various initials — "A" for Arpege, "WS" for White Shoulders, "C-5" for Chanel No. 5 — and again sell for $1 for a tiny bottle. Most likely you're getting scented alcohol.

Some promoters sell fragrances in bottles marked as high as $18.50 — for 70 cents a bottle. The so-called original price is phony, of course.

How to avoid such gyps? Buy from a reputable merchant.

Foot Fashions From Scholl

What's afoot on Christmas morning? Comfort, fashion, and pleasure, for the one who finds a Shlipper in her (or his) stocking.

The new lounge from Scholl combines the comfort of a slipper with the support of a shoe in styles for both men and women.

On the "slipper side" of its heritage are an easy wearability and coziness. Its "shoe" features include a firm, contoured wooden inner sole, with an exclusive, toe-relaxer crest — all the support needed to give feet a pick-up just by walking around the house.

In two heel heights, Shlippers for ladies are made in soft, springy terry.

The medium heel model is available in pumpkin, bright red and blue. The flat heel design comes in bright red, loganberry, blue and pumpkin.

TOP YOUR TREE with this angel made from the Craft Master kit complete with wooden cut out angel, paints and lace trim. The figure can also be used for a centerpiece or to decorate the mantel.

All-Terrain Toy Vehicles Built For Rugged Play

A design inspired by the California beach scene, the Surf Buggy by Testor, is the latest addition to all-terrain vehicles.

Created for outdoor excitement and powered model challenges, this new Testor all-terrain vehicle is a result of extensive research and testing.

The Surf Buggy is constructed of virtually indestructible plastic. It can run through snow, dirt, grass, sand, and even shallow water. This offers youngsters a wide variety of new operating locations.

The Surf Buggy, a new vehicle which is just 12 inches long, is designed with precision engineering and custom coach work. The open-air styling and west coast influence offers several special Testor features including: soft pneumatic front tires and multi-position steering control; "Super-grab" rear tires for added traction; fully detailed custom black interior; and a new Type V needle valve engine with patented recoil starter as found in the Testor Duno Buggy.

The Surf Buggy is designed in distinctive green plastic with chrome-accented wheel rims, bumpers, headlights, roll bar and twin gas tanks. It also features a brightly colored removable surf board and matching rear deck flag.

To assist in starting the Surf Buggy, Testor put a gear lever between the two rear wheels. This gear acts as "neutral" so the engine can be started without lifting the model off the ground, a feature which saves wear on the engine.

When the lever is in the disengaged position the vehicle will not move and the engine can be easily started. Once the lever is engaged the vehicle will take off!

TOUCH-A-TONE, a new addition to Playtentals, created and tested by Dr. Burton L. White of Harvard Pre-School project, introduces babies from eight months to two years to experience in touching.

Toys Develop Baby's Senses

Now babies as young as three weeks have their own scientifically designed toys. Dr. Bertram L. White, director of the Harvard Pre-School Project, has made a major contribution to infant development through play with two series of Playtentals, created and tested by him for Kenner to meet infants' rapidly changing needs and capabilities from three weeks to eight months.

This Yule, Dr. White is introducing a new mobile, Friendly Faces, designed to fit precisely the very young baby's head position and area of vision.

For babies eight months up he has developed Touch-N-Teach, based on the latest research in language development. This exposes the infant to words and grammatical patterns he is capable of learning; and, as he hears the words and phrases, he simultaneously sees pictures illustrating them.

Dr. White's Touch-A-Tone gives babies from eight months to two years experiences in touching, seeing and hearing.

Bonds Are In!

U.S. Savings Bonds belong on every Christmas list. They always fit, are never out of style, and gain in value with each passing year.

Some Tips For Wise Shoppers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Avoid yule pain in the purse or wallet. Right now the stores are filled with inviting Christmas merchandise. And so are some sidewalks. Most merchants are honest but there is a small percentage who practice deceptive selling methods.

In the shopping days for this Christmas season, here are some hints for shopping from the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York.

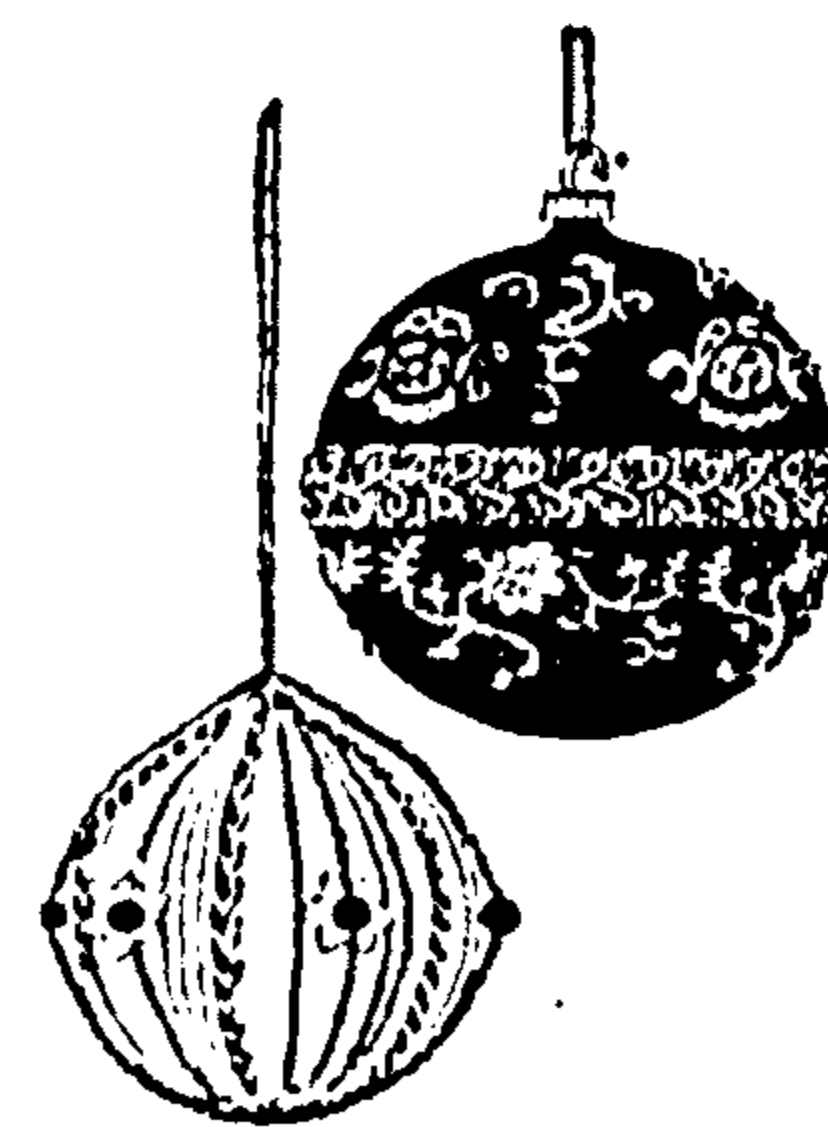

—Be a sophisticated shopper. If a bargain looks too good to be true, check it out carefully for quality and workmanship.

—When buying toys don't forget that some require batteries to operate and the batteries may not be included in the package. Avoid disappointment Christmas morning. Check for batteries.

—Never let yourself be rushed into buying anything by high-pressure salesmen. Take your time and make up your mind carefully.

—Be cautious of promoters who operate from temporary storefronts, sidewalk peddlers and so-called going-out-of-business type sales. Vendors selling alleged bargains on the street won't be around to settle a complaint or make a refund or exchange after Christmas.

—In short, buy from a reputable merchant. If in doubt, check with your local Better Business Bureau.

Early Ornaments

The spiky little gingerbread man was one of the earliest ornaments used on Christmas trees. At first German and Austrian bakers gave them to children as a holiday treat. Realizing what attractive ornaments they would make, mothers soon baked quantities large enough to decorate entire Christmas trees.

Santas Around The World

NEW YORK (UPI) — Around the world, stand-ins for Santa go by other names. No matter what the moniker, he's still a good and generous fellow — chocked full of cheer. But he's not always a he.

In Germany good boys and girls receive their Christmas gifts from Kris Kringle, a young girl wearing a golden crown and carrying a tiny Yule tree.

In Denmark the bearer of Yule gifts is an elf by the name of Julenissen. Legend says the elf lives in the attic during the year, keeping a sharp eye on the family. He knows who's been good and who's been bad and adjusts gifts accordingly.

In that Scandinavian country, Christmas dinner never is served until the Nisse, as the elf is known, has been treated to a bowl of rice and milk in his attic home.

In Poland gifts come from the stars. In Hungary, Christmas angels bring gifts. In Syria, a gentle camel brings surprise gifts for children.

The camel got into the Christmas act this way: a legend holds that the youngest camel carrying the Wise Men to Bethlehem lay exhausted from the long journey. Children brought water and wheat to revive him. Ever since, the camel travels over the desert each Christmas with presents for the young.

Action Toys

Boys and girls like action toys, something that can keep them busy using their imaginations.

Kusan's Johnny Pick-Up does just that, as well as being part toy and part mother's helper! Squeeze the handle and the sturdy arms pick up objects weighing up to two pounds.

It is also a toy which both sister and brother can play with at the same time, building up their coordination and cooperation.

Johnny Pick-Up, for ages two to five, is made of high impact plastic and rolls on large, durable plastic wheels. The handle is factory assembled too.

Johnny Pick-Up's body is bright yellow and with red and black trim, the wheels are bright red with white hub caps and the handle is white and yellow.

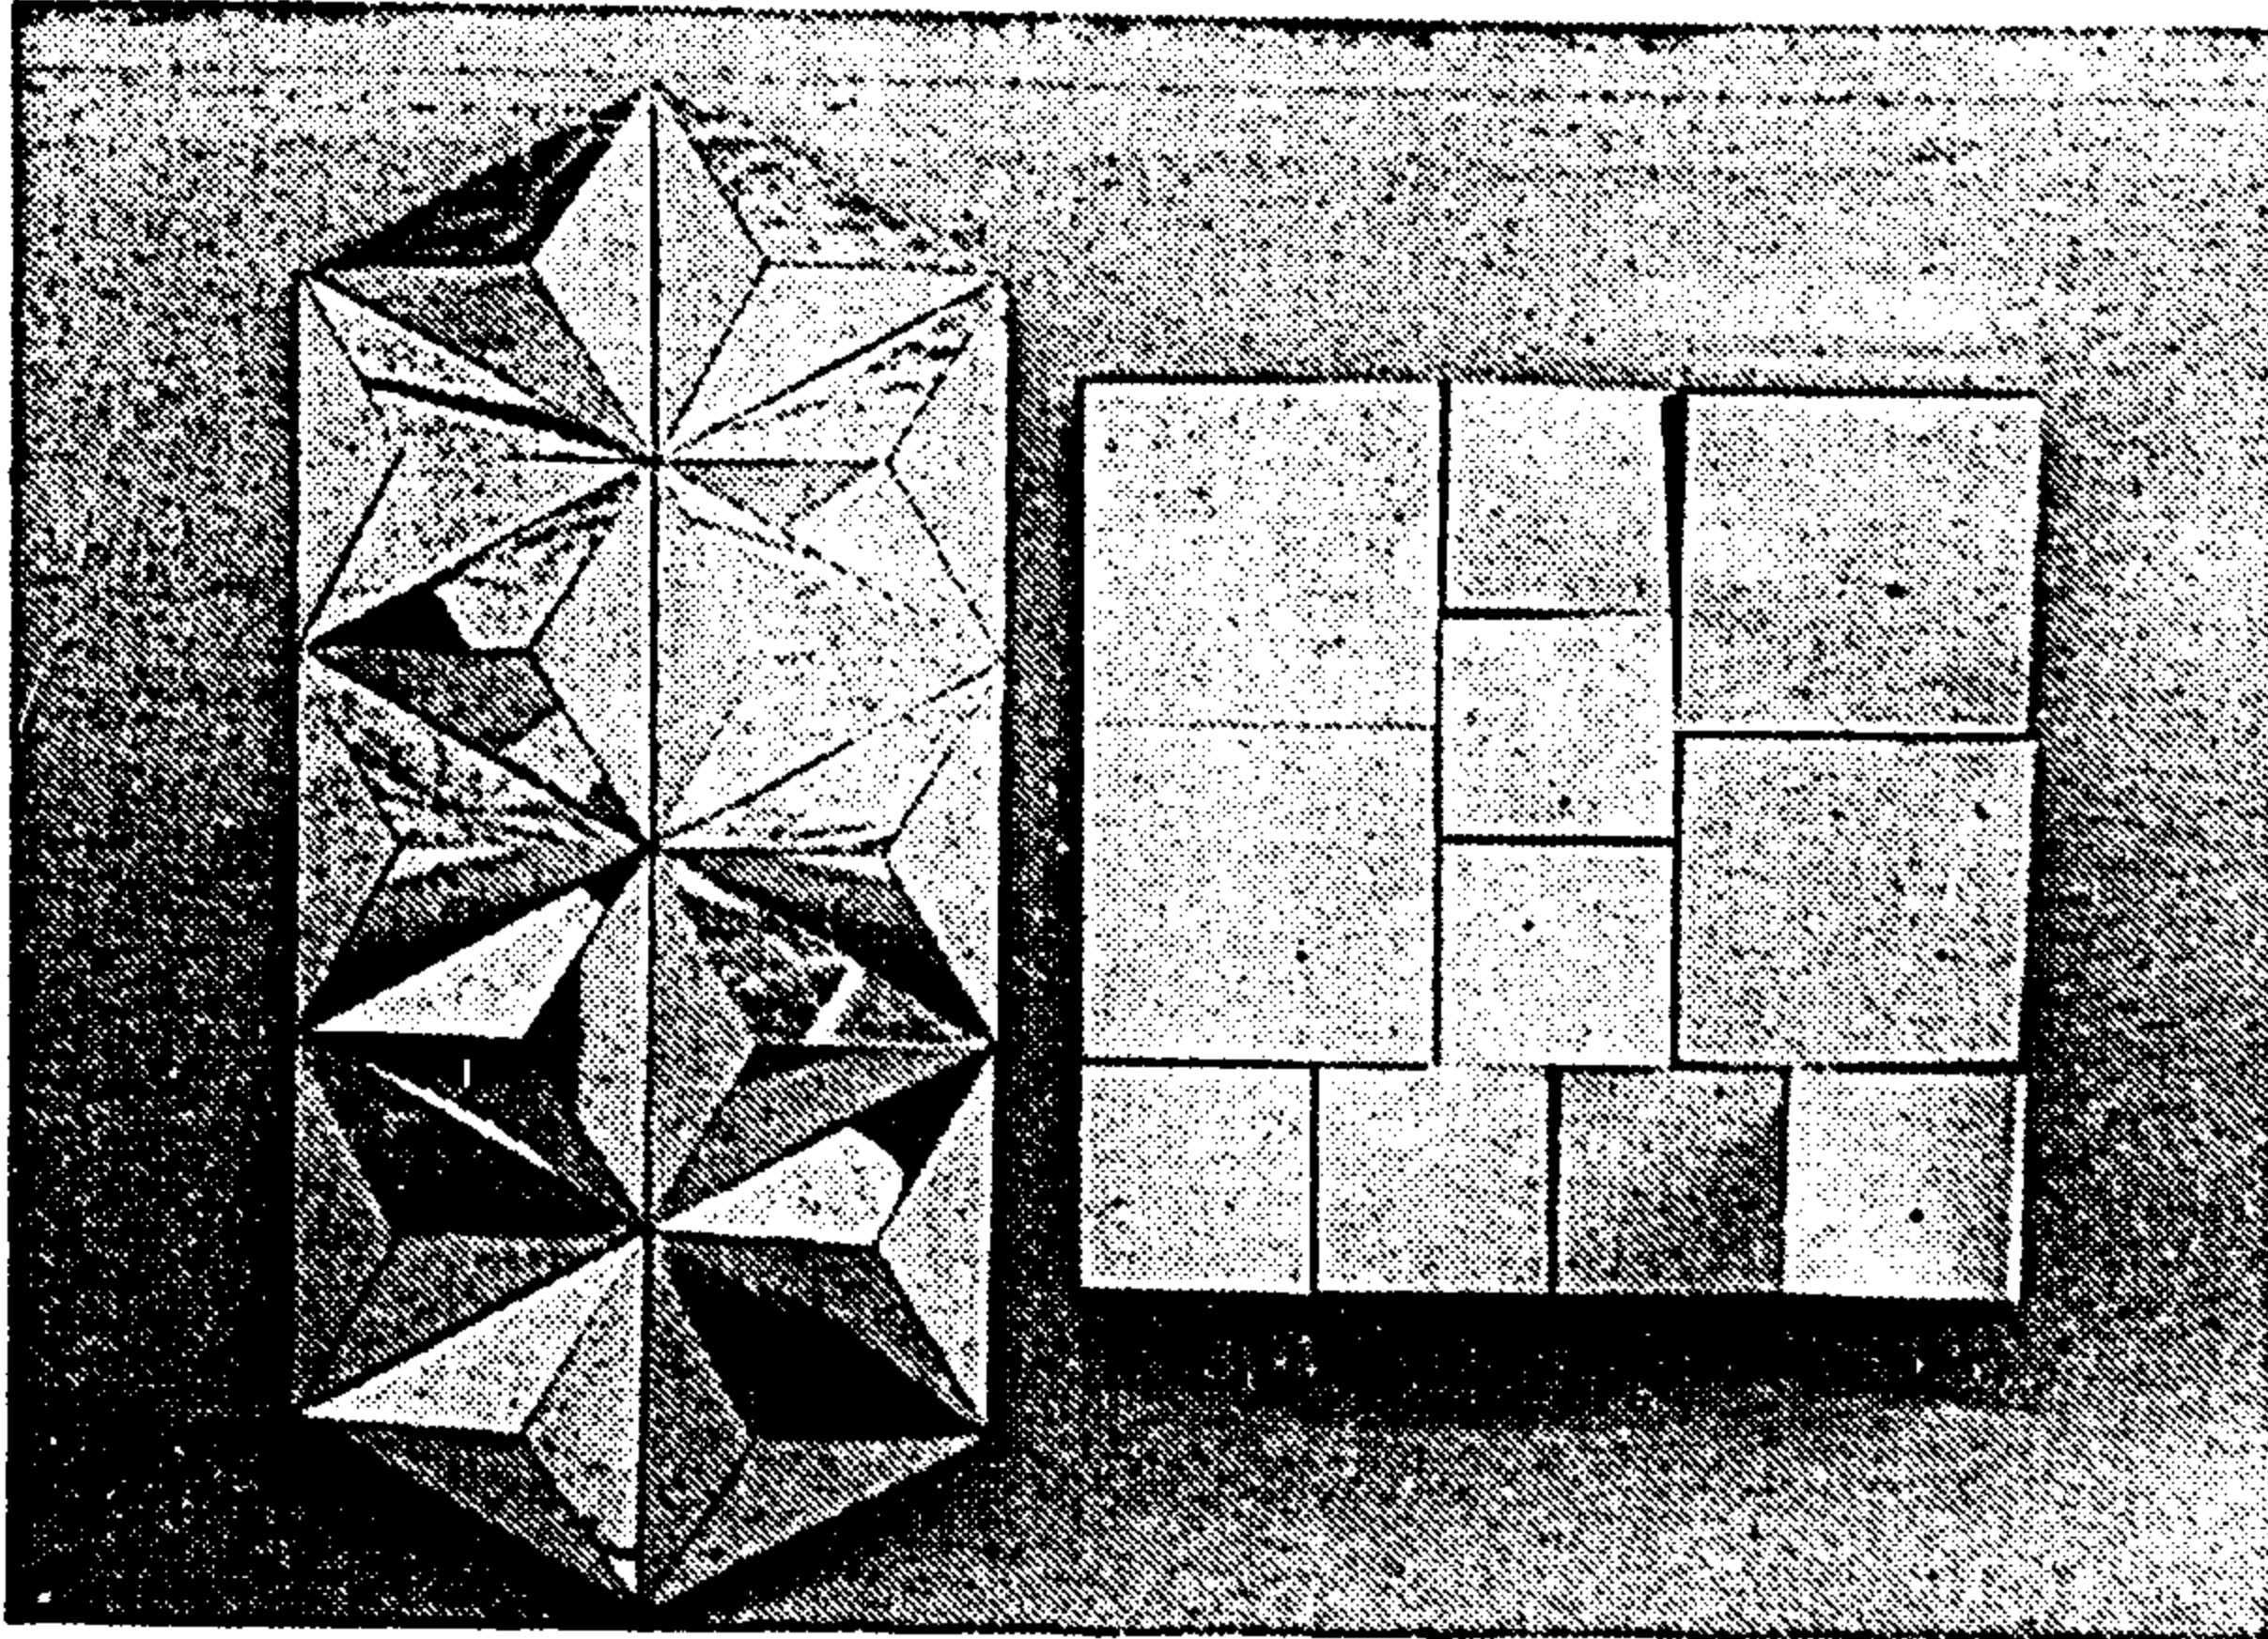

Very imaginative, very practical and very safe, it has no sharp points or harmful features.

Booklet Lists Banned Toys

WASHINGTON UPI — The Food and Drug Administration's FDA Bureau of Product Safety has published a compilation of all toys it has banned up to Aug. 31. The Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969 authorized the FDA to ban toys and other children's products with electrical, mechanical or heat hazards.

Each entry in the 43-page booklet, Banned Toys, has the name and location of the manufacturer, means of identifying the banned article, date of banning and hazard that caused the ban. Banned Toys is free to consumers. For a copy, write to the Bureau of Product Safety, Food and Drug Administration, 5401 Westbard Ave., Bethesda, Md., 20016.

DECORATIVE MIRRORS as artistic wall pieces are especially festive at Christmastime but are a year-long accent as well. Shown are two designs from an imported collection on

Set The Holiday Mood

Why is it that the mention of the holiday season draws ecstatic sighs from some families and groans from others? Busting through crowded stores, rushing with last-minute chores, wrapping gifts and sprucing up the old homestead can be exhausting — or exciting — depending on the attitudes prevailing.

In homes where Christmas joy is obvious, it's usually the lady of the household who's responsible. She's the captain who steers the family through the turbulence of late December. This calls for stamina and skilled diplomacy — but it can be done. Here are several ways in which you can help your family get the most out of the holidays.

First, look beautiful. A frivolous thought? We hardly think so. A beautiful wife and mother sets the stage for a host of yuletide cameos. Whether trimming a tree, wrapping packages or presiding at Christmas dinner, a lovely woman provides an ambiance that's absolutely vital to the holiday spirit.

A boon to loveliness in the hectic

Christmas season is the new Kindness Custom Care Instant Hairsetter & Conditioner by Clairol. This wizard appliance allows you to set your hair the regular "instant" way, or to condition-set your hair with the accompanying Custom Care Conditioner. The unit also works like an ordinary mistsetter with water. What results is a longer-lasting curl with the silky, bouncy look of healthy hair — all in a matter of moments.

Indispensable in a busy life, the hairsetter works equally well for basic sets and emergency touchups. It's also a marvelous Christmas gift, especially if you can persuade your husband to give you one early — well in advance of the yuletide rush.

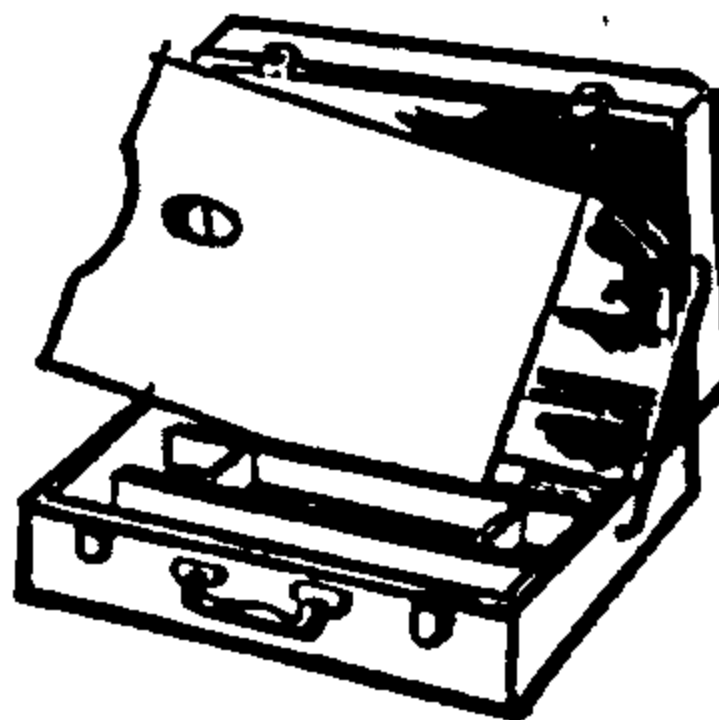

Next, plan. Don't foray into the season without a dozen lists. There are times of the year when a casual approach works well, but December is not one of them. The most admirable manager we know buys a spiral notebook as soon as Thanksgiving dinner is cleared away.

Holiday Specialties

Good food is traditional at Christmas, and the special treats provided for the season include almost everything, ranging from baked carp in Austria to roast pig in Hawaii.

In France, it's traditional to serve a Christmas supper after midnight mass, but the main dish varies according to the section of the country — roast goose in Alsace, turkey in Burgundy, oysters and sausages in Paris.

England has a mouth-watering array of traditional dishes for Christmas feasting, among them plum pudding. As the pudding is being prepared, it's customary for each member of the family to stir it, making a wish for the New Year.

Brighten Up The Holidays With Homemade Candles

Candles give off a pretty light for the home and are a happy thought for holiday gifts.

You can make your own personal candles; they are easy, inexpensive and can be trimmed or decorated in many ways to suit a mood or holiday decoration. The basic supplies to gather together on a working surface are paraffin, powder all purpose dye, wicking from a hobby shop or heavy string, and containers for molds. In addition, you'll need a double boiler, spoons or stirrers, pencils or lollipop sticks, and adhesive tape.

The mold will determine the candle shape. Choose a cardboard milk or cottage cheese carton, juice or soup cans, metal gelatin molds, paper cups or muffin tins. The molds should be clean and dry before beginning. For large candles in cardboard cartons, insert wick before pouring wax.

Punch a hole in center of the mold bottom just large enough for string or wicking. Pull wick through hole and secure to top by tying end to a pencil or stick placed across top of mold. Pull cord taut from bottom and secure by knotting and covering with tape. Wicks may be added to hardened candles by piercing center with a heated ice pick or metal knitting needle. Thread wick into hole and pour in wax to fill hole and hold wick in place.

For small candles, dip cord cut one inch longer than depth of mold into melted wax and set aside to harden. Push wicks into center of molds when wax begins to harden.

Melt paraffin in a double boiler or in a pan over boiling water. Never use direct heat as wax is inflammable. Add Rit dye powder to color wax, using about two teaspoons for each pound of wax. Choose light dye colors for brighter and more effective candles. Remove wax from heat and stir thoroughly for two to three minutes. Let stand a few minutes, then pour carefully into molds from a height of not more than one or two inches to avoid air bubbles.

Since dye is not made to be soluble in wax, some residue will remain in the pan after pouring. Simply discard residue.

Use one pound of melted paraffin for three (six ounce) juice can candles or five gelatin mold candles and 1½ pounds for a one quart milk carton. When wax is thoroughly hardened, unmold. Remove tape and knots securing wicks and peel cartons from candle. Dip metal molds quickly into hot water to loosen candle.

Personalize candles for gifts or holiday decorations. Add a wax holly trim cut with a knife from a small amount of light green colored wax poured onto a wax paper lined pan.

Secure to candle after warming over a flame. Stack candles made in gelatin molds for interesting shapes or pour melted wax into a mold filled with ice cubes for a cut-work candle.

Portrait Gifts

Portraits are one gift that will be cherished forever. Therefore, it is important to schedule your Christmas portrait sitting session early in the season. For best results it is even better to cancel a sitting date than to have children photographed when ill or tired.

Don Dahm, photographer and owner of Don Dahm Photo in Buffalo Grove, has developed what he feels is the pain-less way of having a portrait taken. Dahm has built his photography business on the basis that people do not like to be bothered by door-to-door photographers nor do they care to have sales people calling back to take orders.

Don Dahm Photo leaves all the decision making up to the customer. All ordering is done by mail after the customer has had time to make his selection from six or more proofs.

There are always a few things to remember about color photography, whether you are preparing for a professional sitting or just a casual camera shot. Try these tips during your holiday photo sessions: Wear bright clothing. Be sure there is a strong color contrast, such as red and white.

Could you please print a picture of Peter Falk of "Columbo"? How old is he and does he have any children?

T.K.
Elk Grove

Peter Falk

This marks the second season for Peter as Lt. Columbo. This past season he had the unique distinction of starring in Neil Simon's hit, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue". He'll star in an Elaine May movie, "Mikey and Nicky" just as soon as he's finished filming "Columbo".

Strangely enough, the forty-five-year-old Falk's attempt at trying not to describe himself actually paints a vivid picture of the actor. "I'm a mutt," he says. "But even mutts have many sides—they can be mean, they can be gentle; they can be serious, they can be light-hearted; they can be intelligent as well as stupid, educated or illiterate, lovable or hateful."

Peter has a master's degree in public administration and worked for Governors Lodge and Ribicoff as an efficiency expert. He married the former Alys Mayo in 1960 and has two daughters.

The Cubbies make their winter home (at least for the last six seasons) at Scottsdale, Arizona. It's called the 'Valley of the Sun' and the famed valley, located almost dead center in the state of Arizona, lives up to its advanced billing—sunshine 86 percent of the time, humidity seldom over 20 percent.

The major league club holds its spring workouts and plays the home games on the spring exhibition schedule in Scottsdale Stadium—a full-sized playing field that's major league in quality. The Stadium has a seating capacity of 4,200. Send your letter to Rick c/o Scottsdale Stadium, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Could you please tell me anything about the Ding-a-Ling Sisters of the DEAN MARTIN SHOW? I also would like to know how they got into show business. I think they are great.

Mrs. Irene Moore

Tara Leigh

We can tell you all their names: Tara Leigh, 22; Lynne Latham, 24 and the two new ones—Jayne Kennedy and Helen Funai. All of the girls have taken dancing lessons for a long time before auditions were held. Tara got her break with the original group, The Gold-diggers. Lynne had danced on Dean's show as a fill-in and went through the large audition without being recognized.

Could you please print a picture of Doris Day and tell me something about her?

S.M.

Doris Day

Doris Day, who rose from band singer to the world's leading lady at the movie box office, was born Doris Kappelhoff April 3, 1924 in Cincinnati. While in her teens, she was nearly killed in a car-train crash and began studying voice during the long convalescence.

During the '40s Miss Day became a top recording star. In 1947 she was signed for her first film, "Romance on the High Seas". Miss Day married agent Martin Melcher in 1951. He adopted her son, by a previous marriage, Terry. Melcher, who produced most of Miss Days movies, died in 1968. Now her son is executive producer of her TV show.

Doris is devoted to animals of all kinds. She is associated with volunteer efforts to promote humane treatment of animals and likes to surround herself with canine pets.

Tom Chapin

It would've made a nice commerical!

Tom Chapin, host of the award-winning ABC News children's series, "Make a Wish," sat in a little park off London's Paddington Street, singing to the cameras about shoes while a horseshoe balanced on a stake in front of him.

AS USUAL, WHEN the "Make a Wish" unit set up its cameras, a crowd gathered to watch. They were quiet and well-behaved. But when Chapin was done with his song a sweet, round-faced, white-haired little old lady straight out of Central Casting stepped forward and asked "Make a Wish" Executive Producer Lester Cooper, "What sort of shoes is this an advertisement for?"

With his characteristically broad grin, Cooper explained to the puzzled woman that the song was not a commercial but part of an American children's program.

The woman seemed disappointed. "I watch the telly all the time and I like the advertisements best," she said. "It's too bad this wasn't an advertisement. I'd be on the look-out for it."

Tony saw it coming

The pitch caught Johnny Bench by surprise but it didn't fool Tony Kubek, the ex-Yankee who is one of the NBC Television Network's baseball broadcasters at the World Series.

One of the most dazzling trick plays of recent series history occurred in the third game at Oakland Wednesday night (Oct. 18) when the Athletics' pitcher, Rollie Fingers, apparently accepting a sign for an intentional pass from his catcher, slipped a third strike past the startled Bench.

An instant before Fingers delivered the ball, Kubek asked the Oakland broadcaster, Monte Moore, "Do the Athletics ever use a trick play in this situation by having the pitcher throw a strike?"

Sellers recreates his role as the bumbling French police inspector Clouseau.

When a member of the household staff of millionaire Benjamin Ballon (Sanders) is mysteriously murdered in the room of chambermaid Maria Gambrelli (Miss Sommer), she is the prime suspect.

Inspector Jacques Clouseau (Sellers), in charge of the case, decides to prove her innocent. Assuming various disguises, he gets involved in one slapstick entanglement after another and ends up tracking the killers in a nudist camp.

Geraldine was a real person

Geraldine Jones

There really was a Geraldine Jones, according to NBC-TV star Flip Wilson.

The sassy, saucy, sexy Geraldine, first portrayed by Flip in a 1969 NBC-TV special and now featured frequently in his weekly series, is one of the stars of "Clerow Wilson and the Miracle of P.S. 14," an animated comedy special colorcast on the NBC Television Network earlier this season.

"Geraldine is based on a little West Indian girl I knew when I was a kid in Jersey City, New Jersey," Flip reported. Geraldine's present voice, as created by Flip, was inspired by Butterfly McQueen's unforgettable characterization in "Gone With the Wind."

"Geraldine, my Geraldine, is not a refined lady," Flip admitted. "But Geraldine is outspoken. She is honest." Returning to the original Geraldine, he recalled:

"She lived on the same block I did, and her folks didn't have any more money than mine, but she was always dressed so neat and spic and span. And I was raggedy.

"I liked her...but she didn't like me," he added, looking downcast.

JAY ALLEN

What's she cooking up now?

You'd expect that the typical viewer of a television cooking show is a middle-aged woman who, along with other members of the family, loves to eat. Undoubtedly, she probably has a huge kitchen loaded with all the modern appliances and utensils necessary to prepare a gourmet feast.

However, nothing could be further from the truth. Simply ask TV's "French Chef," Julia Child. And she's as emphatic in that belief as she is when explaining what vintages of wine go best with her cheese souffle.

"THERE IS NO 'typical' viewer, as far as I can tell," Mrs. Child explains. "There are men, women, young people. Many who are among my most avid fans are those who used to like to eat, but are now on diets. Really, anyone with a tiny kitchen and big ideas can prepare some fantastic recipes."

Mrs. Child's TV kitchen is as big as her ideas. Working out of a large studio in Boston's Public TV outlet, WGBH, "The French Chef" continues to cook up a storm as she's been doing since the program went on the air in February of 1963. This year, the show's staff had some tense moments when it was revealed that the program may be forced to cancel when no sponsor could be found. However, the Poloroid Corporation saved the day with an $85,000 grant. (Most all of Public Broadcasting Service programming is made possible through monetary grants.)

While Julia Child's talents as a master of the French culinary arts can't be argued, it was through her husband's occupation that the California-born woman began her trade. It was 1934 when Julia McWilliams joined the wartime O.S.S. and was assigned overseas duty in Ceylon. There, she met Paul Child (also in the O.S.S.). After a short stint together in China, the two returned to the U.S. where they were later married.

WHEN PAUL JOINED the State Department, he was assigned to the Paris Embassy. As a young wife in France, Julia recalls "wanting to cook well for my husband." She promptly enrolled in the Cordon Bleu, France's world-renowned cooking school. Just as promptly, Mrs. Child fell in love with cooking.

Soon thereafter, Julia teamed with two other women and opened their own cooking school. The trio—Simone Beck, Louise Bertholle and Mrs. Child—became close business associates during the Childs' six-year stay in France, and authored the now-famous "Mastering the Art of French Cooking" in 1961.

After Paul Child retired in 1971, the pair moved back to the states and settled in Cambridge, Mass. Friends suggested that Julia appear on a WGBH interview show, telling of her travels and public cooking demonstrations she had made to promote her book. The idea of a cooking series came up...Julia Child did three pilot shows with her copper bowl, and her towel at her belt...and "The French Chef" was destined to become one of television's longest-running series.

AT HOME IN Cambridge, Mrs. Child keeps busy in and out of her kitchen as well. With two books in print, two more in collaboration, and a syndicated newspaper column to do, she still enjoys the rigors of cooking demonstrations. These, she says, "lets you have the give-and-take atmosphere that only personal contact with an audience can bring about."

She's especially grateful at the response her PBS show generates. "You'd be surprised at the people who like to cook...and really amazed at who watches the show. I think the show is just a lot of fun."

"Actually, good cooking means just using your noggin," Julia explains. "And reading the recipe carefully...well, that helps a lot."

18-Year-Old Kevin McCarthy Runs For Board

Kevin McCarthy, 18, of 917 Ridge Ct., became the youngest person ever to run for an Elk Grove Village office in announcing his candidacy for a four-year trusteeship term this week.

McCarthy, a premedical student majoring in political science at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus, said he expects a lot of people to question him about his age, but feels his youth is an asset, not a handicap.

"As a student, I am not tied down to a job, and I can schedule my education around being a trustee," he said. "For that position (trustee), my age can be a benefit."

"I decided to run because I enjoy politics, especially on the local level, and I believe I can help the people of the village by bringing in a new point of view and new ideas," McCarthy said. He said he has been interested in village government since he was 13 and has attended board of trustees meeting for the past five years.

The college freshman said he and his family have lived in the village 12 years, and he attended Queen of the Rosary Catholic School, Grove Junior High School and Elk Grove High School. He currently is serving as an associate staff member for Campus Life working with high school students.

McCarthy said one of the most important issues facing the village today was planning for growth and development. "We have a very good plan commission right now, but we also need a professional planner to give some guidance and direction," he said.

"I THINK WHAT we need to do is to plan what Elk Grove Village will look like 15 years from now or we'll end up with a confused mess," he said. "We need a professional planner and, more important, interested citizens to say what they want the village to look like in the future."

McCarthy said this group which would study the long-range plans of the Village should include people from the industrial area as well as residents. "This village is made up of more than people who just reside here. It is also business and industry, and they should be included in planning."

McCarthy said he also would like to see the village government become a little more open and closer to the people. "Many residents don't even know the names of their trustees, and, if the people are apathetic, we could get bad officials some day."

ALONG WITH this openness, McCarthy said there should be complete compliance with the state open meetings law, which makes village meetings open to the public except in specific circumstances. He added it was most important to have meetings open during budgeting times when decisions are made on how to spend the people's money.

McCarthy said part of his campaign was for him and his workers to go house to house trying to get more than a handful of people voting in the village elections in April. "As I campaign, I am going to try to get more people involved in village government and out to vote."

CALLING ALL CARS... Radio dispatchers at the Arlington Heights police station are now responsible for talking to patrol cars in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village, too. A new, ultra high frequency radio will also be in operation soon, police say. The radio console is the heart of a new central dispatch system that utilizes radios mounted in the patrol cars, each police officer will carry a small walkie-talkie which will allow him to stay in touch with police headquarters at all times.

Village To Get $125,671 In Revenue Sharing

A federal revenue sharing check for Elk Grove Village in the amount of $125,671 is to be mailed today as the village's allotment for the first half of 1972. Altogether the village will receive some $251,000 in 1972 federal revenue sharing funds, nearly double the amount announced in September.

Officials said the initial amounts released for revenue sharing were based on 1967 census data, and the revised figures used 1970 data which increased the allocations of some municipalities. The latest revenue sharing amounts were released yesterday by the Washington office of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

A U.S. Treasury Department spokesman said the checks being mailed out today represent about half of the 1972 allotment and the remaining monies will be sent out in early January.

He said the second check would not necessarily be the same amount as the first check because the data used in the formula to compute the allotment was constantly being updated. Renaghan said per capita income and the total tax effort (the total of local levies) played the greatest role in determining revenue sharing.

GENERALLY THE higher the tax effort and the lower the per capita income, the greater the revenue sharing allotment, he said.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said the latest revenue sharing amount was more than he anticipated and he was "very happy" with the announcement.

He said he did not plan to set up any special meeting or committee to discuss how to spend the money, but the funds would probably go directly into the bank and then be invested in short term securities or bonds. He said he would expect the village budget committee to recommend where the money could be used.

"This revenue sharing money is above and beyond what we anticipate in income," Zettek said. "The village has a balanced budget predicated on income, and we're not in a hurry to spend the money. We'll put the money in the bank, let it earn interest and we'll deliberate on how it can best be used."

Village Plans To Ban Trucks From Boulevards

Elk Grove Village trustees directed the village attorney Tuesday to draw up an ordinance prohibiting trucks bearing commercial license plates from traveling on Elk Grove and Kennedy boulevards except under certain circumstances.

The trustees told the attorney to keep most of the present ordinance on residential boulevards intact but to delete a provision giving the police chief authority to grant special passes for trucks with business on the two boulevards. This discretionary provision has been struck down by the courts as an unjustified delegation of power to a police officer.

Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins said under the ordinance, commercial vehicles would be allowed on the boulevard only if they have business on the boulevard and then only on that portion

'Singles Again' Club Offers Understanding

by FRED GACA

You have recently lost your husband or wife through death, divorce or separation. More than anything else, you want someone to talk to about the shock, the loneliness, the bitterness you feel.

To whom do you go? A minister? If you are affiliated with a church, that could do for a time, but a minister is a busy man and you do not want to take too much of his time. And if you are not affiliated with a church, you feel strange about going to a minister you have never spoken to before.

A professional therapist? No, you do not need professional counseling. You only want to talk to someone who can understand your problems.

A bartender? That gets expensive and there are no answers at the bottom of a highball glass.

In Elk Grove Village, there is a place to go, the Singles Again Club.

The club was founded in May and has about 15 active members with another 15 names on its mailing list. Joanne Repenning, chairman, said she would like to see the club grow to about 30 active members with 100 names on the mailing list.

The club started after congregation members of Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit attended a lecture, "Death and the Christian Hope" at the church. Mrs. Repenning said that during the discussion after the lecture, the comment was made that, "What the village lacks is an organization for single parents."

Robert Smith, director of Christian education at the church, organized the Singles Again Club and Mrs. Repenning became chairman.

MRS. REPENNING called the club, "more or less a social group." It is open to anyone who has lost a husband or wife and is not directly connected with the church. Most of the members have children, but being a parent is not a require-

Christmas Party For Singles Again

Any widow, widower, divorced or separated person is invited to the Christmas party sponsored by the Singles Again Club. Escorts and dates are also invited to the party at 8 p.m., Dec. 15, at 453 E. Elk Grove Blvd. Anyone interested in attending is asked to call Joanne Repenning, chairman of the club, in the evening at 437-3127.

ment for membership. Dues are $12 a year. Anyone interested in joining can call Mrs. Repenning at 437-3127 or Smith at the church, 437-1666. After the new year, the club will be more formally organized and will hold its first election of officers.

Mrs. Repenning said that the club, "will try for at least one event a month." This year the club has sponsored a hot dog roast, pumpkin hunt, dinner and theater evening, and a cocktail party. The club has also sponsored talks by various ministers on the subject of losing one's husband or wife and has had a lawyer speak on legal problems involving an estate.

The club will also plan on taking a more active role in helping people adjust to the loss of a mate.

Mrs. Repenning has been a widow for five years. When the club was formed, she said "I was over the hump, but for people who are newly separated, it's quite a thing to go through."

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Repenning, there are three serious emotional problems resulting from death or divorce. "The first is the initial shock," said

Mrs. Repenning. "Then there is the bitterness. You wonder what you could have done to prevent the death or divorce."

"The worst though, is the loneliness. There is a loss of friends, they avoid you. They are afraid to talk about the loss. But what you need the most is to talk about it."

A single parent faces a special loneliness, said Mrs. Repenning. Before the death or divorce, there would be someone to talk to about rearing the children, someone to back up your decisions.

A single parent keeps wondering if they are being too strict or not strict enough in raising the children, they keep wondering if they are doing the right thing, said Mrs. Repenning.

Because of the special problems a single parent has, the club will plan many of the activities so that the children can participate.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

US appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The State

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

First Policewoman Here Is 'Just One Of The Guys'

by DAVID MAHSMAN

When Irene Cregar answered a newspaper advertisement asking for applicants, male or female, to be Arlington Heights police officers, she had no idea she would be the first policewoman in the village's history.

Because the ad had no sexually discriminatory overtones, Miss Cregar (she prefers to be called "Miss") rather than the more emancipated "Ms.") gave no thought to the notion that she would be turned down just because she is a woman. And she wasn't.

And don't mistake Miss Cregar for a meter maid or jail matron. She is receiving the same training as her male counterparts in the Northwest Police Academy here, and will be a full-fledged police officer.

MISS CREGAR will be graduated from the academy Thursday, and will be assigned to the police department's juvenile division. During her two months of training, she has learned law, first aid, self-defense, fire arms and other aspects of police work. She said the training — she's a "fair" shot with her Smith and Wesson .38 and can handle herself in defense situations — has given her a good, wide base for street work.

Although she will be a juvenile officer, not a beat officer, Sgt. Paul Buckholz, her boss-to-be, says she will need every bit of her police training, as well as some additional training.

"There is no aspect of police work that can't be found in the juvenile division," Buckholz said of his section, which has handled even murder cases. He added that there are times when work in juvenile can be even more dangerous than regular street work.

And Buckholz said he will not give Miss Cregar any preferential treatment over the men working the juvenile division.

"I was hoping for appointment to juvenile," Miss Cregar said. She added that she applied to the department "because I thought I could help. I thought I could be useful."

BEFORE APPLYING to be a police department cadet (she will be on probation for one year), Miss Cregar, 26, was a sales clerk at Homemaker's Furniture. Although she liked her former job, Miss Cregar said she looks to police work as a career, not just another job.

So she took the plunge, put in her application and started police school, much to the amazement of her male colleagues.

"In the beginning, the guys looked at us like 'what are you doing here?'," Miss Cregar said of herself and Linda Hamilton, a female police cadet from Evanston. "But not a week later, the guys were all great."

But though she has been assured that she will receive no preferential treatment in her job, the shy, soft-spoken policewoman said the men in her class treat her and Miss Hamilton with some deference. For example, she said she is sure the men watch their language around the two women, "but they keep telling us we're just one of the guys."

AS FOR HER own feeling on sex roles, Miss Cregar said she certainly isn't going to insist that her police partner open doors for her or light her cigarettes.

"That's not to say that when I'm off duty I don't want to be treated like a lady," she added quickly. Miss Cregar said she thinks it is more civilized if people are "ladies and gentlemen." Still, she isn't opposed to such current trends as having the woman ask a man to dance.

Buckholz said he would like to see more women in police work, adding that he thinks there will be more. And although he doesn't know if or when women will patrol in beat cars in Arlington Heights, Buckholz said women will eventually be assigned to that job.

And her parents' feelings on her decision to be a policewoman?

"My father laughed, and my mother cried," Miss Cregar said. "But now they're both very proud of me."

IRENE CREGAR, Arlington Heights' first and only policewoman, studies the policies and regulations of the juvenile division, to which she will be assigned. Miss Cregar says she wanted to work in the juvenile department and has been told she will receive no preferential treatment.

Volunteer Blood Group To Meet

Volunteer workers in the Elk Grove Village community blood assurance program will meet at 10 a.m. Saturday in the lower level of the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

Nanci Vanderweel, coordinating committee chairman, said the meeting will be to distribute materials and pledge cards to be used in the blood donor campaign. She said any interested groups not present at the meeting last month are invited to send representatives, along with organizations that have already promised cooperation.

Medical Center Officials Apply For State Permit

Officials of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center have applied to the state for a permit to operate a hospital in Schaumburg.

The initial operating permit is one of the first steps to be taken in the process of obtaining official state approval for operating a hospital, according to R. F. Bilstein of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator of the proposed Presbyterian-St. Luke's Schaumburg branch, said the hospital is now preparing the detailed application.

Hospital officials must also present their plans before the Hospital Licensing Board.

While Bilstein said the next meeting of the licensing board will be Jan. 10 in Springfield, officials of Presbyterian-St. Luke's have not requested a place on the agenda to present their plans.

HE SAID IT is possible that the hospital could still make a request to appear at the meeting, though he has received no indication such an action would be taken.

Buhrmann does know if the application and other related material will be completed in time for the meeting next month.

State officials said the application for an initial operating permit requires complete information about plans for the proposed hospital, including finances.

Further reviews of the plans occur as development of the facility proceed, Bilstein said. State review and approval is also needed for architectural plans, bids and other procedures. A final review of the project is undertaken before the bids are accepted.

Formal licensing of the hospital does not take place until the facility is completed, staffed and ready for operation, Bilstein explained.

The state licensing board does not meet again, after the January session, until March of next year, he said.

Village Plans To Ban Trucks

of the boulevard it is necessary to travel.

The trustees had proposed replacing the present ordinance with an ordinance that restricted the use of the two residential boulevards according to license plate classification. However, Village Atty. Edward Hofert recommended against such an ordinance because it also could be challenged on legal grounds.

ALSO AT TUESDAY'S village board meeting the trustees approved an agreement with the state for personnel and administration funding for Civil Defense. The agreement had been rejected by the trustees on the grounds it took away a great deal of management and personnel responsibility from the village.

However, Village Mgr. Charles Willis said the state generally did not try to exercise much control over local operations, and the village would have the option of withdrawing from the program at anytime. He recommended the agreement be approved. The contract would mean about $4,000 for the village's Civil Defense program.

Plans for four years' service or more to the village were awarded to Patricia Smith, finance department employee; William Shannon, plan commission chairman; Richard Potker, plan commission; Jim Morita, housing commission; Charles Riley, fire and police commission; and Dr. Alan Shapiro, fire and police commission secretary.

IN OTHER business:

—The zoning board of appeals was authorized to conduct a public hearing on a request from Robert Nichol, of Osco Drugs Inc., to erect a nine-foot fence on company property at 2401 Lunt Ave.

—An ordinance amending the text of the zoning ordinance relating to parking for indoor tennis facilities was approved.

—A fire prevention code was passed regulating the use and storage of dangerous materials.

—The village president and clerk were authorized to sign an agreement with Cook County for participation in the Emergency Employment Act program. The money from the program is used to hire an auto mechanic.

School Panel To Delay Computer Expansion

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 facilities committee plans to postpone action on expansion of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) computer center at Sunset Park School until after the school census is completed.

"We're going to take a look at the projected enrollment for the next three years. If the census indicates we won't need the room, we'll give them (NEC) an option on the extra room," said Peter Oleson, chairman of the committee. "This is a long way from giving them a lease, however," he said.

As yet, NEC has not formally requested that they would like another classroom next year. They have indicated that they might need the space.

Should the district give NEC an option on the extra classroom, the present computer room will be expanded and a staff conference room and washroom for the NEC employees will also be included. The estimated cost of remodeling the room to include a washroom is $500. The district is responsible for all remodeling costs should NEC lease the extra room.

At a meeting between the facilities committee and parents at Sunset Park school Tuesday, one of the parents asked why a lease had still not been signed by Dist. 214, the legal arm of NEC, for the space NEC is now occupying. According to Jeff Inkle, business manager for NEC, the signing of the lease was postponed until NEC could be assured that they could lease the extra classroom.

"They didn't want to sign two documents (one for the present space and one for the extra classroom)," said J. C. Busenhart, Dist. 57 business manager.

Federal Funds Granted For 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanston, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Bruce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $3.5 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise."

Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

THE FIRST shipments of supplemental food for Operation Nutrition since funds were released arrived at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows yesterday. Unloading the truck are Silvia Telamantes and Oscar Quozada.

Add-On Items Could Double Airport Study Cost

by PAT GERLACH

The federal government and the State of Illinois have each recently thrown separate monkeywrenches into the work of Schaumburg Airport Feasibility Study Committee.

Add-on items, which are not mandatory but have been suggested for inclusion in the study by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) could nearly double the cost of the airport feasibility study originally anticipated between $25,000 and $30,000.

Preparation of an FAA requested comprehensive environmental impact statement (EIS), as opposed to a simpler environmental statement called for in the federal planning grant application, and would add 11 months to the investigation. The study was expected to be completed in one year.

LAST MONTH, the Illinois Department of Aeronautics (IDA) discovered it cannot provide one-sixth of the cost of the study since it is a planning grant program.

Technicalities in the recently revised statute governing state funding have been discovered which prohibit financial assistance for airport planning until an opinion is received from the Illinois Attorney General.

According to Ray LeBeau, committee chairman, information concerning the state position on funding was transmitted to him in a letter dated Nov. 30.

LeBeau is arranging a joint meeting with FAA and IDA officials to discuss both problems.

"The village has allocated funds for the study so we do not actually need the state one-sixth, but we certainly would like to have it," LeBeau commented.

The village is attempting to determine the advisability of an expanded municipally-owned general aviation airport as part of a proposed regional transportation center.

In its 1972 appropriation, the village set aside $50,000 for the airport study since payments to the consulting firm doing the work must come from the municipality as sponsoring agency.

COST ESTIMATES furnished by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff (HNT&B), consulting agency in the project, revised to include the EIS and a public hearing indicate the study will total $56,362.

Originally their bid was $25,30,000 plus an additional 25 to 40 per cent for alternate site selection, environmental studies and economic projections.

Cost revisions were made following FAA suggestions calling for the in-depth environmental study.

Meeting with the airport panel last week, George Gross of HNT&B, project director for the Schaumburg study, suggested further negotiation with FAA.

Gross said the environmental study is required by FAA for airport construction. He indicated the simpler statement, which usually runs about six pages, can be done and keyed to a future study if results are positive.

Explaining his firm's position on increased costs, Gross said the expanded study was not being considered when proposals were obtained. He cited two recent comparable airport studies done in Minnesota by HNT&B which were funded with the simple statement. Gross also said he does not believe the study is standard for planning at present though he indicated FAA would prefer it that way.

BOB SANDERS, or the committee, criticized the FAA extras being added after a consulting firm was selected.

"What they (FAA) are proposing is going to cost us an additional $25,000 which was not required when we went into the study," Sanders said. He suggested with the proposed additions, FAA consider picking up an additional percentage of the cost.

Under the Airways Development and Airport Planning (ADAP) Act of 1970, FAA provides two-thirds of the cost of airport planning.

Monies come from a trust fund and represent taxes paid by aircraft owners (licensing gasoline, etc.) and tickets sold to commercial air passengers.

The Village of Schaumburg plans to recapture its portion of the study cost, and eventual construction if indicated by the investigation, through a revenue bond program which would create no tax burden for local residents.

Bonnie Hannon To Run For School Board

Of the three incumbent Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education members whose seats are up for election in April, only one indicates a definite interest in running for re-election.

Board member Bonnie Hannon, appointed in November, said she will definitely seek re-election to one of the three, 3-year terms. Other board members whose terms expire are Miss Dianne Marks, board president; and Bonnie Rudd, they are undecided about their candidacy.

Miss Marks said she has considered running for a seat on the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education. She stressed that she has not made a firm decision about her candidacy and does not rule out the possibility that she will run for re-election to the Dist. 54 board.

"A lot will depend on who files for both boards," said Miss Marks, adding she would like to see Schaumburg Township represented on the high school board.

RUDD, SAID HIS decision also depends on what candidates come forward.

"If the teachers run a block of candidates and attempt a take over of this board I will run again," said Rudd. The Schaumburg Education Association, during contract negotiations, said it would take an active part in this election, he added.

Rudd said "a lot has changed" since his resignation last fall and appointment to the board within the same month.

Rudd resigned in the midst of contract talks due to ill health, but when the district was faced with a possible teacher's strike he accepted reappointment to the board and has remained as a member.

"My health is improved," said Rudd. He added "an originally very negative report from my doctor has been modified and although I still face two major operations I am much better."

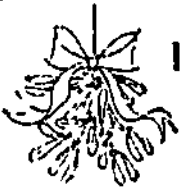

In the event he runs Rudd said he'll discuss fully any questions about his health.

Nominating petitions are available in the Dist. 54 administrative offices 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

First day of filing petitions is Feb. 28 for the April 14 election.

Revenue Sharing Funds Twice The Estimated Amount

by STEVE FORSYTH
Federal revenue-sharing is on the way. Sen. Charles Percy's office yesterday revealed that Wheeling and Buffalo Grove will be getting almost twice the funds that were estimated last month. The first installments are to be mailed today.

Wheeling will receive $36,260, and Buffalo Grove is in line for $22,476. Wheeling Township will receive $48,138. These checks represent approximately the first half of the 1972 revenue-sharing amounts.

The second installments, due in January, may be higher because of updating of information governing the amount each municipality receives. Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said, "It's more than the last estimate, and I had no idea what to expect, quite frankly. It's more, and I'm happy."

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Dan Larson was surprised at the increased amount. He and his assistant, Bill Balling, have been working on their own computations of what the village should get, for comparison with the actual money received. The study was in preparation for a possible appeal for more funds based on the village's rapidly increasing population.

U.S. TREASURY officials said the increase could be attributed to updating of figures used in determining money to be given out. Original estimates were based on 1967 figures, and the current checks are based on 1970-71 figures.

Taken into consideration in determining the amounts are per capita income, village population and village tax effort (the amount of taxes residents pay). Population plays the smallest part in the determination.

Buffalo Grove may now continue with plans to use the money for a public works garage, a long-awaited project. Larson said village officials have discussed building a $250,000-$300,000 facility, using revenue sharing funds for five years to pay off a bank loan for the structure.

The money hasn't been specifically earmarked, but Larson said the public works building is one of the highest priority items.

PASSOLT CONTINUING with his original plan, stated last month he would probably put the money in the general fund, hopefully to keep from raising taxes.

He said yesterday, "I have to set up a very definite program on what I will use the money for. I had thought I would be very far along by now, but I'm not."

Passolt added he hopes to develop an overall plan for all checks over the next few years. "I still maintain the philosophy that I'll spend it after I get it, and not before."

The township allotment has not been discussed seriously yet. Ethel Kolerus, township supervisor, said the money will be put into interest-bearing accounts until they decide what to do with it. She said they had no idea how much they would be getting until it was announced. The township has an annual budget of $165,000.

When the first House Bill on revenue sharing was passed, both villages were scheduled to get a larger amount of money than they are receiving. The program was cut when a compromise bill balanced the House Bill with a Senate bill strongly backed by rural interests.

Buffalo Grove at one time was to get $186,566 for 1972, and Wheeling would have received $148,760.

According to federal guidelines, revenue sharing funds can be used for almost any purpose except education or for matching federal grants. Almost all other areas, including law enforcement, environmental protection, transportation and social services are covered by broad categories approved in the bill.

Wedgewood Building Continues

Seek Injunction To Halt Riding Academy Landfill

by LYNN ASINOF
While construction continues on the Wedgewood Riding Academy on North Milwaukee Avenue just north of the village, the Cook County states attorney's office is seeking an injunction to halt alleged landfill operations on the site.

The riding academy, being built by Leonard Pecos, was previously cited with building violations charging building without the proper permits and illegal landfill operations.

Since the citations were issued in October, Pecos has obtained the proper building permits from the county for above-ground construction. Because he complied with county regulations on that point, the state's attorney's office is not prosecuting for that citation.

The state's attorney's office is, however, prosecuting Pecos for illegal landfill operations. Allegedly, workers are filling in an old sand quarry on the construction site. Pecos does not have the special use permit required by the county for landfill operations.

ACCORDING TO PECOS, there is no landfill taking place at the riding academy. He said the alleged landfill was merely part of the excavation needed for construction of the riding academy.

However, William Breber, Wheeling's director of building and zoning, claims landfill is going on at the site. "He has been filling. I've got the pictures to prove it," he said.

Bieber said he is concerned that the landfill at the site will affect the area's flood plain by filling in a needed water retention area. At the direction of the Wheeling Village Board, Bieber and Village Atty. Paul Hamer have offered to testify against Pecos.

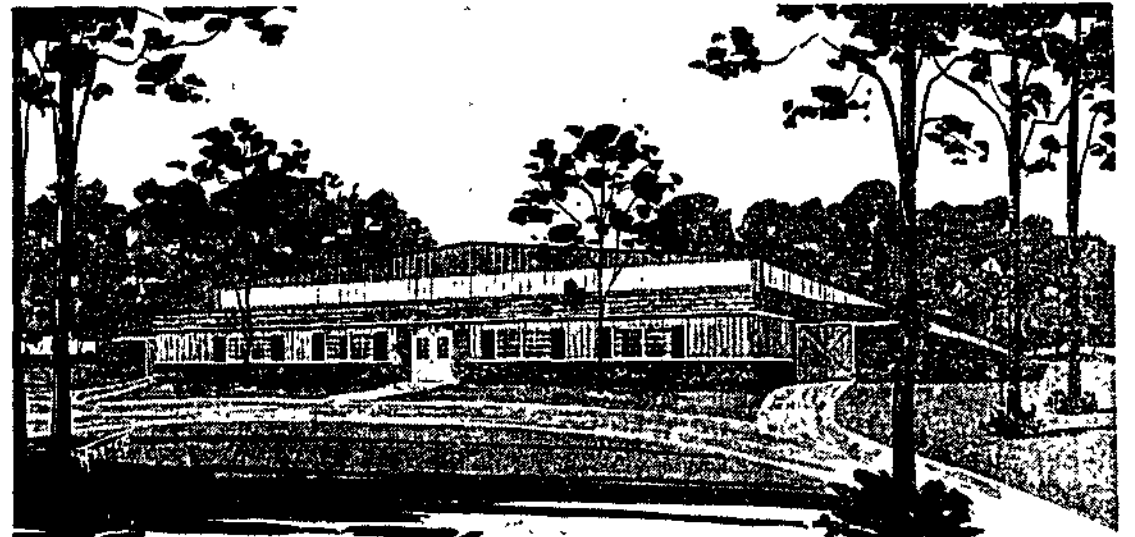

Both Wheeling officials were in court

Monday for a hearing on the landfill violation. The case was dismissed, however, because of a legal technicality when it was discovered that the complaint against Pecos was incorrectly filed.

TO COMPENSATE for this error, the state's attorney's office is preparing to ask the court for an injunction against the riding academy to halt all landfill operations. Asst. State's Atty. Jerome Schain said he expected to take the injunction request to court either today or Monday.

Schain explained that it was likely that his office would also ask for a ruling on the alleged violation at the same time it asked for the injunction. A ruling against Pecos could result in a fine.

Pecos said the problems he has had with the county are mainly a result of intervention by Wheeling officials. "Basically Wheeling had a lot to do with it,"

CONSTRUCTION OF THE Wedgewood Riding Academy north of Wheeling has been the cause of several legal disputes. Despite the alleged violations of riding rink, boarding facilities and riding instruction, the county building codes, the riding academy is scheduled to open this spring. Located on N. Milwaukee Ave. next to the forest preserve, it will feature an indoor riding rink, boarding facilities and riding instruction.

he said. "It's been quite a problem trying to put it all together."

According to Pecos, he chose the site on Milwaukee Avenue because it abuts the forest preserve, offering a place for his clients to ride. He explained that the riding academy will provide boarding facilities as well as riding instruction.

The riding academy is scheduled to open this spring. Pecos said the emphasis of the school will be on the balanced seat method of riding as well as training for hunters and jumpers. He added that many on his staff have received their training in Europe.

Land For Parks Getting Scarce

Editor's note: This is the last in a series examining the condition of the parks in the Wheeling Park District, and the improvements planned in a $700,000 referendum Dec. 16.

by LYNN ASINOF
Development in Wheeling is rapidly putting a squeeze on the Wheeling Park District.

As the community grows, the park district wants and needs more land to serve an increasing number of people. Park officials, however, have found that the current building boom is gobbling up vacant property and forcing land prices out of range.

As a result, park officials see the upcoming park improvements referendum as their last chance to preserve open space for recreation.

"If no land is purchased in this area, we will probably be too late," said Park Supt. Dave Phillips. "If we don't get land now, we're never going to get it."

Phillips said property in Wheeling now starts at $20,000 an acre for land in the flood plain. Other land is even more expensive.

Because of these soaring prices, the park district is anxious to acquire land now before the cost of acreage goes even higher. "We are all in favor of increased population in favor of increased population in Wheeling," said Park Board President Lorraine Lark. "However, we would rather see 10 or 15 acres as a park site than a multi-family dwelling."

PLANS FOR THE $700,000 referendum include the addition of two new park sites, both in the western section of the village. One site has already been chosen, and negotiations on a second, larger site are under way.

The first site is north of Valley Stream Drive in the northwestern section of town. The park district has an option to buy the 2.4-acre site for $53,500.

Because this site is small, the park district plans to use it as a neighborhood play area. Approximately $35,200 of the referendum funds have been earmarked for grading, seeding, landscaping and installation of playground equipment, a ball diamond and a bridge spanning the creek.

Another $44,500 in anticipated matching federal funds would increase these basic improvements as well as finance the purchase of a backdrop and picnic tables.

Plans for the second new park site are still incomplete. The park district is negotiating for 10 to 15 acres of land in the central western section of the village, an area that is now mainly served by school-park sites.

"BASED ON THE land figures, we are trying to find the most land for the least cost," Mrs. Lark said.

Phillips explained that the park district is looking for "one big site instead of three or four little ones because we need the land." He said the exact use of the park site would be determined by the character of the land by the needs of the community.

According to Phillips, the park district will work with various neighborhood organizations to determine the use of the new park site once it is purchased. He said money from the referendum would be used to provide basic landscaping for the new park.

In all, the park district has allocated $175,000 from local referendum funds for land acquisition. Another $350,000 in anticipated matching federal funds would significantly bolster the land acquisition program.

"Anything we can keep green, we will keep green," Mrs. Lark said. "But we're not getting it from anyone. We have to ask you (the public) to help us."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State
U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

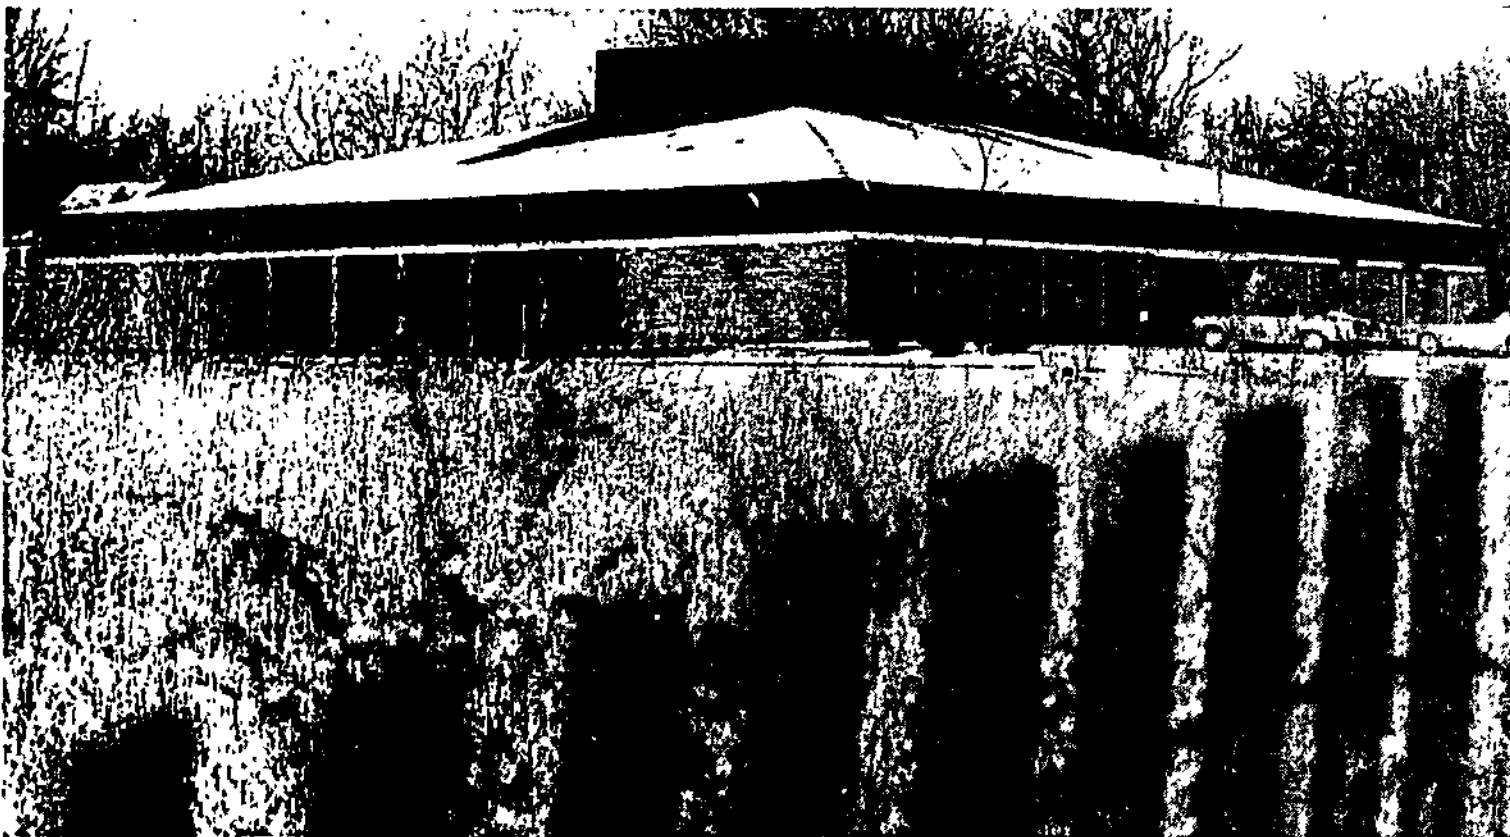

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War
Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

Community Information Center

Library Offers Something For All

Senior citizens to preschoolers. Science fiction addicts to antique buffs.

The new Prospect Heights Public Library is for them all, according to Rose McDonald, head librarian. "The library should serve the entire community. It should be its information center," said Mrs. McDonald, who is putting her philosophy to good use at the new library, 12 N. Elm St.

For those who like to relax while they look over the Wall Street Journal, there are vinyl covered armchairs. For youngsters who like to spread out while they concentrate, the floors are carpeted. And for those who like seclusion, study carrels will soon be installed.

An open house is scheduled for 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. tomorrow to acquaint residents with the library.

What they'll see is a modern building, composed of wood, glass and brick. The library is divided into two rooms: one for adults and one for children. The rooms have space for 45,000 books. The 10,300 square feet — 9,100 more than the old library storefront on Rte. 83 — also includes a work area, conference room and a large meeting room that can be used by the public.

"It's a good library design, right up to the ceiling," said Mrs. McDonald, pointing to the high white ceiling hiding the indirect lighting. "Besides, it's functional."

MRS. McDONALD, who came to the Prospect Heights library in July, has big plans for the new building. Currently she and the library board are working on a five-year development plan.

"I think it's important to have an informed community and that the library should be used for more than just recreational reading. I would like to develop a better nonfiction section. We're starting to place more emphasis on that direction," she said, pointing to reference books on careers, literature and art that are now on the library's shelves.

Mrs. McDonald is also in the process of developing a special section for the blind, equipped with "talking machines" that will play a variety of novels. The section is being paid for by the Prospect Heights Lions Club.

A FILM PROGRAM, more story hours and longer hours for the library are also in Mrs. McDonald's plans, although she admits they may take time because of financial limitations. She's worried that the property tax freeze proposed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie may be approved.

"If that happens we could be in trouble," she said, adding that she went to Springfield last month to try to convince area legislators to oppose the proposal.

But whatever happens, Mrs. McDonald is happy about the new building and what's inside of it. "It's exciting," she said. "And it's been a real challenge to make the move."

Federal Funds Granted For 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanston, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Bruce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $3.5 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise. Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

Food for the program is provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The food is shipped into a central warehouse in Chicago and a private firm has donated a truck to pick up the food in Chicago and bring it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Since the program started two years ago, the food was broken down in Chicago into prescription packages to fit the need of the families receiving it. To cut back costs the food will now be shipped in bulk to the Northwest Opportunity Center where it will be broken down into packages for the individual families.

THE FIRST shipments of food since funding was received arrived at the center yesterday. Families receiving assistance from this program can pick up their food during the first three weeks of each month.

For the past two years the center has conducted classes each fall to teach mothers recipes and how to use the food to make it more palatable. Newton said no classes were planned this year but the center's outreach workers would be talking to mothers about the use of the food.

Application for Operation Nutrition may be made at the center, 3111 Kirchhoff Rd. Newton said there are facilities and funds available to expand the program to serve 350 families.

Post Office Will Expand Hours

The Wheeling Post Office will expand service hours for the Christmas season beginning Saturday. The service counter will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 9 and 16.

Beginning Monday, weekday hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Extended hours will continue through Dec. 20.

Service hours at the branch post office at Mark's Drugs in the Ranchmart Shopping Center will begin Monday. Weekdays through Dec. 20 the office will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. On Saturdays (Dec. 9 and 16) the branch office will close at 5 p.m.

Postal officials said it will aid postal service if cards and letters are bundled with rubber bands or string and with all addresses facing the same way. Local mail and out of town mail should be in separate bundles. Wheeling and Buffalo Grove addresses are local for the Wheeling Post Office. All other addresses are "out of town."

Mail early and use ZIP codes, postal authorities suggest.

Williamson To Speak On Music Education

Jack Williamson, director of bands at Wheeling High School, has been selected as a visiting lecturer in music education for the 1973 summer session at the University of Illinois.

Williamson will take part in teaching a course in marching band for directors at the graduate level. The other instructors will be William Swor, director of bands at Louisiana State University, and William Foster, director of bands at Florida A & M University.

WHS Christmas Concert Sunday

Wheeling High School's music department will present its ninth annual Christmas concert, "Music in the Holiday Spirit," at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the school gymnasium. Three instrumental groups will perform.

Families Sought For 175 Brazilian Exchange Students

Directors of the International Fellowship foreign exchange program are looking for families to host 175 Brazilian students who expect to arrive in the United States Dec. 18.

"If we can't find the homes for them they won't be able to come. And some of them have been planning on it for nine months," said Jenny Martin, International Fellowship Midwest director. The program sponsors student exchanges between South, Central and Latin America and the United States.

This year there are twice as many students from Brazil because four new International Fellowship chapters have been opened there, according to Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin said the boys would stay here three to six months and would attend high school during their stay. She said high schools in the Northwest suburbs have already been notified the boys may be staying in the area and have agreed to accept them as students.

THE BOYS, who are coming here during their summer vacation, are chosen by teachers and the principal at the schools they attend in Brazil. Then they are screened by heads of the local chapters.

"A host family doesn't have to worry about the boy's expenses. The boys have their own spending money," Mrs. Martin said. "There's no expense to the family other than room and board."

Any family who wishes to host one of these boys should contact Mrs. Martin, 253-0378 before Dec. 15. She will then interview the family. She said it is not necessary that the boys have their own rooms, just their own beds.

"The main thing is that the family has the desire. It's more important than the style of home and income," she said.

Freshman At U Of I

18-Year-Old Runs For Board Post

Kevin McCarthy, 18, of 917 Ridge Ct., became the youngest person ever to run for an Elk Grove Village office in announcing his candidacy for a four-year trusteeship term this week.

McCarthy, a premedical student majoring in political science at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus, said he expects a lot of people to question him about his age, but feels his youth is an asset, not a handicap.

"As a student, I am not tied down to a job, and I can schedule my education around being a trustee," he said. "For that position (trustee), my age can be a benefit."

"I decided to run because I enjoy politics, especially on the local level, and I believe I can help the people of the village by bringing in a new point of view and new ideas," McCarthy said. He said he has been interested in village government since he was 13 and has attended board of trustees meeting for the past five years.

The college freshman said he and his family have lived in the village 12 years, and he attended Queen of the Rosary Catholic School, Grove Junior High School and Elk Grove High School. He currently is serving as an associate staff member for Campus Life working with high school students.

McCarthy said one of the most important issues facing the village today was planning for growth and development. "We have a very good plan commission right now, but we also need a professional planner to give some guidance and direction," he said.

"I THINK WHAT we need to do is to plan what Elk Grove Village will look like 15 years from now or we'll end up with a confused mess," he said. "We need a professional planner and, more important, interested citizens to say what they want the village to look like in the future."

McCarthy said this group which would study the long-range plans of the Village should include people from the industrial area as well as residents. "This village is made up of more than people who just reside here. It is also business and industry, and they should be included in planning."

McCarthy said he also would like to see the village government become a little more open and closer to the people. "Many residents don't even know the names of their trustees, and, if the people are apathetic, we could get bad officials some day."

ALONG WITH this openness, McCarthy said there should be complete compliance with the state open meetings law, which makes village meetings open to the public except in specific circumstances. He added it was most important to have meetings open during budgeting times when decisions are made on how to spend the people's money.

McCarthy said part of his campaign was for him and his workers to go house to house trying to get more than a handful of people voting in the village elections in April. "As I campaign, I am going to try to get more people involved in village government and out to vote."

Arlington Ranks 4th On Census Income Report

Arlington Heights is richer than you think.

The U.S. Census Bureau now reports that 10 U.S. cities of more than 50,000 in population have median family incomes of $15,000 or more, and that the Village of Arlington Heights ranks fourth on this select list.

Census figures indicate the median family income in Arlington Heights has climbed to $17,034, making it the "richest" community of its size in Illinois.

The Village of Skokie ranked fifth in the Census tabulation with a median family income of $16,423.

Without exception, all 10 communities were suburban municipalities surrounding major metropolitan areas.

Topping the list was Bethesda, Md., with a reported median income of $21,116.

OTHER MUNICIPALITIES included: Southfield, Mich., $18,141; Greenwich, Conn., $18,021; Arlington Heights, $17,034; Skokie, $16,423; Bellevue, Wash., $15,463; West Hartford, Conn., $15,451; Newton, Mass., $15,301; Livonia, Mich., $15,216; and Palo Alto, Calif., $15,036.

At the other end of the income scale, the census reports nine communities over 50,000 now have a median family income which is below poverty level for more than 20 per cent of their families.

All of the cities on this list are located in the south except for East St. Louis, Ill.

Average family income in the U.S. was reported at $9,590 — an increase of 69.1 per cent over the previous decade.

New Group Offers 'Understanding'

by FRED GACA
You have recently lost your husband or wife through death, divorce or separation. More than anything else, you want someone to talk to about the shock, the loneliness, the bitterness you feel.

To whom do you go?
A minister? If you are affiliated with a church, that could do for a time, but a minister is a busy man and you do not want to take too much of his time. And if you are not affiliated with a church, you feel strange about going to a minister you have never spoken to before.

A professional therapist? No, you do not need professional counseling. You only want to talk to someone who can understand your problems.

A bartender? That gets expensive and there are no answers at the bottom of a highball glass.

In Elk Grove Village, there is a place to go, the Singles Again Club.

The club was founded in May and has about 15 active members with another 15

Christmas Party For Singles Again

Any widow, widower, divorced or separated person is invited to the Christmas party sponsored by the Singles Again Club. Escorts and dates are also invited to the party at 8 p.m., Dec. 15, at 453 E. Elk Grove Blvd. Anyone interested in attending is asked to call Joanne Repenning, chairman of the club, in the evening at 437-3127.

names on its mailing list. Joanne Repenning, chairman, said she would like to see the club grow to about 30 active members with 100 names on the mailing list.

The club started after congregation members of Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit attended a lecture, "Death and the Christian Hope" at the church. Mrs. Repenning said that during the discussion after the lecture, the comment was made that, "What the village lacks is an organization for single parents."

Robert Smith, director of Christian education at the church, organized the Singles Again Club and Mrs. Repenning became chairman.

MRS. REPENNING called the club, "more or less a social group." It is open to anyone who has lost a husband or wife and is not directly connected with the church. Most of the members have children, but being a parent is not a requirement for membership.

Dues are $12 a year. Anyone interested in joining can call Mrs. Repenning at 437-3127 or Smith at the church, 437-1666.

After the new year, the club will be more formally organized and will hold its first election of officers.

Mrs. Repenning said that the club, "will try for at least one event a month." This year the club has sponsored a hot dog roast, pumpkin hunt, dinner and theater evening, and a cocktail party. The club has also sponsored talks by various ministers on the subject of losing one's husband or wife and has had a lawyer speak on legal problems involving an estate.

The club will also plan on taking a more active role in helping people adjust to the loss of a mate.

Mrs. Repenning has been a widow for five years. When the club was formed, she said "I was over the hump, but for people who are newly separated, it's quite a thing to go through."

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Repenning, there are three serious emotional problems resulting from death or divorce.

"The first is the initial shock," said Mrs. Repenning. "Then there is the bitterness. You wonder what you could have done to prevent the death or divorce."

"The worst though, is the loneliness. There is a loss of friends, they avoid you. They are afraid to talk about the loss. But what you need the most is to talk about it."

A single parent faces a special loneliness, said Mrs. Repenning. Before the death or divorce, there would be someone to talk to about rearing the children, someone to back up your decisions.

A single parent keeps wondering if they are being too strict or not strict enough in raising the children, they keep wondering if they are doing the right thing, said Mrs. Repenning.

Because of the special problems a single parent has, the club will plan many of the activities so that the children can participate.

School Panel Delays Plan For Computer Growth

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 facilities committee plans to postpone action on expansion of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) computer center at Sunset Park School until after the school census is completed.

"We're going to take a look at the projected enrollment for the next three years. If the census indicates we won't need the room, we'll give them (NEC) an option on the extra room," said Peter Oleson, chairman of the committee. "This is a long way from giving them a lease, however," he said.

As yet, NEC has not formally requested that they would like another classroom next year. They have indicated that they might need the space.

Should the district give NEC an option on the extra classroom, the present computer room will be expanded and a staff conference room and washroom for the NEC employees will also be included. The estimated cost of remodeling the room to include a washroom is $500. The district is responsible for all remodeling costs should NEC lease the extra room.

At a meeting between the facilities committee and parents at Sunset Park school Tuesday, one of the parents asked why a lease had still not been signed by Dist. 214, the legal arm of NEC, for the space NEC is now occupying. According to Jeff Inley, business manager for NEC, the signing of the lease was postponed until NEC could be assured that they could lease the extra classroom.

"They didn't want to sign two documents (one for the present space and one for the extra classroom)," said J. C. Busenhart, Dist. 57 business manager.

Revenue Sharing Funds Twice The Estimated Amount

by STEVE FORSYTH
Federal revenue-sharing is on the way. Sen. Charles Percy's office yesterday revealed that Wheeling and Buffalo Grove will be getting almost twice the funds that were estimated last month. The first installments are to be mailed today.

Wheeling will receive $56,260, and Buffalo Grove is in line for $22,476. Wheeling Township will receive $48,158. These checks represent approximately the first half of the 1972 revenue-sharing amounts. The second installments, due in January, may be higher because of updating of information governing the amount each municipality receives.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said, "It's more than the last estimate, and I had no idea what to expect, quite frankly. It's more, and I'm happy." Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Dan Larson was surprised at the increased amount. He and his assistant, Bill Baling, have been working on their own computations of what the village should get, for comparison with the actual money received. The study was in preparation for a possible appeal for more funds based on the village's rapidly increasing population.

U.S. TREASURY officials said the increase could be attributed to updating of figures used in determining money to be given out. Original estimates were based on 1967 figures, and the current checks are based on 1970-71 figures. Taken into consideration in determining the amounts are per capita income, village population and village tax effort (the amount of taxes residents pay). Population plays the smallest part in the determination.

Buffalo Grove may now continue with plans to use the money for a public works garage, a long-awaited project. Larson said village officials have discussed building a $250,000-$300,000 facility, using revenue sharing funds for five years to pay off a bank loan for the structure. The money hasn't been specifically earmarked, but Larson said the public works building is one of the highest priority items.

PASSOLT CONTINUING with his original plan, stated last month he would probably put the money in the general fund, hopefully to keep from raising taxes. He said yesterday, "I have to set up a very definite program on what I will use the money for. I had thought I would be very far along by now, but I'm not."

Single-Family Development Urged In New Master Plan

by JILL BETTNER
A proposed master plan based on single-family development and minimum growth was presented to the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night by village plan consultant Robert Grossman.

Grossman was directed to prepare the alternative proposal after his first suggested future land use pattern (for areas likely to be annexed into the village by 1990) was rejected by village residents. The first plan envisioned the village as a city of 60,000 with about half its residents living in single-family homes and the other half in planned unit developments (PUDs).

THE NEARLY 100 citizens attending three information sessions on the plan two weeks ago objected to the percentage of multi-family housing provided for in the plan and requested a plan emphasizing the present single-family nature of the village. The main differences between Grossman's first plan and the plan he showed Wednesday are the densities used to calculate population and the impact on local schools.

Broadway Musicals Scheduled Here

Famous Broadway musicals will premiere in Buffalo Grove next April as Passport 73 goes into full swing. The program at St. Mary's Church will include nine different "night clubs," each featuring excerpts from famous Broadway musicals and comedies. In addition, six lounges will be open, and crowds will be entertained by stand-up comedians and musical groups. Food and beverages will also be served in the lounges.

The shows will be performed three nights over two weekends. Reservation forms for first-night tickets will be available shortly after Jan. 1. For information, phone Don Allard, 537-4622. Veterans of the past three years of Passport sell-out performances estimate a crowd of 3,500 to 4,000 at the new show. Last year the two-night program featured seven nightclubs, each featuring a different country of the world, with a live entertainment show.

'Mistletoe Magic' Dance Saturday

A Mistletoe Magic dance Saturday evening is just one of several activities planned as part of Christmas Daze at St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove this weekend. Bob Peters and his Merry Men will provide the music for dancing from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. The Townsquare Players of Woodstock, will also entertain during the evening with a musical comedy. In addition, Jan Mahoney will conduct a Celebrity Auction, with the proceeds to be used for St. Mary's School library. Joanne and Austin Brodman, 537-5823, are chairmen of the dance committee. The tickets are $2.50 per person. A bazaar featuring a variety of Christmas gift ideas will be open in the East Room of the school hall on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE Wedgewood Riding Academy north of Wheeling has been the cause of several legal disputes. Despite the alleged violations of the county building codes, the riding academy is scheduled to open this spring. Located on N. Milwaukee Ave. next to the forest preserve, it will feature an indoor riding rink, boarding facilities and riding instruction.

lage — Dundee, Lake-Cook and Buffalo Grove roads.

"My general reaction is that what we have here is a discussion plan," said Plan Commission Chairman Carl Genrich. "We couldn't adopt either one of these plans as they're shown here."

Grossman was directed to research the possibility of working out another map designating each land use area and a proposed density. No date was set for the next meeting regarding the proposed plan.

IN OTHER business, discussion of the request from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District for annexation and zoning of 6½ acres on Dundee Road for a local fire station was postponed because Buffalo Grove Fire Department officials were unable to be present.

The Fire District has a four-month option to buy the property directly west of the Kingswood Methodist Church, contingent on gaining the necessary zoning.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department is planning to build a station on two acres of the site under special use zoning and sell the rest under R-1 zoning.

If the fire district is to recover the cost of the station by selling the remaining land, as it hopes to do, anyone who purchases it must apply for a zoning variation for some type of commercial use.

The fire district is buying the land at a cost of approximately $55,000 an acre. The going rate for one-acre of improved residential property in the village is around $25,000. In contrast, the commercial rate approaches $100,000 for land along Dundee Road.

$10,000 Park Debt Mystery Solved

Officials of the village and the Buffalo Grove Park District last night cleared up the controversy surrounding a $10,688.75 debt the park district was charged with owing the village.

Part of the debt actually belongs to the late George Moser, developer of Stonegate Apartments. Village Mgr. Dan Larson was directed to write a letter to Moser's son, George Moser Jr., requesting payment.

In 1970, Moser offered to donate $6,000 for two community tennis courts and to renovate the old police station at Emmerich Park, which is now the George Moser Preschool Center.

AT THAT TIME the village was paying the bills for the park district, which was formed Sept. 20, 1969. For the first 23 months of its existence, the district was unable to collect any tax moneys.

The financial arrangement between the park district and the village was for the remainder of the 1969 fiscal year ending April 1. However, it was discovered in July, 1970, that the village was still paying park district bills.

An examination of expenditures showed the bills between May 1 and July 15 amounted to $6,193.87. The park board and village officials agreed at a joint meeting July 30 to use Moser's donation to settle the account.

The intent to collect the money from Moser for that purpose is expressed in the minutes of the village board meeting of Aug. 24, 1970. However, for an unknown reason, the money was never received.

LARSON HAD earlier contended the park district actually ran up a bill of $10,688.75 during the two-month period after the end of the 1969 fiscal year. However, after discussing the expenditures with Park Board President William Kiddle, Larson agreed that approximately $4,000 were payments not authorized by the park district. The village will absorb this cost.

Although Moser's intention to donate the $6,200 was never made part of any written agreement, Larson said he is confident the village will be able to collect.

"If he (George Moser Jr.) refuses to pay, we'll just have to resort to some kind of court action," Larson said.

"As long as it doesn't cost the park district any money or hurt the people of this village, we're satisfied," Kiddle said.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Due Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

THE NEW PROSPECT Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St., is quite a change from the cramped store front on Rte. 83 that used to house the li-

Community Information Center

Library Offers Something For All

Senior citizens to preschoolers. Science fiction addicts to antique buffs.

The new Prospect Heights Public Library is for them all, according to Rose McDonald, head librarian. "The library should serve the entire community. It should be its information center," said Mrs. McDonald, who is putting her philosophy to good use at the new library, 12 N. Elm St.

For those who like to relax while they look over the Wall Street Journal, there are vinyl covered armchairs. For youngsters who like to spread out while they concentrate, the floors are carpeted. And for those who like seclusion, study carrels will soon be installed.

An open house is scheduled for 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. tomorrow to acquaint residents with the library.

What they'll see is a modern building, composed of wood, glass and brick. The library is divided into two rooms: one for adults and one for children. The rooms have space for 45,000 books. The 10,300 square feet — 9,100 more than the old library storefront on Rte. 83 — also includes a work area, conference room and a large meeting room that can be used by the public.

"It's a good library design, right up to the ceiling," said Mrs. McDonald, pointing to the high white ceiling hiding the indirect lighting. "Besides, it's functional."

MRS. McDONALD, who came to the Prospect Heights library in July, has big plans for the new building. Currently she and the library board are working on a five-year development plan.

"I think it's important to have an informed community and that the library should be used for more than just recreational reading. I would like to develop a better nonfiction section. We're starting to place more emphasis on that direction," she said, pointing to reference books on careers, literature and art that are now on the library's shelves.

Mrs. McDonald is also in the process of developing a special section for the blind, equipped with "talking machines" that will play a variety of novels. The section is being paid for by the Prospect

Heights Lions Club.

A FILM PROGRAM, more story hours and longer hours for the library are also in Mrs. McDonald's plans, although she admits they may take time because of financial limitations. She's worried that the property tax freeze proposed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie may be approved.

"If that happens we could be in trouble," she said, adding that she went to Springfield last month to try to convince area legislators to oppose the proposal.

But whatever happens, Mrs. McDonald is happy about the new building and what's inside of it. "It's exciting," she said. "And it's been a real challenge to make the move."

Federal Funds Granted For 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanston, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Druce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $3.5 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise. Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

Food for the program is provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The food is shipped into a central warehouse in Chicago and a private firm has donated a truck to pick up the food in Chicago and bring it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Since the program started two years ago, the food was broken down in Chicago into prescription packages to fit the need of the families receiving it. To cut back costs the food will now be shipped in bulk to the Northwest Opportunity Center where it will be broken down into packages for the individual families.

THE FIRST shipments of food since funding was received arrived at the center yesterday. Families receiving assistance from this program can pick up their food during the first three weeks of each month.

For the past two years the center has conducted classes each fall to teach mothers recipes and how to use the food to make it more palatable. Newton said no classes were planned this year but the center's outreach workers would be talking to mothers about the use of the food.

Application for Operation Nutrition may be made at the center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd. Newton said there are facilities and funds available to expand the program to serve 350 families.

Post Office Will Expand Hours

The Wheeling Post Office will expand service hours for the Christmas season beginning Saturday. The service counter will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 9 and 16.

Beginning Monday, weekday hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Extended hours will continue through Dec. 20.

Service hours at the branch post office at Mark's Drugs in the Ranchmart Shopping Center will begin Monday. Weekdays through Dec. 20 the office will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. On Saturdays (Dec. 9 and 16) the branch office will close at 5 p.m.

Postal officials said it will aid postal service if cards and letters are bundled with rubber bands or string and with all addresses facing the same way. Local mail and out of town mail should be in separate bundles. Wheeling and Buffalo Grove addresses are local for the Wheeling Post Office. All other addresses are "out of town."

Mail early and use ZIP codes, postal authorities suggest.

Williamson To Speak On Music Education

Jack Williamson, director of bands at Wheeling High School, has been selected as a visiting lecturer in music education for the 1973 summer session at the University of Illinois.

Williamson will take part in teaching a course in marching band for directors at the graduate level.

Williamson will be the only high school director involved. The other instructors will be William Saor, director of bands at Louisiana State University, and William Foster, director of bands at Florida A & M University.

WHS Christmas Concert Sunday

Wheeling High School's music department will present its ninth annual Christmas concert, "Music in the Holiday Spirit," at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the school gymnasium. Three instrumental groups will perform.

The concert orchestra, under the direction of Jack Williamson, will present Vivaldi's "Concerto in D Major" and "Nutcracker Suite." James Kasprzyk will conduct the symphonic band. Their selections include Chant and Jubile and Adeste Fidelis. The wind symphony will present "Suite of Old American Dances," "Variations on America," and "A Christmas Festival." Williamson will also conduct the Wind Symphony.

Families Sought For 175 Brazilian Exchange Students

Directors of the International Fellowship foreign exchange program are looking for families to host 175 Brazilian students who expect to arrive in the United States Dec. 18.

"If we can't find the homes for them they won't be able to come. And some of them have been planning on it for nine months," said Jenny Martin, International Fellowship Midwest director. The program sponsors student exchanges between South, Central and Latin America and the United States.

This year there are twice as many students from Brazil because four new International Fellowship chapters have been opened there, according to Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin said the boys would stay here three to six months and would attend high school during their stay. She said high schools in the Northwest suburbs have already been notified the boys may be staying in the area and have agreed to accept them as students.

THE BOYS, who are coming here during their summer vacation, are chosen by teachers and the principal at the schools they attend in Brazil. Then they are screened by heads of the local chapters.

"A host family doesn't have to worry about the boy's expenses. The boys have their own spending money," Mrs. Martin said. "There's no expense to the family other than room and board."

Any family who wishes to host one of these boys should contact Mrs. Martin, 253-0378 before Dec. 15. She will then interview the family. She said it is not necessary that the boys have their own rooms, just their own beds.

"The main thing is that the family has the desire. It's more important than the style of home and income," she said.

Selecting A Library Site Is A Formidable Problem

by JULIA BAUER

There seem to be no easy solutions to problems confronting the Palatine Public Library board in its search for a new library site.

Members of the League of Women Voters (LWV) yesterday examined some of the obstacles confronting the library board with the aid of board member Judith Gamoran and administrative librarian Donna Grove.

During the discussion Mrs. Gamoran said that the board has considered nearly every possible parcel of property near the downtown Palatine business district over the past several years, as the current library facilities grew more and more cramped. One factor — price — has been the biggest block to land acquisition in the immediate business district, she said.

Two conditions are musts for any site to be seriously considered — it must have a good flow of traffic, and it must be near a commercial area, Mrs. Gamoran said.

LEAGUE MEMBERS attending the morning unit meeting to study problems of the library could agree on the general area best suited for a new library — bounded by Northwest Highway, Quentin Road, Hicks Road and Cedar Street. To date, library board members have only considered locations within this region.

Board members may take action to seek village approval of a 1½ acre site on Benton Street when they meet Wednesday night. The site pinpointed by the board would be part of a recently approved bank-shopping complex along Northwest Highway between Plum Grove Road and Benton.

The location apparently meets both conditions of good traffic flow and a commercial area. But the new library was temporarily withdrawn as part of the complex when the developer felt that the village plan commissioners might be reluctant to approve the necessary zoning change with the library included. Space in the complex is being reserved for the new library if board members successfully get village board approval of the Benton Street site.

Some village officials have expressed a desire to keep the library in the central business district. Library members maintain that the Benton site is only six blocks north of their present location at 149 N. Brockway St., and that the Northwest Highway area is becoming more central to the rest of the village as people move into the northern part of Palatine.

Another site, a 1½ acre parcel at 245 N. Smith Street was turned down by the village because trustees said the $140,000 asking price was too high.

ALTHOUGH NO price has been publicly released for the Benton Street property, board members have said that the developer has offered the land at his original purchasing price. Parking would also be available in the bank's lot, Mrs. Gamoran told league members.

Several LWV members requested Mrs. Gamoran to make a documented breakdown of library efforts to secure a downtown site, including the location, purchase price and reasons each was or wasn't feasible.

Money has been budgeted in recent years for the purchase of library land. According to state library law, the local board must have 50 per cent of the purchasing price to buy the land, then secur the rest of the financing at a maximum interest rate of six per cent. Approval by village trustees is also required through the state library law, since the Palatine library is part of the village governmental structure.

For all the problems connected with finding a suitable site, there seems to be one overriding point of agreement — the current library facility is inadequate.

"Pretty soon our library is going to be meant only for skinny people," one of the women said, half-jokingly. Shelves of books have been shoved closer and closer together over the years to accommodate more volumes. The present site is a remodeled home acquired in 1958.

Local Businesses Are Blamed

Combined Appeal Drive To Fall Short Of Its Goal

Organizers of the Palatine Community Combined Appeal drive now acknowledge openly that contributions will fall short of the goal. They blame local businesses for the shortage.

Charles H. Foos, president of the annual fund drive, said yesterday he is satisfied with the amount of donations from individuals, but considers the business contributions "disappointing."

Only about 40 of 400 Palatine businesses contacted personally and by mail have made contributions, according to Foos. And those contributions have averaged $23 a firm.

"LET'S SAY you have a bank that has an income of a million dollars a year, and they give you a check for a hundred dollars."

"It's horrible and inconsiderate. It isn't any kind of fulfillment of its responsibility as a citizen of the community."

Foos said he has been considering printing a list of businesses that have donated more than $50. That way, those that have made large contributions would be acknowledged, and those that have not would be embarrassed, perhaps prompting donations.

Businesses have accounted for about 15 per cent of the $18,000 raised so far, according to John Minor, treasurer of the campaign.

Foos said business contributions usually are "lousy." Last year, according to Minor, local firms contributed 25 per cent of the $14,500 raised.

Foos expressed bitterness over the few business donations received so far this year. For the most part, he said, businesses "have ignored us. They don't respond, or they say they'll mail it in and they don't."

POINTING OUT that money raised remains in Palatine, Foos said businesses "just refuse to accept the fact that there are less fortunate people around," and also disregard the need for programs of a "preventative" nature for youngsters.

"It's better for kids to make something with their hands while in scouting, than to be out on a street throwing rocks at stores and people," he said.

The answer to the argument that there are numerous charities, said Foos, is "Let's look at the needs of the various charities and how many are using the contributions right here in Palatine."

"No one else, for example, has a Santa Teresita day care center or a Countryside Center."

Foos estimated some $4,000 would be raised this month, from both individuals and businesses. That would bring the total to $12,000, or $3,000 short of the goal.

Drive organizers are asking for a donation equivalent to 1 per cent of the individual's salary, or a day's wages if the salary is less than $10,000 a year.

Contributions can be sent to Post Office Box 241, Palatine.

Funds will be divided among the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp REINBERG.

IT'S HARDLY recognizable, without all the flashing lights and sparkly tinsel, but those details can be taken care of later. Bruce Shaw of Palatine, working with the local Jaycees in their annual sale of Christmas trees at Community Park, lugs a tree to a car.

Cracker Barrel

TO BE CONTINUED. . . in the alley. After a brief and unusually storm village board meeting this week, a motion was made and quickly seconded for adjournment. Mayor Jack Moodie couldn't help remarking, "Maybe we should never have started."

COMING RIGHT UP. During the discussion on rezoning for a Pizza Hut, two votes were cast for a cheese and sausage and one for a special (medium).

X MARKS THE SPOT. Clyde Moffett, who's 76, was relating to the plan commission all the things he's done for the village, now that he's asking for a little something in return — rezoning of six lots for multifamily use. Finally, exasperated, he threw up his hands "What have I done for Palatine?" he asked rhetorically. "Well," said plan commission chairman Tom Moody, groping for an appropriate response, "just keep voting Republican."

OIL, THAT ONE. Moffett mentioned he had talked to "Tom" about his petition. "That's me," said Tom Moody, not to be mistaken for Jack Moodie. "You must mean the other one." He couldn't resist adding: "The had one."

FIFTY-FIFTY. Another petitioner, Ray Marotte, was wondering if Wood Street, where it is adjacent to his proposed project, was in line for improvements. "Yes," Moody said, "but we weren't figuring on using village funds to do it." Marotte nodded "Cooperative efforts." "Yes," Moody generously agreed. "We furnish the right-of-way."

Palatine Twp. To Get $24,750 Revenue Share

Money Arrives —What To Do, What To Do

Palatine officials knew it was coming, but they haven't made any firm decisions what to do with the village's share of federal revenue sharing funds.

The initial installment of $42,393 toward an eventual total of about $90,000 the first year will be put aside for "special projects," but no decision has been made as to just what these projects will be.

Often mentioned as possible uses are flood control, tree removal and sewer improvement.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun had included the revenue sharing funds with other sources of income in a preliminary draft of the 1973-74 budget, but the trustees instructed him to delete it.

The trustees preferred that revenue sharing be regarded as "extra money" for special uses, rather than for routine services.

A federal revenue sharing check for $24,750 will be delivered to Palatine Township soon, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy's Washington office reported yesterday.

The check is for the first half of 1972. Palatine Township is expected to receive revenue sharing funds of nearly $50,000 for the entire year, a Percy aide told the Herald. The second check is expected to be sent out early in January.

"Just in time for Christmas," quipped Mrs. Ruth Ellen Blowney, Palatine Township clerk, when she learned the check was in the mail.

"This is all kind of new. There are probably a lot of things we could do with the money but nothing has been decided yet," said Mrs. Blowney.

"THE BOARD has given very little discussion to the funds. Everything was so much up in the air and we were really not sure the township would receive anything," said Township Supervisor How-

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls faltered during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

$150,000 Federal Funds Released

Extend 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanston, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Bruce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $35 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise. Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

Food for the program is provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The food is shipped into a central warehouse in Chicago and a private firm has donated a truck to pick up the food in Chicago and bring it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Since the program started two years ago, the food was broken down in Chicago into prescription packages to fit the need of the families receiving it. To cut back costs the food will now be shipped in bulk to the Northwest Opportunity Center where it will be broken down into packages for the individual families.

THE FIRST shipments of food since funding was received arrived at the center yesterday. Families receiving assistance from this program can pick up their food during the first three weeks of each month.

For the past two years the center has conducted classes each fall to teach mothers recipes and how to use the food to make it more palatable. Newton said no classes were planned this year but the center's outreach workers would be talking to mothers about the use of the food.

Application for Operation Nutrition may be made at the center, 3411 Kirchhoff Rd. Newton said there are facilities and funds available to expand the program to serve 350 families.

NORTHWEST OPPORTUNITY CENTER

THE FIRST shipments of supplemental food for Operation Nutrition since funds were released arrived at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows yesterday. Unloading the truck are Silvia Talamantes and Oscar Quezada.

Plans Must Be Made Before Land Can Be Developed

The owner of six vacant lots on West Johnson Street in Palatine was told this week to prepare specific plans before his request to rezone the property for multifamily use is considered.

The Palatine Plan Commission instructed Clyde E. Moffett, 43 S. Cedar St., to submit a plan incorporating about 14 units on the 1-acre site on the north side of Johnson between Cedar and Rose streets.

The action was in keeping with a recommendation by Wilton L. Battles of Rolf C. Campbell and Associates Inc., a Lake Bluff land planning firm which had been consulted by the plan commission.

Commissioner Edward F. O'Brien told Moffett, "We don't want to give you carte blanche to do whatever R-3 (the zoning category Moffett is requesting) would allow."

Moffett gave his word that he "wouldn't violate the law."

O'BRIEN RESPONDED that "the problem is, the law is too broad."

The R-3 category allows multifamily units, in addition to such uses as nursery schools.

Moffett indicated he favors one-bedroom and efficiency apartments on the property, but acknowledged that he may sell the property rather than develop it himself "if the price is right."

The plan commission was anxious to pin him down to a specific plan, so if the land is rezoned as a planned unit development, rather than as an R-3 district, even if Moffett sold it, the new owners would have to develop it in accordance with the already approved plans.

A planned unit development sets forth particular plans that must be adhered to.

Moffett, 76, mentioned that his will deeds the land to the Shriners crippled children's hospital organization. By granting the rezoning request, "you're not helping me; you're going to help them," he said.

and Olsen.

"I am sure the board members will be delighted and it will probably come up for discussion at our next meeting," said Olsen.

Township officials did not know until yesterday how much money to expect from the $2.63 billion to be distributed nationally for the first six months of 1972.

Mrs. Blowney said the only information the township officials had on the revenue sharing funds was what they had read in the newspapers and a bulletin they received from the Revenue Sharing Advisory Service explaining the plan.

EVEN THOUGH the revenue sharing funds will equal a big chunk of the township's budget, those funds are not intended to be used to eliminate taxes. Also, the funds may not be used to pay salaries or for education. Revenue sharing funds are to be used for public safety, environmental protection, public transportation, health, recreation, libraries, social services for the poor or aged and financial administration.

Elk Grove and Maine Townships may get a surprise if they look for checks next week. Percy's office said the townships are not listed on the Treasury Department's printout. It is not known at this time whether the omission is an oversight or whether the two townships will receive no funds, but a Percy aide assured the Herald that the Senator's office will check into the matter.

Wheeling Township is slated to receive $14,158 for the first half of 1972 and Schaumburg Township will receive $33,384 for the first half, Percy's office said.

State Says 'No' For Now To Northwest-Smith Lights

A village request for traffic signals at the intersection of Northwest Highway and Smith Street in Palatine has been turned down, at least temporarily, by the state highway division.

George D. Richter, of the highway division, stated that a survey of traffic volume indicated that the intersection did not warrant stop lights.

Currently, north and southbound Smith Street traffic stops for the Northwest Highway traffic.

Richter said the intersection would have to have a volume of 900 vehicles on the main street, Northwest Highway, and 75 vehicles on the side street, Smith Street, for each of eight hours a day to merit a signal.

The intersection met the minimum volume for five hours a day, but fell short the rest of the day, Richter said.

He indicated, however, that the highway division is aware that traffic patterns in the Palatine area are "rapidly changing and expanding," and will take another traffic count at Northwest Highway and Smith Street next spring.

The village had requested the survey mainly because of increased traffic caused by the relocation of the Palatine computer station at Smith and Colfax streets last year.

Hearing Set Dec. 21 For 120-Acre Project

A public hearing for the proposed rezoning of 120 acres along the western edge of Inverness has been set for Dec. 21 in the Inverness fieldhouse.

Developers of the property, represented by attorney George Downs, brought their request to village trustees in November. The village plan commission, headed by Dr. Andrew J. Koller, will review the development, which would include a mixture of condominiums, mid-rise apartment buildings and a shopping center along the west side of Elm Road, south of Freeman Road.

A proposed high school is scheduled for a 40-acre site between the two parcels of land included in the development.

Development Plans Are Blocked

Inverness Appeal May Take Years

Court proceedings may continue for one to two more years over the Inverness village appeal to prevent resident Robert Lonze from withdrawing his 40 acres of land from village boundaries.

J. William Braithwaite, attorney for the village, told the Herald that a notice of appeal will be filed in the Appellate Court before the first of the year. After that, a transcript of the lower court proceedings will be filed, along with briefs from attorneys representing both sides in the case.

Oral arguments are a year or two away in the Appellate Court, Braithwaite estimated.

Meanwhile, Lonze will be unable to develop the property.

Lonze, 1120 S. Roselle Rd., petitioned to disconnect his land along Roselle Road near Harper College 15 months ago.

"I EXPECTED it to take about 90 days," Lonze said. But when Inverness officials failed to approve the petition, a lawsuit between Lonze and the village went to the Cook County Circuit Court. The written decision came this week from Judge Helen McGillicuddy allowing Lonze to take his property out of the village's jurisdiction.

In the meantime, Inverness trustees voted to appeal the verbal decision handed down by Judge McGillicuddy Nov. 3.

Development of the property would be severely restricted by strict zoning regulations. Nearly all the property in the village is developed at one unit or less per acre, while Lonze could probably get a more liberal density by seeking county zoning. If his petition is ultimately successful, Lonze's property would become part of unincorporated Palatine Township.

During the trial, village trustee Robert Nelson testified that withdrawal of the property, if it is developed, would significantly hurt the village's tax revenue.

"We're not very happy with the decision," Lonze said of the village's appeal. He added that he had heard that trustees would probably appeal the case should the court decision go against them.

'Singles Again' Offers 'Real Understanding'

by FRED GACA

You have recently lost your husband or wife through death, divorce or separation. More than anything else, you want someone to talk to about the shock, the loneliness, the bitterness you feel.

To whom do you go?

A minister? If you are affiliated with a church, that could do for a time, but a minister is a busy man and you do not want to take too much of his time. And if you are not affiliated with a church, you feel strange about going to a minister you have never spoken to before.

A professional therapist? No, you do not need professional counseling. You only want to talk to someone who can understand your problems.

A bartender? That gets expensive and there are no answers at the bottom of a highball glass.

In Elk Grove Village, there is a place to go, the Singles Again Club.

The club was founded in May and has about 15 active members with another 15 names on its mailing list. Joanne Repenning, chairman, said she would like to see the club grow to about 30 active members with 100 names on the mailing list.

The club started after congregation members of Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit attended a lecture, "Death and the Christian Hope" at the church. Mrs. Repenning said that during the discussion after the lecture, the comment was made that, "What the village lacks is an organization for single parents."

Robert Smith, director of Christian education at the church, organized the Singles Again Club and Mrs. Repenning became chairman.

MRS. REPENNING called the club, "more or less a social group." It is open to anyone who has lost a husband or wife and is not directly connected with the church. Most of the members have children, but being a parent is not a requirement for membership.

Dues are $12 a year. Anyone interested in joining can call Mrs. Repenning at 437-3127 or Smith at the church, 437-1666. After the new year, the club will be more formally organized and will hold its first election of officers.

Mrs. Repenning said that the club, "will try for at least one event a month." This year the club has sponsored a hot dog roast, pumpkin hunt, dinner and theater evening, and a cocktail party. The club has also sponsored talks by various ministers on the subject of losing one's husband or wife and has had a lawyer speak on legal problems involving an estate.

The club will also plan on taking a more active role in helping people adjust to the loss of a mate.

Mrs. Repenning has been a widow for five years. When the club was formed, she said "I was over the hump, but for people who are newly separated, its quite a thing to go through."

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Repenning, there are three serious emotional problems resulting from death or divorce.

"The first is the initial shock," said Mrs. Repenning. "Then there is the bitterness. You wonder what you could have done to prevent the death or divorce."

"The worst though, is the loneliness. There is a loss of friends, they avoid you. They are afraid to talk about the loss. But what you need the most is to talk about it."

A single parent faces a special loneliness, said Mrs. Repenning. Before the death or divorce, there would be someone to talk to about rearing the children, someone to back up your decisions.

A single parent keeps wondering if they are being too strict or not strict enough in raising the children, they keep wondering if they are doing the right thing, said Mrs. Repenning.

Because of the special problems a single parent has, the club will plan many of the activities so that the children can participate.

Answered Newspaper Ad

First Policewoman Here Is 'Just One Of The Guys'

by DAVID MAHSMAN

When Irene Cregar answered a newspaper advertisement asking for applicants, male or female, to be Arlington Heights police officers, she had no idea she would be the first policewoman in the village's history.

Because the ad had no sexually discriminatory overtones, Miss Cregar (she prefers to be called "Miss" rather than the more emancipated "Ms.") gave no thought to the notion that she would be turned down just because she is a woman. And she wasn't.

And don't mistake Miss Cregar for a meter maid or jail matron. She is recruiting the same training as her male counterparts in the Northwest Police Academy here, and will be a full-fledged police officer.

MISS CREGAR will be graduated from the academy Thursday, and will be assigned to the police department's juvenile division. During her two months of training, she has learned law, first aid, self-defense, fire arms and other aspects of police work. She said the training — she's a "fair" shot with her Smith and Wesson .38 and can handle herself in defense situations — has given her a good, wide base for street work.

Although she will be a juvenile officer, not a beat officer, Sgt. Paul Buckholz, her boss-to-be, says she will need every bit of her police training, as well as some additional training.

"There is no aspect of police work that can't be found in the juvenile division," Buckholz said of his section, which has handled even murder cases. He added that there are times when work in juvenile can be even more dangerous than regular street work.

And Buckholz said he will not give Miss Cregar any preferential treatment over the men working the juvenile division.

"I was hoping for appointment to juvenile," Miss Cregar said. She added that she applied to the department "because I thought I could help. I thought I could be useful."

BEFORE APPLYING to be a police department cadet (she will be on probation for one year), Miss Cregar, 26, was a sales clerk at Homemaker's Furniture. Although she liked her former job, Miss Cregar said she looks to police work as a career, not just another job.

So she took the plunge, put in her application and started police school, much to the amazement of her male colleagues.

"In the beginning, the guys looked at us like 'what are you doing here?'," Miss Cregar said of herself and Linda Hamilton, a female police cadet from Evanston. "But not a week later, the guys were all great."

But though she has been assured that she will receive no preferential treatment in her job, the shy, soft-spoken policewoman said the men in her class treat her and Miss Hamilton with some deference. For example, she said she is sure the men watch their language around the two women, "but they keep telling us we're just one of the guys."

AS FOR HER own feeling on sex roles, Miss Cregar said she certainly isn't going to insist that her police partner open doors for her or light her cigarettes.

"That's not to say that when I'm off duty I don't want to be treated like a lady," she added quickly. Miss Cregar said she thinks it is more civilized if people are "ladies and gentlemen." Still, she isn't opposed to such current trends as having the woman ask a man to dance.

Buckholz said he would like to see more women in police work, adding that he thinks there will be more. And although he doesn't know if or when women will patrol in beat cars in Arlington Heights, Buckholz said women will eventually be assigned to that job.

And her parents' feelings on her decision to be a policewoman?

"My father laughed, and my mother cried," Miss Cregar said. "But now they're both very proud of me."

Arlington Ranks 4th On Census Income Report

Arlington Heights is richer than you think.

The U.S. Census Bureau now reports that 10 U.S. cities of more than 50,000 in population have median family incomes of $15,000 or more, and that the Village of Arlington Heights ranks fourth on this select list.

Census figures indicate the median family income in Arlington Heights has climbed to $17,031, making it the "richest" community of its size in Illinois.

The Village of Skokie ranked fifth in the Census tabulation with a median family income of $16,421.

Without exception, all 10 communities were suburban municipalities surrounding major metropolitan areas.

Topping the list was Bethesda, Md., with a reported median income of $21,116.

OTHER MUNICIPALITIES included: Southfield, Mich., $18,111; Greenwich, Conn., $18,024; Arlington Heights, $17,031; Skokie, $16,421; Bellevue, Wash., $15,463; West Hartford, Conn., $15,451; Newton, Mass., $15,381; Livonia, Mich., $15,216; and Palo Alto, Calif., $15,036.

At the other end of the income scale, the census reports nine communities over 50,000 now have a median family income which is below poverty level for more than 20 per cent of their families.

All of the cities on this list are located in the south except for East St. Louis, Ill. Average family income in the U.S. was reported at $9,590 — an increase of 69.4 per cent over the previous decade.

$91,229 To City As Part Of U.S. Revenue Sharing

Palatine Revenue Sharing Check Will Be $24,750

A federal revenue sharing check for $21,730 will be delivered to Palatine Township soon, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy's Washington office reported yesterday.

The check is for the first half of 1972. Palatine Township is expected to receive Rolling Meadows will receive $91,229 for its first year share of federal revenue sharing funds, Sen. Charles Percy's office revealed yesterday. A check for the amount was mailed yesterday, and should be received by the city shortly.

The amount is considerably more than city officials had originally anticipated. Preliminary calculations had indicated the city would receive about $300,000 over a five-year period, or about $60,000 a year. The figures revealed by Percy's office yesterday show Rolling Meadows will be getting more than twice the amount issued to Palatine ($42,393) and only $39,468 less than Arlington Heights ($130,637).

A number of factors were apparently used to determine the allocations, including income levels and taxing rates.

WHILE NO definite plans have been made as to how the money will be used, Mayor Roland Meyer said yesterday flood control would probably be a high priority. Following this year's major summer rains, Meyer said he had asked the city council to consider using the money for flood control and storm sewers.

Meyer said he had not expected the larger sum and that because of the additional revenue, it is likely that all the money won't be needed for flood control.

"We had appropriated $18,000 for flooding problems in the Holly Lane area," Meyer said. "We might now be able to use this money for that and return the appropriated $18,000 to the general corporate fund," he speculated.

City Mgr. James Watson said he, too, had not expected so much funding. He agreed that flood control would likely be the target for the money.

"It is true that the biggest increases in the 1973-74 budget will be in the public works department allocation and a lot of that is for flood control and sanitary sewers," he said yesterday.

WHILE FINAL budget requests have not yet been made, Public Works Supt. John Hennessy said yesterday he "could use that whole amount (of revenue sharing funds) for flood control." Hennessy said his department will spend at least $30,000 next year for mobile equipment to be used for flood prevention. The equipment will include a jet rod, large vacuum unit, and closed circuit television to be installed at lift stations.

Hennessy said the television units are needed because "they provide the best way of keeping an eye out on the pumps."

He said an additional $500,000 in his budgetary request for next year will be needed for salary increases and sewer improvements alone. Three men to work year round on sewer inspection could be used in the department as well, Hennessy said.

The department's current budget is $1,513,390, an increase of $422,410 over the 1971-72 fiscal budget, he added.

"CANDY MAN" sung by Scott Schumacher will be one of the events in the Rolling Meadows High School variety show, "The World Is Coming to a Start." The show, based on the song of the same name in the musical "Purlie," will have more than 100 students participating today and tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the school. Tickets are 75 cents for students and $1.25 for adults.

Recommend Zoning For 5 Parcels

Five large parcels of land contiguous to Rolling Meadows but located within unincorporated Cook County have been given recommended zoning classifications by the city's plan commission.

The properties were given the classifications Wednesday as an attempt to restrict the kind of future buildings that might be done on the sites, according to commission chairman Robert Byrnes. Although the sites are not part of the city, the commission issued the recommended zonings to serve as guidelines for prospective builders, and to assist in outlining the kind of future development wanted in the city.

The recommendations will be sent to the city council for final approval so that they may be included in the city's master plan currently in preparation.

Area 1, designated by the commission as the property bounded by Hicks Road, Euclid, Rte. 63, and Kirchoff, was given a commercial zoning, although the surrounding zoning is residential. This was done, the commission said, because the noise from traffic along Rte. 63 makes future residential building unfeasible. Homes in the area were built before improvements were made on Rte. 63, the commission said. The commission also noted that the county has designated the area for commercial zoning in the future.

THE PROPERTY south of the Brook-wood Apartments, west of West Frontage Road and north of Fairfax Village, designated as Area 2 by the commission, was given a multi-family residential zoning. This was done since land east and south of the property is residential and because the county zoning for the land is currently residential.

Area 3, along the south side of Kirchoff, the east side of East Frontage Rd., west of Owl Drive and north of Holly

Lane, was divided into two parcels with separate zonings. The parcel designated 3A, which is located along Kirchoff, was given a T-1, or transitional classification after the commission voted down member Daniel Stieber's recommendation for commercial zoning.

The members who voted for the T-1 zoning (Byrnes, Carl Couve, Mrs. Elizabeth Brissenden, and Mrs. Pat Jacobsen) said they did so because they would like to see the land developed as a restaurant, office building area, or medical center, all of which are uses permitted in the new T-1 zoning.

Area 3B, along East Frontage Rd., was approved for multi-family planned development use to act as a buffer between residential and commercial property in the area. A developer under planned development zoning sets forth specific plans and must adhere to them.

MULTI-FAMILY residential zoning was recommended for Area 4, located south of the Brookwood Apartments, west of West Frontage Road, and north of Fairfax Village. The commission made the recommendation because surrounding properties are zoned for R-6, multifamily use.

Property in Area 6, located between Old Wilke Road, New Wilke Road, Central Road, and Kirchoff, was recommended for multi-family planned development use. This was done to encourage development of the land in a single unit since the property is separated by major traffic arteries. Present zoning in the area is residential and commercial, Stieber pointed out.

Area 5, located between Winnetka Ave., Wilmette Ave., and Hicks Road, was tabled for consideration until the commission's next meeting in January.

Cops To Attend Traffic Safety Class

Illinois Transportation Sec. William F. Cellini has announced the approval of a highway safety project which provides for the training of two police officers from Rolling Meadows in accident investigation at the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

The program is part of an ongoing training program in progress at the department, Chief Lewis Case said. The patrolmen who will attend the course are Richard Hammer and Donald Ballentine. They will receive advanced training in the principles, techniques, and methods used to gather data at accident scenes as well as the legal aspects of such investigations.

Currently enrolled in training at Northwestern is Officer Harry Severin, Case said.

Total cost of the training project will be approximately $2,150. Upon completion of the project, one-half of the costs will be reimbursed to the city from federal funds available under provisions of the Highway Safety Act of 1968.

Cases said continuing education is being provided for policemen at all levels. He said Capt. Ralph Evans is currently enrolled in a course at the School of Police Administration at the University of Louisville in Louisville, Ky. Case said he will attend a similar administrative course at the school in February.

Christmas Party On Skates Set

A roller skating Christmas party, sponsored by Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case and Roy Baumann of the Roy Baumann Music Studios, will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday at the New Orbit Roller Rink, 1350 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

The party, part of regularly held "Church Family Skating Parties," will include a 15-minute program of Christmas carols. Cost is $1.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome. In Saigon war action, more than 90 U.S. fighter bombers and dozens of B-52 heavy bombers struck two North Vietnamese air bases and dropped tons of explosives on a major buildup of North Vietnamese trucks and troops just above the Demilitarized Zone.

$150,000 Federal Funds Released

Extend 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanson, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Bruce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $3.5 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise. Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

Food for the program is provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The food is shipped into a central warehouse in Chicago and a private firm has donated a truck to pick up the food in Chicago and bring it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Since the program started two years ago, the food was broken down in Chicago into prescription packages to fit the need of the families receiving it. To cut back costs the food will now be shipped in bulk to the Northwest Opportunity Center where it will be broken down into packages for the individual families.

THE FIRST shipments of food since funding was received arrived at the center yesterday. Families receiving assistance from this program can pick up their food during the first three weeks of each month.

For the past two years the center has conducted classes each fall to teach mothers recipes and how to use the food to make it more palatable. Newton said no classes were planned this year but the center's outreach workers would be talking to mothers about the use of the food.

Application for Operation Nutrition may be made at the center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd. Newton said there are facilities and funds available to expand the program to serve 350 families.

Hearing Set Dec. 21 For 120-Acre Project

A public hearing for the proposed rezoning of 120 acres along the western edge of Inverness has been set for Dec. 21 in the Inverness fieldhouse.

Developers of the property, represented by attorney George Downs, brought their request to village trustees in November. The village plan commission, headed by Dr. Andrew J. Koller, will review the development, which would include a mixture of condominiums, mid-rise apartment buildings and a shopping center along the west side of Elia Road, south of Freeman Road.

A proposed high school is scheduled for a 40-acre site between the two parcels of land included in the development.

2 Incumbents Plan To Run For Salt Creek Park Board

Only two candidates have filed to run in the April, 1973 elections for the two available seats on the Salt Creek Park District Board. Both candidates are the current incumbents, Walter Pepler and Henry Delih.

Pepler, an IBM executive, is the senior park board member. He joined the board shortly after the district was formed in 1959. Delih, the board's current treasurer, was elected to a two year term in 1971. He is former director of the Palatine park district and is presently a recreation teacher at Triton College in River Grove.

Both seats are for six year terms to run until April, 1979. Races for board seats in past years have always drawn five or six filing petitions, according to Director Jim DeVos. He said he is somewhat surprised more interest has not been shown and that he does not know why only two candidates have filed.

Interested residents of the district may pick up petitions from the district's main office, 530 S. Williams St. Petitions require a minimum of 25 signatures and must be filed with the district from Dec. 26 to Dec. 30. Park commissioners serve without compensation.

By Golly, There Was An Election In 30th Precinct

There was an election in the 30th precinct of Palatine Township last month after all.

Voters were seen going into the voting booths throughout Nov. 7, but come day's end, there were no figures on who they voted for.

Nor the following day. Vote totals in the 30th precinct, which includes the North View, Reseda West, Russet Way and Heatherlee subdivisions in Palatine, somehow got fouled up and no one knew for sure why.

But the Cook County clerk's office, which impounded the ballots, has come up with some totals.

Not surprisingly, the precinct followed the general pattern of other Palatine Township precincts in the state representative race.

John Friedland, a Republican, placed first in the 30th precinct with 877½ votes. Leo D. LaFleur, also a Republican, came in second with 653½. Local Democrat Richard A. Mugalian polled 633½ votes, and Democratic candidate Neil C. Hebelson tallied 252.

The candidates finished in the same order in the official 2nd Legislative District totals, announced yesterday by the Illinois secretary of state's office.

Friedland tallied 81,729½ votes, LaFleur followed with 67,621½, Mugalian with 46,150 and Hebelson with 34,688½.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, polled 51,408 votes in his reelection bid to 24,993 votes for his Democratic opponent, Clifford Levtrance.

and Olsen. "I am sure the board members will be delighted and it will probably come up for discussion at our next meeting," said Olsen.

Township officials did not know until yesterday how much money to expect from the $2.65 billion to be distributed nationally for the first six months of 1972.

Mrs. Blowney said the only information the township officials had on the revenue sharing funds was what they had read in the newspapers and a bulletin they received from the Revenue Sharing Advisory Service explaining the plan.

EVEN THOUGH the revenue sharing funds will equal a big chunk of the township's budget, those funds are not intended to be used to eliminate taxes. Also, the funds may not be used to pay salaries or for education. Revenue sharing funds are to be used for public safety, environmental protection, public transportation, health, recreation, libraries, social services for the poor or aged and financial administration.

Elk Grove and Maine Townships may get a surprise if they look for checks next week. Percy's office said the townships are not listed on the Treasury Department's printout. It is not known at this time whether the omission is an oversight or whether the two townships will receive no funds, but a Percy aide assured the Herald that the Senator's office will check into the matter.

Wheeling Township is slated to receive $48,158 for the first half of 1972 and Schaumburg Township will receive $33,384 for the first half, Percy's office said.

'State Of Family' Workshop

"The State of the Family" is the topic of the first of a series of six workshops being sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Youth Referral Committee.

Thomas E. Jauch, director of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, will present one-night workshop on Friday, Dec. 15 from 8 to 10 p.m. at the former Sacred Heart of Mary convent, 3000 Central, Rolling Meadows.

The presentation will include a lecture and demonstration of his approach to family treatment. The lecture will employ communication skills between all family members.

The one-night workshops will be held on the 15th of every month through May. Topics include "The Adolescent," "Legacy of Love," "Marriage Enrichment," "The First Five Years of Development" and "Adjustment to Retirement."

Dr. William Bauer, resident psychiatrist and medical director of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, will conduct two of the workshops. Jauch and the staff at the Northwest Human Resources Development Center will conduct the other four.

Admission to the first workshop is $2.50 per person. Persons may register by calling 392-8273 or 392-8274.

18-Year-Old UI Student Seeks Elk Grove Board Seat

Kevin McCarthy, 18, of 917 Ridge Ct., became the youngest person ever to run for an Elk Grove Village office in announcing his candidacy for a four-year trusteeship term this week.

McCarthy, a premedical student majoring in political science at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus, said he expects a lot of people to question him about his age, but feels his youth is an asset, not a handicap.

"As a student, I am not tied down to a job, and I can schedule my education around being a trustee," he said. "For that position (trustee), my age can be a benefit."

"I decided to run because I enjoy politics, especially on the local level, and I believe I can help the people of the village by bringing in a new point of view and new ideas," McCarthy said. He said he has been interested in village government since he was 13 and has attended board of trustees meeting for the past five years.

The college freshman said he and his family have lived in the village 12 years, and he attended Queen of the Rosary Catholic School, Grove Junior High School and Elk Grove High School. He currently is serving as an associate staff member for Campus Life working with high school students.

McCarthy said one of the most important issues facing the village today was planning for growth and development.

"We have a very good plan commission right now, but we also need a professional planner to give some guidance and direction," he said.

"I THINK WHAT we need to do is to plan what Elk Grove Village will look like 15 years from now or we'll end up with a confused mess," he said. "We need a professional planner and, more important, interested citizens to say what they want the village to look like in the future."

McCarthy said this group which would study the long-range plans of the Village should include people from the industrial area as well as residents. "This village is made up of more than people who just reside here. It is also business and industry, and they should be included in planning."

McCarthy said he also would like to see the village government become a little more open and closer to the people. "Many residents don't even know the names of their trustees, and, if the people are apathetic, we could get bad officials some day."

ALONG WITH this openness, McCarthy said there should be complete compliance with the state open meetings law, which makes village meetings open to the public except in specific circumstances. He added it was most important to have meetings open during budgeting times when decisions are made on how to spend the people's money.

McCarthy said part of his campaign was for him and his workers to go house to house trying to get more than a handful of people voting in the village elections in April. "As I campaign, I am going to try to get more people involved in village government and out to vote."

Link Resigns As River Trails Park Director

Patrick Link has resigned as president of the River Trails Park District, effective today.

In a letter Wednesday to John Johanson, vice president of the park district, Link said, "It is with deepest regret that I find it necessary and appropriate that I resign from my elected position as a commissioner on the board..."

A River Trails park district commissioner since the district was formed in 1963, Link decided to quit his park district post last May after his selection as a Mount Prospect trustee.

He decided to stay on until now in order to expedite a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which was to be used to pay for the sale of a 19-acre section of the Rob Roy Driving Range to Kenroy Inc.

Since the village turned down a request by Kenroy in September for annexation and multiple family zoning of the northern half of the 38-acre driving range, however, Kenroy has withdrawn its agreement to sell the southern 19 acres of the driving range. Also, though the HUD grant was approved early this year, the money has still not come through because of a long backlog in HUD's legal department.

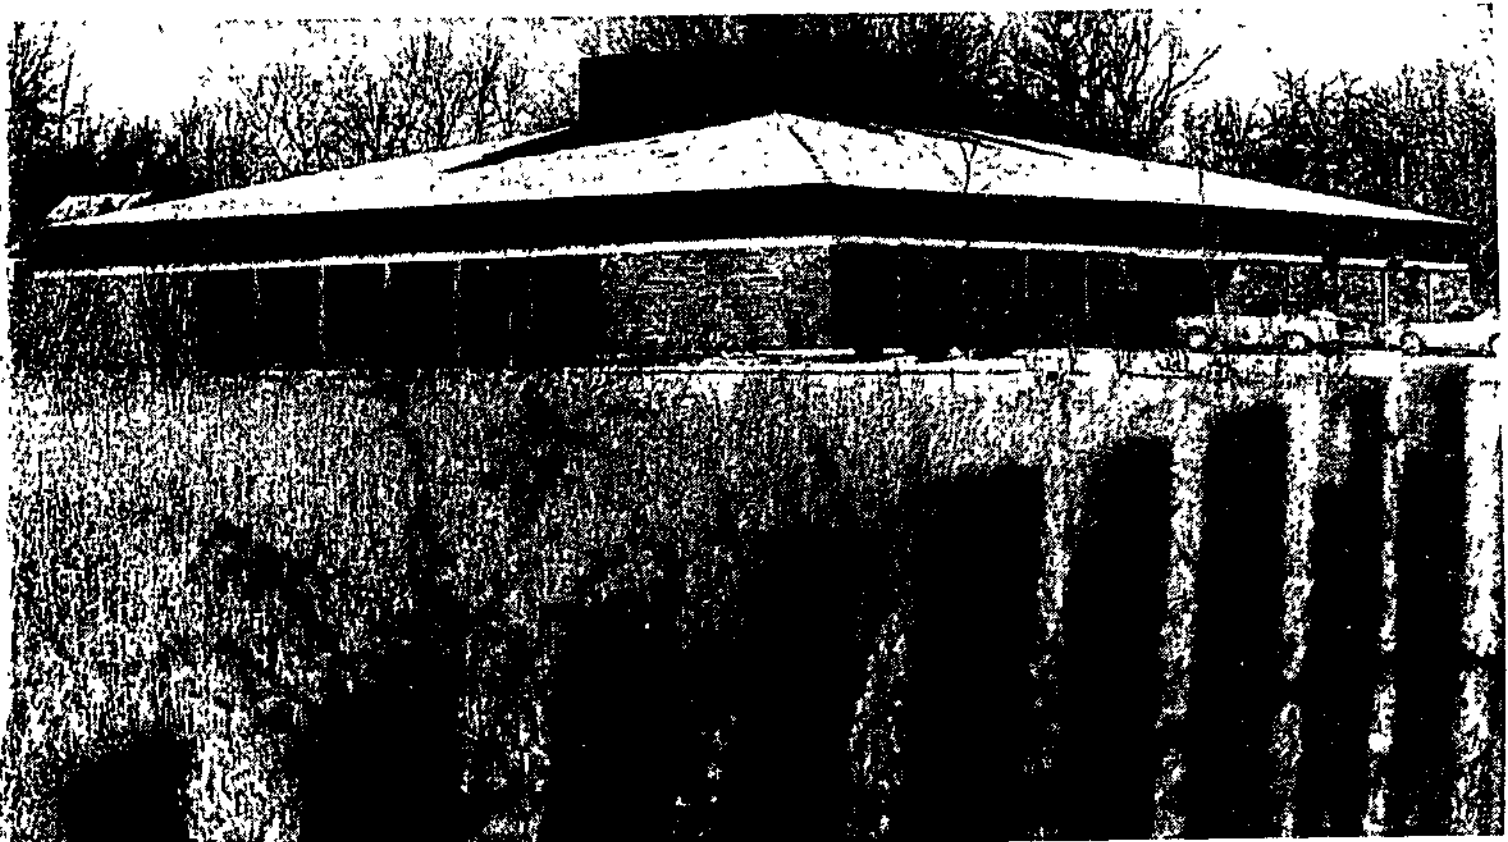

"IT LOOKS LIKE it's continually dragging. I don't know when the grant will be consummated," Link said.

According to Marvin Weiss, park district director, the park board will meet within the next few weeks to interview candidates for Link's position. His term ends officially in April. The board is already considering several persons for the post. "However, if anyone is interested (in applying for the post), they are welcome to call the park office," Weiss said.

Link's post is one of two open for nomination in April. George Meier, whose post is also up, said he plans to run for reelection.

Nominating petitions for the April 3 election are now available at the park district office. Because of a change in the park district code, all candidates must file nominating petitions between Dec. 26 and 30 of this year in order to qualify for election.

Each candidate must file a petition containing the signatures of at least 2 per cent of the number of persons in the district who voted in the last election. But in no case can the number of signatures be fewer than 25.

Library Offers Something For All

Senior citizens to preschoolers. Science fiction addicts to antique buffs.

The new Prospect Heights Public Library is for them all, according to Rose McDonald, head librarian. "The library should serve the entire community. It should be its information center," said Mrs. McDonald, who is putting her philosophy to good use at the new library, 12 N. Elm St.

For those who like to relax while they look over the Wall Street Journal, there are vinyl covered armchairs. For youngsters who like to spread out while they concentrate, the floors are carpeted. And for those who like seclusion, study carrels will soon be installed.

An open house is scheduled for 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. tomorrow to acquaint residents with the library.

What they'll see is a modern building, composed of wood, glass and brick. The library is divided into two rooms: one for adults and one for children. The rooms have space for 45,000 books. The 10,300 square feet — 9,100 more than the old library storefront on Rte. 83 — also includes a work area, conference room and a large meeting room that can be used by the public.

"It's a good library design, right up to the ceiling," said Mrs. McDonald, pointing to the high white ceiling hiding the indirect lighting. "Besides, it's functional."

MRS. McDONALD, who came to the Prospect Heights library in July, has big plans for the new building. Currently she and the library board are working on a five-year development plan.

"I think it's important to have an informed community and that the library should be used for more than just recreational reading. I would like to develop a better nonfiction section. We're starting to place more emphasis on that direction," she said, pointing to reference books on careers, literature and art that are now on the library's shelves.

Mrs. McDonald is also in the process of developing a special section for the blind, equipped with "talking machines" that will play a variety of novels. The section is being paid for by the Prospect Heights Lions Club.

A FILM PROGRAM, more story hours and longer hours for the library are also in Mrs. McDonald's plans, although she admits they may take time because of financial limitations. She's worried that the property tax freeze proposed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie may be approved.

"If that happens we could be in trouble," she said, adding that she went to Springfield last month to try to convince area legislators to oppose the proposal.

But whatever happens, Mrs. McDonald is happy about the new building and what's inside of it. "It's exciting," she said. "And it's been a real challenge to make the move."

Plan To Close Road For 3 Days

Busse Road in Mount Prospect will be closed to through traffic from Golf to Central roads three days this month.

Officials of the village and Rosetti Construction Co. have obtained state approval for the shutting of the road to permit installation of a storm sewer across it. The storm sewer is part of Special Assessment '71 (formerly SA '70), the controversial storm sewer project for the Hatten Heights area.

The contractors will close the road from 9 a.m. Dec. 18 to 4 p.m. Dec. 20. Local traffic only will be permitted to go up Busse Road to Lonnquist Boulevard. For through traffic, a detour will be set up directing traffic along Golf Road to Route 83 and then up to Central Road.

Joe Lapatho, Rosetti, said that with weather permitting they are trying for a March 1 completion date for the complete project. "All the problems (of the area) should be alleviated in time for the spring rains," he said.

The Hatten Heights area has had recurrent severe flooding over the last few years, especially in the area near the intersection of Lincoln and Meier roads.

Series To Explore History Of CAP

In 1970 Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert began a broad-based communitywide plan designed to help cure some of the village's social ills and prevent others.

The help of scores of persons from all segments of the community was enlisted. The program that emerged was the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan (CAP). Now almost three years old, CAP has been beset with troubles, financial and otherwise, almost since the time it was started. Many of those problems remain today. And yet CAP survives.

In a five-part series beginning Monday the Herald examines the troubled history of CAP and its best known program, the Pump House Telephone Hotline.

Tie Suspect To Area Burglaries

A suspect in a Wednesday Mount Prospect home burglary may be linked with other similar crimes in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

While Mount Prospect police have charged Louis Rubbico, 23, of Chicago, with a burglary at the Werner H. Hafer home, 201 N. Stevenson Ln., they also think he may have been involved in a Monday burglary at 11 N. Pine St. Des Plaines police suspect Rubbico was involved in home invasions Wednesday at 773 Mark Terr. and 405 Berkshire Ln.

Rubbico was arrested by Mount Prospect police Wednesday night in Chicago, after the car allegedly used in the 201 N. Stevenson Ln. burglary was traced to a North Clark Street apartment. The license number had been obtained when Mount Prospect Patrolman Wayne Lipsey passed the Werner Hafer home and became suspicious as he saw Rubbico walking around the house.

WHILE LIPSEY was running a license check, a neighbor of the Hafers reported a burglary in process at the home. She told police she saw a man carry two small television sets from the house to a car and then return for a larger television.

The suspect had left the scene by the time Lipsey returned with other officers and could not be found in the nighttime traffic. However, when descriptions by Lipsey and the woman matched, a warrant for the suspect was obtained.

The license plate checked out to Louis A. Galdos, 5707 N. Clark St., Chicago. Lipsey and Mount Prospect police Sgt. Ralph Doney went to the address only to discover Galdos was not their suspect. However, as they were about to leave, a motorist drove into a nearby alley and honked. Rubbico was the motorist. It turned out he had borrowed Galdos' car and then parked it where police could not find it.

With the aid of Chicago Area Six, Burglaries detectives, Rubbico's apartment at 7123 N. Clark St. and several other locations were checked for evidence. This search turned up the three stolen television sets at an apartment at 5930 N. Winthrop Ave. Also found were $5,700 worth of U.S. Savings Bonds that had been stolen from the home of Delores Tarsenski at the Mark Avenue address in Des Plaines.

DONEY SAID that the Winthrop apartment was rented by another friend of Rubbico's who had also loaned him a car and who was at work when the television sets were brought into the apartment.

As to the Pine Street burglary at the Arthur E. Braband home, $523 worth of stolen items were recovered by Chicago police Tuesday as a janitor found the items in a trash can at 7545 N. Bell St. Doney said that location is just a "couple of blocks" from Rubbico's apartment.

In all three burglaries and an attempted one Wednesday at 405 Berkshire Ln., in Des Plaines, the method of entry was the same, according to police. A pry bar or similar device was used to pry open a door.

While Des Plaines police have not yet made a decision as to whether they will charge Rubbico, Doney said that if a witness of the Pine Street burglary can identify Rubbico as the suspect, he will be charged in that case also.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome.

Marilyn Hallman

Most people wouldn't get excited about receiving a big box of junk. But then Gloria Simonson is an unusual lady.

At a surprise party in her honor last night, PTA friends and Fairview School staff members said a special thank-you to Gloria for her many hours of volunteer work at the school.

One of her gifts was a big box of "junk" — egg cartons, plastic flowers, and other odds and ends that should come in handy for her many craft projects. A second gift from the PTA board was a bone china cup and saucer for her collection. Three children also decorated material, which sixth grade teacher Fran Black then fashioned into a smock for Gloria.

Gloria is on the PTA board at Fairview School, serves as a library and reading program volunteer, and works with an upper grade crafts group. She has also served as a room mother and helped with many special school projects.

"She's the kind of person who volunteers for all the jobs no one else wants to do," said Gerry Pagel, who helped plan the surprise party.

ANOTHER RECENT surprise party was planned by Carl Casey and daughters Kathleen and Janice of 500 S. Pine St. It was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Casey's 25th wedding anniversary.

The party included cocktails, dinner, and dancing at the After Hours Restaurant in Des Plaines. Sharing the festivities with the family were the Robert Beckmans, Jill Bohanan, and Kim Darling of Mount Prospect, as well as other guests from Chicago, Peoria, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, and Elmhurst.

MEN'S LIB may have been at work over at Prospect High School. For the first time, three young men will be dancing in the formerly all-girl Orchestra concert. They are Lee Lobenhofer, Keith Kohnke, and Glen Lindemann.

Another first at this concert will be a

School Panel Delays Plan For Computer Growth

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 facilities committee plans to postpone action on expansion of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) computer center at Sunset Park School until after the school census is completed.

"We're going to take a look at the projected enrollment for the next three years. If the census indicates we won't need the room, we'll give them (NEC) an option on the extra room," said Peter Oleson, chairman of the committee. "This is a long way from giving them a lease, however," he said.

As yet, NEC has not formally requested that they would like another classroom next year. They have indicated that they might need the space.

Should the district give NEC an option on the extra classroom, the present computer room will be expanded and a staff conference room and washroom for the NEC employees will also be included. The estimated cost of remodeling the room to include a washroom is $300. The district is responsible for all remodeling costs should NEC lease the extra room.

At a meeting between the facilities committee and parents at Sunset Park school Tuesday, one of the parents asked why a lease had still not been signed by Dist. 214, the legal arm of NEC, for the space NEC is now occupying. According to Jeff Inkle, business manager for NEC, the signing of the lease was postponed until NEC could be assured that they could lease the extra classroom.

"They didn't want to sign two documents (one for the present space and one for the extra classroom)," said J. C. Busenhart, Dist. 57 business manager.

Winter Programs Signup Slated

Registration will begin Dec. 14 for all winter programs at the Mount Prospect Park District.

Doors will open at 8 a.m. at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple. Numbered cards will then be distributed to insure that programs are filled on a "first come, first served" basis.

Several new programs have been added to the park district's winter program this year, including fencing for both students and adults; book beat, a discussion group on contemporary American authors; indoor golf and girls' basketball.

Each person may register for one other family besides his own. A registrant must be present when his number is called.

If a class or program does fill up, lists will be started for individuals. If there are enough people on the waiting list, an attempt will be made to create an additional session.

All fees must be paid at the time of registration. Fees are double for non-residents for most programs, according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of the park district.

$160,000 Revenue Sharing Funds Exceeds Estimate

With revenue sharing checks being mailed today, Mount Prospect officials learned they will receive about $160,000. This is up over $15,000 from the last estimate.

According to figures released by Sen. Charles H. Percy's Washington office, the village will receive $80,605 in this first check, which is roughly for half of the 1972 allotment.

If the second payment, due in January, is for the same amount, the village's total 1972 share would be $161,210. This is up from the $144,950 earlier announced with the increase being the result of the U.S. Treasury Department using updated census figures. The first figure was based on 1970 census data, the newer amount of 1970 or 1971 data (depending on which was available).

The second payment could be for a different amount, however, since the data used is being constantly updated, according to Victor Renaghan, a public affairs officer of the U.S. Treasury Department's office of revenue sharing.

ESSENTIALLY, THE formula used to compute the allotments is to take the population and multiply it by per capita income and then by the total of taxes levied by the municipality. Of the three factors, Renaghan said the per capita income and tax effort play the greatest role in determining the final amount.

Village trustees have not yet determined how the additional revenue will be spent. However, Mayor Robert D. Telchert has said that certain areas for use have been defined by the revenue sharing bill and that these would include flood control and the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan.

For the future, Finance Director Richard L. Jesse has said the village will have to submit a program detailing how the funds will be spent.

Burglars Steal Radio, Television

An AM-FM clock radio and a television set were stolen during a daytime burglary Wednesday at 509 S. Edward St. in Mount Prospect.

Police said Mrs. William Walker had left her home about 1 p.m. to drive her daughter to work at the Randhurst Shopping Center. When she returned at 1:45 p.m., the home had been burglarized. Police said there was no forced entry to the home as the front door was left unlocked.

Freshman At U Of I

18-Year-Old Runs For Board Post

Kevin McCarthy, 18, of 917 Ridge Ct., became the youngest person ever to run for an Elk Grove Village office in announcing his candidacy for a four-year trusteeship term this week.

McCarthy, a premedical student majoring in political science at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus, said he expects a lot of people to question him about his age, but feels his youth is an asset, not a handicap.

"As a student, I am not tied down to a job, and I can schedule my education around being a trustee," he said. "For that position (trustee), my age can be a benefit."

"I decided to run because I enjoy politics, especially on the local level, and I believe I can help the people of the village by bringing in a new point of view and new ideas," McCarthy said. He said he has been interested in village government since he was 11 and has attended board of trustees meeting for the past five years.

The college freshman said he and his family have lived in the village 12 years, and he attended Queen of the Rosary Catholic School, Grove Junior High School and Elk Grove High School. He currently is serving as an associate staff member for Campus Life working with high school students.

McCarthy said one of the most important issues facing the village today was planning for growth and development.

Kevin McCarthy

"We have a very good plan commission right now, but we also need a professional planner to give some guidance and direction," he said.

"I THINK WHAT we need to do is to plan what Elk Grove Village will look like 15 years from now or we'll end up with a confused mess," he said. "We need a professional planner and, more important, interested citizens to say what they want the village to look like in the future."

McCarthy said this group which would study the long-range plans of the Village should include people from the industrial area as well as residents. "This village is made up of more than people who just reside here. It is also business and industry, and they should be included in planning."

McCarthy said he also would like to see the village government become a little more open and closer to the people. "Many residents don't even know the names of their trustees, and, if the people are apathetic, we could get bad officials some day."

ALONG WITH this openness, McCarthy said there should be complete compliance with the state open meetings law, which makes village meetings open to the public except in specific circumstances. He added it was most important to have meetings open during budgeting times when decisions are made on how to spend the people's money.

McCarthy said part of his campaign was for him and his workers to go house to house trying to get more than a handful of people voting in the village elections in April. "As I campaign, I am going to try to get more people involved in village government and out to vote."

New Pool, Fence Law Here

Mount Prospect has a new fence ordinance and will soon have a new swimming pool ordinance.

The village board this week unanimously adopted a revised fence ordinance which included major changes from the previous ordinance. The greatest changes covered are a scrapping of the current 42-inch height limitation in favor of a five-foot limitation and a dropping of the requirement that fences have at least 50 per cent open space.

According to village officials, the fence ordinance has always been a source of trouble and ill-will between village officials and homeowners. Part of the reason for this has been laid to the fact that the 42-inch size fence is not a standard size and has to be specially ordered. Another factor is that under the old ordinance, situations would exist where, if a person owned a swimming pool, he could end up with a fence within a fence.

In a four-one vote, the village board Tuesday voted to concur with a recommendation that a new swimming pool ordinance be adopted. The revised ordinance is primarily aimed at eliminating the now required $125 appeals board hearing for special use permits for swimming pools.

Other changes proposed include raising the penalty to a high of $500 and revising upward the inspection fee schedule. The only categories that would still require special use permits would be owners in situations "where a given lot is improved with more than one dwelling unit, held in separate ownership."

Trustee Daniel J. Ahern cast the only negative vote saying, "I've been voting 'nay' for three years."

Mechanical Repair Training Planned

A new program in mechanical repair training has been included in the extra-curricular curriculum at the Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

"The program is for boys who are not academically inclined, yet who would like to work with small machines and learn to make home repairs," explained Francis Thomas, principal at the school. "This program provides an outlet for recognition for those kids who can't excel physically," he said.

At present 13 students are involved in the after-school program which meets once or twice a week. The district pays Dan Vondran, supervisor, $200 a year for his services.

Expect Cost To Rise

Village Planning To Rebid Garbage Pickup Contract

The village board is taking steps aimed at rebidding the contract for garbage pickup service in Arlington Heights.

It is anticipated increased labor and equipment costs will raise the price of residential collection from its present level of $4.45 a month to about $5.50 monthly in a year when the village garbage collection contract expires.

Although there is still one year remaining in the village's four-year contract with the Laseke Disposal Co., the village board's finance committee has decided it should begin now to look at competitive bids.

The Village of Glenview, which has scavenger service similar to that in Arlington Heights, recently negotiated a contract at the $5.50 level.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, finance committee chairman, had raised the question of rebidding the contract early enough to give the village time to consider a municipally-run collection service if the bids from private contractors came in too high.

PRELIMINARY FIGURES prepared by Village Health Director Frank Charlton indicated it would cost Arlington Heights about $5.89 per residential customer per month to go into the garbage collection business.

Several trustees said they hoped that village government would not have to take on garbage collection responsibilities, but added that an early rebidding of the contract would be a good idea. Palmatier said he thought the rebidding would help quell skepticism on the part of some residents who feel the Laseke company has been given a life-long monopoly.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said it was important that the village not slip back in services offered to residents.

"I think the back-door pickup has done a lot to clean up the appearance of the town by not having garbage cans standing out on the streets," he said.

Charlton said that twice a week pickup is necessary, at least during the summer months, to keep down the breeding of flies and maggots.

Hanson said he would work on bid specifications for the garbage contract and have them ready for review by the village board within the next couple months.

$130,697 In Revenue Sharing Expected

$48,158 Twp. Revenue Share Coming Soon

Wheeling Township will soon receive a revenue-sharing check for $48,158 for the first half of 1972.

Revenue-sharing funds for Wheeling Township from the federal government for the entire year will equal close to double the first check, or some $96,300, a

The Village of Arlington Heights is expected to receive $130,697 in federal revenue sharing funds, U.S. Sen. Charles Prey's office announced yesterday.

The money, which is about $5,000 more than earlier estimates, is the first of two installments to be paid to the village during the first year of the five-year revenue-sharing program.

Village Pres. John Woods said yesterday he will recommend the village board set aside this revenue sharing check, as well as a second payment of similar size expected in January, as a downpayment on additional land for the village landfill.

"Land acquisition is always a top priority because of its inflationary trend," Woods said.

VILLAGE MGR. L. A. Hanson is currently working toward acquiring an additional 250 acres of land north of the village to continue present landfilling operations.

Referring to an earlier revenue sharing formula which would have given Arlington Heights nearly a million dollars the first year, Woods called the $130,000 allocation "disappointingly small."

He added, however, that he thought the first check was important for establishing the principle of revenue sharing even if the amount was smaller than anticipated earlier.

Kenneth Bonder, village finance director, said revenue sharing officials had told him that a small portion of the first check would be withheld in anticipation of certain adjustments.

"The second check should be slightly larger than the first," Bonder said.

The revenue sharing formula is a complicated equation which takes into account a municipality's taxing effort, population and per capita income.

"THE FORMULA penalizes units of government that haven't gobbled up all other units of government," Woods said, referring to the fact that school and park district tax rates are not counted as part of a municipality's taxing effort.

Woods said that even with an expected revenue sharing total of $260,000, the village may still have to add some more money to come up with a realistic downpayment for the additional land.

The village board several months ago instructed the village manager to negotiate for more land rather than proceed with plans for a 600-ton capacity refuse incinerator.

See related story on Page 1, Section 2.

Percy also told the Herald the first check from the Treasury Department will be in the mail today. The second check is expected to be sent early in January.

Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus said yesterday that there are no immediate plans for the funds, primarily because township officials had no idea as to how much money to expect from the $1.65 billion to be distributed nationally for the first six months of 1972.

Mrs. Kolerus said the check will be deposited in an interest-bearing account until some decision on its use can be made. She said a special meeting of the board of auditors will be called shortly after the check is received to discuss the matter.

Wheeling Township's 1972-73 budget is for some $615,000, plus an additional budgeted $52,850 for general assistance. That means the 1972 revenue-sharing funds will equal some 45 per cent of the

Cronin To Seek New Park Term

Charles Cronin, veteran park board commissioner, has decided to run for another term.

Cronin, with 16 years on the park board, says he will probably run for a two-year term. He has been president of the board for the past eight years.

"I have an obligation not to walk away from a problem," said Cronin. "If I don't run the district would probably have an entire freshman board and the staff would probably have problems working with five new commissioners." Because of resignations, four of the five commissioners now serving on the board were appointed within the past year. All five seats are up for election in April.

CRONIN SAYS if the Dec. 16 referendum passes, the park district will be fairly complete.

"It will be a matter of administering the district properly," said Cronin, a resident of the district since 1947.

Cronin is the fourth person who has expressed an interest in a board seat. Kay Muller, Katy Graham and Lloyd Meyer have already picked up nominating petitions. Mrs. Muller and Mrs. Graham have decided to run, but aren't sure which term they will choose. Meyer isn't sure he will run at all yet.

Seats available include 2 two-year seats, 1 four-year seat and 2 six-year seats.

Petitions for the April 3 election may be filed from Dec. 26 to Dec. 30. The petitions, which must include 195 signatures, are available at the park district office, 660 N. Ridge.

Sgt. Hoppe Assigned

U.S. Air Force Sgt. Leroy J. Hoppe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Hoppe, 724 N. Drury Ln., has been assigned to a global communications squadron at Williams AFB, Ariz.

First Policewoman To Join Force Here Soon

by DAVID MAHISMAN

When Irene Cregar answered a newspaper advertisement asking for applicants, male or female, to be Arlington Heights police officers, she had no idea she would be the first policewoman in the village's history.

Because the ad had no sexually discriminatory overtones, Miss Cregar (she prefers to be called "Miss") rather than the more emancipated "Ma.") gave no thought to the notion that she would be turned own just because she is a woman. And she wasn't.

And don't mistake Miss Cregar for a meter maid or jail matron. She is receiving the same training as her male counterparts in the Northwest Police Academy here, and will be a full-fledged police officer.

MISS CREGAR will be graduated from the academy Thursday, and will be assigned to the police department's juvenile division. During her two months of training, she has learned law, first aid, self-defense, fire arms and other aspects of police work. She said the training — she's a "fair" shot with her Smith and Wesson .38 and can handle herself in defense situations — has given her a good, wide base for street work.

Although she will be a juvenile officer, not a beat officer, Sgt. Paul Buckholz, her boss-to-be, says she will need every bit of her police training, as well as some additional training.

"There is no aspect of police work that can't be found in the juvenile division," Buckholz said of his section, which has handled even murder cases. He added that there are times when work in juvenile can be even more dangerous than regular street work.

And Buckholz said he will not give Miss Cregar any preferential treatment over the men working the juvenile division.

"I was hoping for appointment to juvenile," Miss Cregar said. She added that she applied to the department "because I thought I could help. I thought I could be useful."

BEFORE APPLYING to be a police department cadet (she will be on probation for one year), Miss Cregar, 26, was a sales clerk at Homemaker's Furniture. Although she liked her former job, Miss Cregar said she looks to police work as a career, not just another job.

So she took the plunge, put in her ap-

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 33, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome.

'Let Arlington Rd. Stay Residential'

Village planners last night turned their attention to the future development of S. Arlington Heights Road and heard from

Potboilers

TRUE DEDICATION. Residents of Arlington Heights can be assured that they are in good hands, environmentally, anyway. Two members of the Environmental Control Commission have spent hours studying possible pollution in the area at landfills, in incinerators and most recently atop Fremd High School in Palatine. Marilyn Macko and Jean Hanlon climbed a vertical ladder and went through an escape hatch in the roof in zero degree weather to get a first hand look at a high volume air sampler like the one they'd like to see in Arlington Heights some day. And the comments? "It looked somewhat like an elongated bird house."

IN MEMORIAM. Dist. 25 school board president Robert Powell has more than a passing interest in village efforts to refund some $20,000 the district has paid in utility taxes. Powell told the village board's finance committee that the refund money could be used to bolster Dist. 25's building fund. "If you gave us back the money, we'd even put a plaque up on the building," he said.

TAKE ME ALONG. Veteran observers of the daily skirmishes between homeowners and the Laseke Disposal Co. still tell the story of the absent-minded housewife who one day left a bag of groceries out on the back step next to the garbage cans and the following morning found that both bag and can had been emptied. Or the house painters who inadvertently stored their buckets and brushes in a garage next to the rubbish cans and suffered a similar fate. Maybe that's why they say the disposal business is always picking up.

township's total annual budget for the current fiscal year.

EVEN THOUGH the revenue-sharing funds will equal a big chunk of the township's budget, those funds are not intended to be used to eliminate taxes. Also, the funds may not be used to pay salaries or for education. Revenue-sharing funds are to be used for public safety, environmental protection, public transportation, health, recreation, libraries, social services for the poor or aged and financial administration.

Elk Grove and Maine Townships may get a surprise if they look for checks next week. Percy's office said the two townships are not listed on the Treasury Department's printout. It is not known at this time whether the omission is an oversight or whether the two townships will receive no funds, but a Percy aide assured the Herald that the senator's office will check into the matter.

Palatine Township is slated to receive $24,750 for the first half of 1972. Schaumburg Township, is to get $53,384 for the first half of the year, Percy's office said.

Becker To Head Chicago-Area Citizen Council

Raymond R. Becker, 1615 N. Douglas Ave., a 14-year Arlington Heights resident, has been reelected president of the Citizens of Greater Chicago.

Becker, director of community and governmental affairs for Interlake Inc., Chicago, will head the civic organization for 1973. Becker served as President during 1972.

The Citizens of Greater Chicago is an organization of community groups that seeks to educate citizens to participate in their own government.

Prior to his affiliation with Interlake, Becker was director of communications for the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development; communications assistant to the superintendent of Chicago Public Schools, and director of information of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. He is a former reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times.

residents who urged that land along the roadway remain residential.

About 30 persons attended a meeting at the municipal building, most of them complaining the highway already is congested with traffic. They urged alternate traffic patterns to reduce the number of vehicles.

Last night's session and one held a week ago regarding development along N. Arlington Heights Road are designed to help village planners determine the best use of vacant property near the major thoroughfare. A comprehensive plan then will be prepared.

Among those who testified was Fred Iwen, president of Heritage Park Homeowners Association. His statements may have summed up the thoughts of most residents who were there. "We just don't want to see it turned into a franchise strip."

The Village Environmental Control Commission submitted a statement to the planners that the No. 1 goal in development of both N. and S. Arlington Heights Road should be good traffic flow. Mary Schlott, an ECC member suggested construction of office buildings along the highway, where compatible. Other commercial buildings should be constructed in the downtown business district, she said.

A resident of the Scarsdale subdivision told the assembly he wants to keep Arlington Heights Road green. "It's the main road and people get their look at Arlington Heights when they drive it."

Residents who testified last week brought out many of the same points which were raised last night. They complained of traffic congestion, especially at the Arlington Heights-Palatine Road intersection.

If your reply was "no" to either or both of these questions, you should make an appointment to get the examinations you've missed. # Non-Payment To Harza Recommended

The Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission (ECC) made a strong recommendation Wednesday night that the village not pay an additional $2,500 requested by Harza Engineering Co.

Harza recently completed a landfill study for the village and contend they spent $9,447.44 on the project. The contract price for the work was $7,000.

The engineering firm contends the overrun was because of a delay while waiting for a topographic map of the landfill site, because more alternatives were drawn up than originally contemplated and because density tests of the area had to be run several times.

"IN THE FIRST place, Harza never said during the project that they would need more money," said Marilyn Macko, ECC member in her motion to recommend the village not pay extra. "The report was also a few months late, which held up our solid waste study."

"The fact that the density tests conducted by Harza were not valid reflects on the expertise of Harza, and not on the good faith exercised by all parties to this contract," said Mrs. Macko.

"The contract price of $7,000 is legal and proper and should not be exceeded," she said.

The Harza study, completed Nov. 4, was made to determine how many years of life the Arlington Heights sanitary landfill has left, and means of increasing its life.

According to Harza, the landfill will last just over a year if filled according to the current plans. The current plans include use of the area as a park once it is completed. Harza engineers also said the life of the landfill could be increased substantially, up to 20 years, by changing the contour of the site and revising the park plans.

Though the village has no plans to recontour the site at the present time, additional land is being purchased adjacent to the landfill, so it will last several more years.

Arlington Youth Council In Search Of Members

The search is on for new members of the Arlington Heights Youth Council.

The nearly-defunct organization has not met since April, but Thomas Martin, recently appointed chairman of the group, says he plans to reactivate it.

"The first thing we have to do is repopulate the council," said Martin. "It's supposed to be a 9 member council and right now there are only four of us."

Martin says the council will also include youth from high schools which serve Arlington Heights. He expects representatives will be chosen by the schools in the near future.

Adult members of the council must be appointed by Village Pres. John J. Woods. Martin says, however, the council will probably make recommendations to Woods.

"We've got a few counselors from area high schools in mind along with a few other people," said Martin.

THE YOUTH council has come under sharp criticism during the past several years for its lapses into inactivity and lack of accomplishments.

The council has been dormant for two of the past five years. Several talks have been held between the council and the village board in an attempt to determine if the council is worthwhile.

"I think the youth council can provide greater liaison between youth programs in the village and help formulate new programs as well," said Woods.

Martin agrees with Woods' interpretation of the role of the council.

"There are lots of duplicated youth-oriented activities in the village, and we can be a catalyst to both catalogue what we have and get new things started," Martin said.

Martin expects to have a meeting of the new youth council in early January at which he plans to reorganize it. He hopes to have a full council by that time, and Woods says he expects to make the appointments by then.

First Policewoman Here Is 'Just One Of The Guys'

"In the beginning, the guys looked at us like 'what are you doing here?'" Miss Cregar said of herself and Linda Hamilton, a female police cadet from Evanston. "But not a week later, the guys were all great."

But though she has been assured that she will receive no preferential treatment in her job, the shy, soft-spoken policewoman said the men in her class treat her and Miss Hamilton with some deference. For example, she said she is sure the men watch their language around the two women, "but they keep telling us we're just one of the guys."

AS FOR HER own feeling on sex roles, Miss Cregar said she certainly isn't going to insist that her police partner open doors for her or light her cigarettes.

"That's not to say that when I'm off duty I don't want to be treated like a lady," she added quickly. Miss Cregar said she thinks it is more civilized if people are "ladies and gentlemen." Still, she isn't opposed to such current trends as having the woman ask a man to dance.

Buckholz said he would like to see more women in police work, adding that he thinks there will be more. And although he doesn't know if or when women will patrol in beat cars in Arlington Heights, Buckholz said women will eventually be assigned to that job.

And her parents' feelings on her decision to be a policewoman?

"My father laughed, and my mother cried," Miss Cregar said. "But now they're both very proud of me."

City Will Get $205,767 From Revenue Sharing

The good news of revenue sharing should reach Des Plaines this weekend. U.S. Treasury Department officials will mail an unexpectedly high $205,767 check to the city today.

Des Plaines will receive the largest area share of more than $2.65 billion released.

Arndt To Seek 5th Park Term

Ferdinand Arndt, 1473 Oakwood Ave., long time park board member and former park superintendent, yesterday said he will seek a fifth term on the Des Plaines Park District Board of Commissioners.

Arndt, 66, has served on the board for 21 years and was park superintendent here for 10 years before seeking election to the board. He retired Sept. 1 after six years as park superintendent in Wheeling.

The open six-year term will run from May 15, 1973, to May, 1979. The park election is April 3 next year.

So far, Arndt is the only person to pick up nominating petitions for the open seat. Candidates are required to file notarized petitions between Tuesday, Dec. 26, and Saturday, Dec. 30, at the park district office, 748 Pearson St.

Any eligible voter who lives within the boundaries of the Des Plaines Park District is eligible to run for the post. Park commissioners receive no salary.

The city, according to federal officials, can expect another check "of about the same size" in January as the second 1972 installment.

Mayor Herbert Behrel called the $111,534 announcement "good news."

Behrel predicted Tuesday that the city's estimated $328,000 revenue share would change because of new population totals. At the National Municipal League convention in Indianapolis last week, treasury officials said the $328,000 figure was based on 1967 census data. Updated census information and tax information increased Des Plaines check.

MAINE AND Elk Grove townships were not listed for funds, according to Sen. Charles Percy's office. Other township totals are Palatine $24,750; Schaumburg $53,304 and Wheeling $48,150. It could not be learned yesterday whether Maine and Elk Grove will be receiving funds.

Totals for other communities include: Arlington Heights $130,697; Buffalo Grove $22,476; Wheeling $56,260; Mount Prospect $80,605; Elk Grove $125,071; Rolling Meadows $91,229; Palatine 42,393 and Park Ridge $97,533.

The totals were computed from a complicated tax effort, population and per capita income formula.

"Tax effort means the effort the city has used to aggressively collect taxes to provide services," Behrel said. "Per capita income is the most difficult item because its on a reverse basis — if you have a high income, you get less revenue sharing money."

1970 census information lists Des Plaines population as 57,344 persons with an average family income of $15,279.

The city council's finance committee met last night after Herald press deadline, to prepare revenue sharing spending recommendations which must be published after Jan. 1. The committee drafted a seven-project list totaling $236,200 two weeks ago but held the recommendation at Monday's council meeting because some aldermen objected.

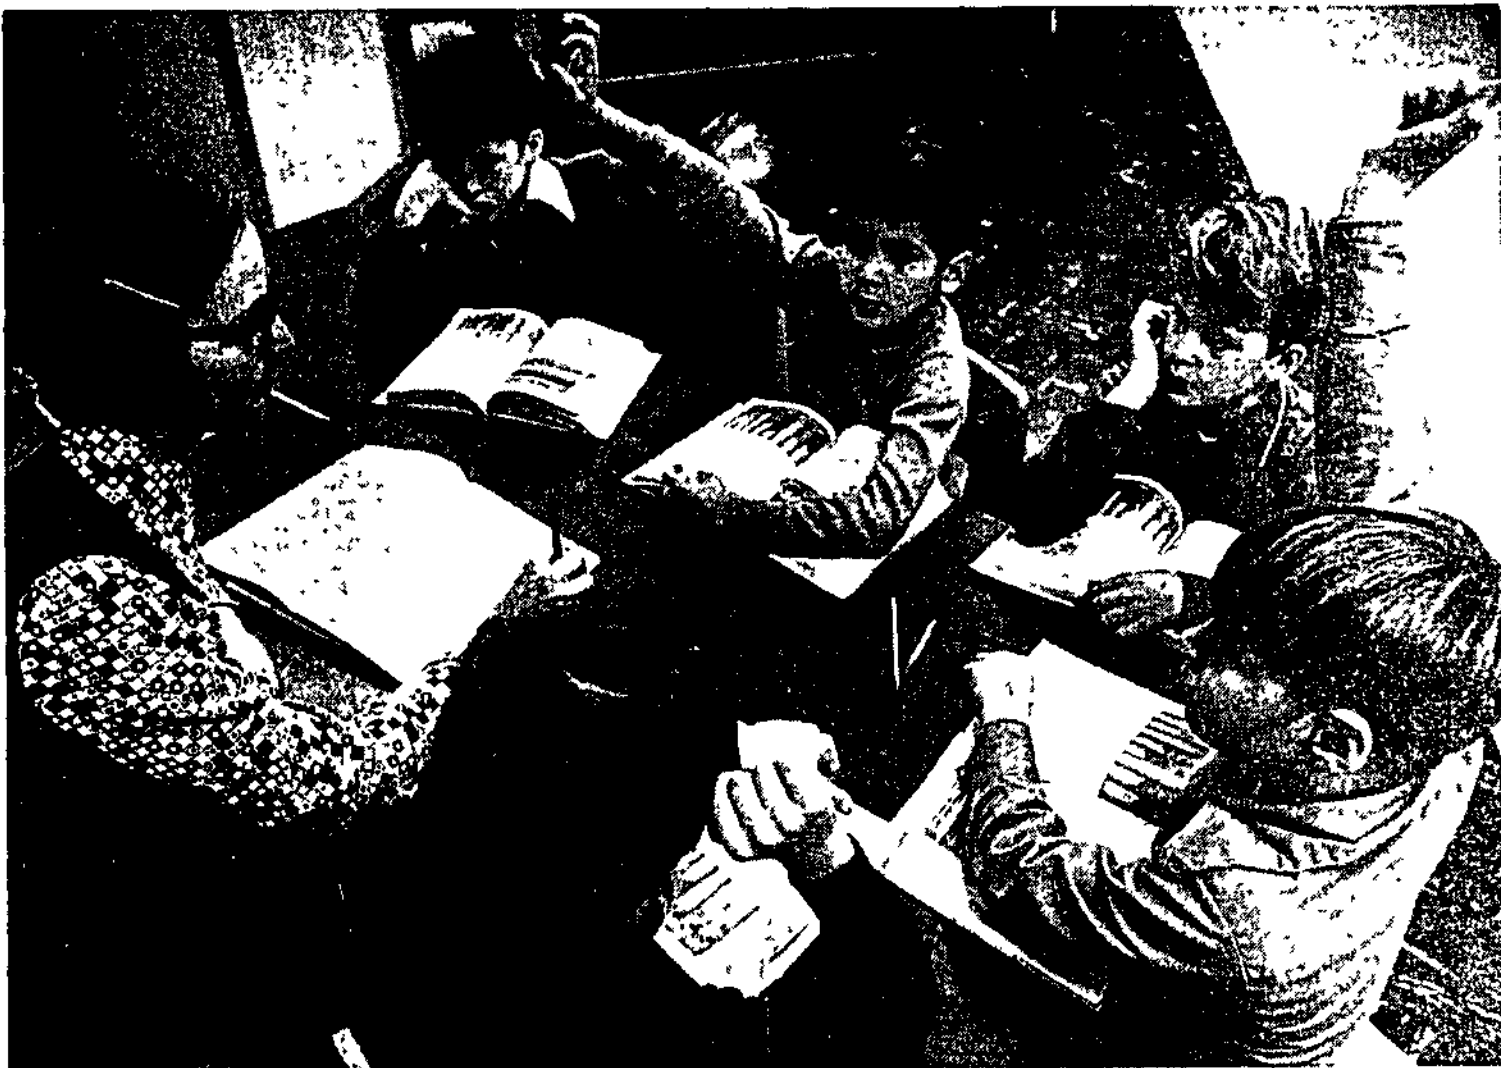

THE PRIORITY list, which was drafted at an unannounced meeting in Behrel's office, included six flood control projects, purchase of eight police cars and a sanitation packer truck.

The $83,000 hike will allow the council to expand its priority list. The finance recommendation were pared from a 13-project report, totaling $893,200, by City Engineer Robert Bowen and a $12,500 park district request.

Federal officials released the revenue sharing totals to congressmen Wednesday with that information that more than 1,000 cities would receive less than 50 per cent of totals predicted in September. About 35,900 cities, townships, states and counties will share in the federal funds which are part of a five-year $30 billion program.

The funds may be used for a wide range of local projects or to reduce taxes.

Behrel has predicted an 8 or 9 cent drop in Des Plaines taxes next year.

EAGER TO LEARN, third graders at Central Elementary School in Des Plaines are benefiting from a new team teaching program this year. The children get individual instruction in small groups. Because the three third grade classes are combined and each child changes classrooms and teachers every three weeks, the children benefit from changing learning environments and a variety of teaching ideas.

Pupils Benefit From New Experiences

Changing Classrooms Interesting

by KATHERINE BOYCE
Changing classrooms and teachers make learning interesting and profitable for third graders at Central Elementary School in Des Plaines.

Under a new team teaching system this year each child rotates classrooms and teachers every three weeks for reading and math studies. The teacher works with small groups of children at different learning levels, and tries to give each child individual attention.

At the end of the three-week period, the teacher evaluates each child according to his success in achieving his learning goals, and the child moves on to a new teacher and a new classroom.

Everyone learns differently, said Elaine Reckamp, one of the classroom teachers in the team project, and exposing students to different teaching techniques gives them a wider variety of learning experiences.

EACH MORNING, the children meet in small groups with other children at their own learning level. For half an hour, the teacher works with one group, listening to them read or helping with math problems. The next half hour is spent working individually on assigned lessons. For the last half hour, the group works on a learning activity, such as a puzzle or word game.

The children don't get bored and learning periods are short so they don't lose interest, said Lois Stenstrom, third grade teacher. The program is flexible, she said, so a child can pick any learning activity that interests him. If he begins to learn quickly, passing other children in his group, he's allowed to enter a more advanced group.

At the end of the three-week period, the three classroom teachers in the team project meet to evaluate each of the 77 third graders. They look at learning skills, progress of each child, and the interests he shows in different learning projects. New learning ideas are discussed by the three teachers, who tailor those ideas to the child's individual needs. Special skill groups are organized for children with special learning problems, such as a poor vocabulary.

GRADING IS DONE every six weeks by the child's permanent homeroom teacher, said Miss Reckamp. She takes the comments of the other two teachers into consideration, evaluating each child on a five point scale: excellent, above average, needs improvement, and unsatisfactory.

The team teaching has a new twist this year, said Mrs. Bettie Rotenberg, team teacher. The team is using a philosophy of education called "positive learning."

Each child wants attention from the teacher, she said, but too often gets attention only when he does something wrong. Whenever possible, bad behavior is ignored by the team and good behavior is rewarded with attention. "We catch him being good," said Mrs. Rotenberg. "We're trying to bring out the best in every student."

Yellow stickers with a smiling face dot the papers of children whose good behavior is being reinforced. As the teacher moves around the room, observing the children, she often says, "You're reading very well today, Johnny," or "That's a good math paper, let's hang it up where the whole class can see it."

INDIVIDUALIZED instruction, along with positive learning, helps the child become self-motivated in the classroom. "The teacher doesn't have to play policeman any more," said Mrs. Rotenberg. The children are enthusiastic about learning and they're eager to read and work math problems.

"You can't force anyone to learn," said Miss Reckamp, self-motivation is important. School is such a large segment of a child's life, "It is really tragic to think of a child being prodded for 12 years," she said.

There's something for almost every child in third grade at Central School.

The more advanced students are placed in a self-directed study group where they choose their own learning projects and often work in the school library.

There's always a group of children who need a structured program such as students who speak English as a second language and children with learning disabilities, said Mrs. Stenstrom. Those children receive the teacher guidance they need from the classroom teacher or mother volunteer, Mrs. Kenneth Monson from Des Plaines.

On Fridays, the three third grade classes change their regular morning program to work on special skills. There are many learning skills that the teacher in the traditional classroom has no time for, said Mrs. Stenstrom. On Friday's special lessons are taught on following directions, memory skills, dramas, phonetic development, physical coordination, dictionary usage and rapid reading. THE TEAM TEACHING program at Central School began two years ago when overcrowding at the school forced two third grade teachers to combine classrooms. A traditional approach was unfeasible in the combined classroom, so the teachers took turns teaching a lesson and working with small groups.

Team teaching worked so well that the

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Former President Harry S. Truman, 88, rallied slightly in his battle against age and infection. Doctors at his bedside said he was still in critical condition and his recovery depended on the strength of his weakened heart.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, stepping on the gas to make up for lost time, streaked with confidence and a tinge of nostalgia toward America's last rendezvous with the moon in this decade.

The top federal drug official testified in Washington that doctors are needlessly treating millions of people with antibiotics, causing perhaps tens of thousands of deaths yearly.

A military judge in Norfolk, Va., convicted sailor Jeffrey Allison of arson and sabotage in connection with a $7.5 million fire aboard the attack carrier USS Forrestal last summer and sentenced him to five years in prison.

Government statistics showed that President Nixon's Phase II economic controls failed during their first year to curb inflation of wholesale prices, which have risen faster under the controls than before them.

President Nixon picked Claude Brinegar, a California oil executive with a doctor's degree in economics, to be his transportation secretary, succeeding John Volpe who will become ambassador to Italy.

The State

U.S. appeals court in Chicago ruled that a federal regulation requiring recapped tires be as good as new tires was impractical and did not enhance public safety.

A circuit court judge dismissed a suit by the Illinois Department of Local Affairs asking officials in the Cook County Assessors office to produce office records on county assessments or be held in contempt of court.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie set free a Chicago woman jailed for refusing to testify in a murder case against members of a street gang. She said she feared the gang would terrorize her family if she took the stand. Mrs. Georgia Carradine, 39, witnessed a murder in the Robert Taylor Homes but refused to become a prosecution witness.

The War

Henry Kissinger met secretly for four hours with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and scheduled another meeting today in efforts to end the Vietnam War. But the Vietnamese Communists said negotiations were still deadlocked and an American spokesman agreed there were still problems to overcome.

Tie Suspect To Area Burglaries

A suspect in a Wednesday Mount Prospect home burglary may be linked with other similar crimes in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

While Mount Prospect police have charged Louis Rubbico, 23, of Chicago, with a burglary at the Werner H. Hafer home, 201 N. Stevenson Ln., they also think he may have been involved in a Monday burglary at 11 N. Pine St. Des Plaines police suspect Rubbico was involved in home invasions Wednesday at 773 Mark Terr. and 405 Berkshire Ln.

Rubbico was arrested by Mount Prospect police Wednesday night in Chicago, after the car allegedly used in the 201 N. Stevenson Ln. burglary was traced to a North Clark Street apartment. The license number had been obtained when Mount Prospect Patrolman Wayne Lipsey passed the Werner Hafer home and became suspicious as he saw Rubbico walking around the house.

While Lipsey was running a license check, a neighbor of the Hafer's reported a burglary in process at the home. She told police she saw a man carry two small television sets from the house to a car and then return for a larger television.

The suspect had left the scene by the time Lipsey returned with other officers and could not be found in the nighttime traffic. However, when descriptions by Lipsey and the woman matched, a warrant for the suspect was obtained.

The license plate checked out to Louis A. Galdos, 5707 N. Clark St., Chicago. Lipsey and Mount Prospect police Sgt. Ralph Doney went to the address only to discover Galdos was not their suspect. However, as they were about to leave, a motorist drove into a nearby alley and honked. Rubbico was the motorist. It turned out he had borrowed Galdos' car and then parked it where police could not find it.

With the aid of Chicago Area Six, Burglary detectives, Rubbico's apartment at 7123 N. Clark St. and several other locations were checked for evidence. This search turned up the three stolen television sets at an apartment at 5909 N. Winthrop Ave. Also found were $5,700 worth of U.S. Savings Bonds that had been stolen from the home of Dolores Tarsenski at the Mark Avenue address in Des Plaines.

DONEY SAID that the Winthrop apartment was rented by another friend of Rubbico's who had also loaned him a car and who was at work when the television sets were brought into the apartment.

As to the Pine Street burglary at the Arthur E. Brabant home, $523 worth of stolen items were recovered by Chicago police Tuesday as a janitor found the items in a trash can at 7545 N. Bell St. Doney said that location is just a "couple of blocks" from Rubbico's apartment.

In all three burglaries and an attempted one Wednesday at 405 Berkshire Ln., in Des Plaines, the method of entry was the same, according to police. A pry bar or similar device was used to pry open a door.

While Des Plaines police have not yet made a decision as to whether they will charge Rubbico, Doney said that if a witness of the Pine Street burglary can identify Rubbico as the suspect, he will be charged in that case also.

Finance Arranged By Dovenmuehle

Robert E. Kenney, assistant vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc., has arranged financing for Phases 3 and 4 of the Rand Center, Des Plaines, with mortgages totaling $855,000 for 27 years. Dovenmuehle had previously arranged financing for Phases 1 and 2 of the project in the amount of $770,000. Both of these Phases have been successfully completed and 100 per cent leased.

The additional financing will provide for the construction of two one-story industrial incubator-type buildings which will contain 66,944 square feet. In addition to the new structures, to be located at 1243-85 Rand Road, there will be a continuance of the very attractive landscaping and ample parking.

Contractor and owner of the project is The Joseph Lumber Company of Chicago. The buildings are scheduled for completion and occupancy in May of 1973. Units of 1,500 and 4,000 square feet will be available at competitive rents.

Optimists, 'Y' Gear For Christmas Tree Sales

I think I shall never see Anything as lovely as a Christmas tree.

With apologies for the parody to an anonymous poet, the Christmas season has arrived again.

Santa Claus will sleighride on a fire-truck into Des Plaines Saturday. Toy displays are abundant. And, Christmas trees have sprouted in local parking lots.

German immigrants probably didn't know what they were starting when they chopped Christmas trees into an American custom in the 19th century.

Today, more than 5,800 former tree residents of Michigan are available from the local Optimist Club and the YMCA.

Buy early. Stand the tree outside to add to its life. Decorate about a week before Dec. 25 so the tree lasts through the New Year, local tree salesmen advise.

THE OPTIMISTS, with a heated trailer, phone and lights at the Jewel-Osco parking lot, 1530 Lee St., began to sell 3,000 trees a week ago.

"We're selling day and night, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.," said spokesman James Roel.

"Most of the time we sell our entire stock. The best trees will be gone within a week," he said. Prices range from $3.50 "on up to whatever" with an "average house tree costing $5 to $9."

The Optimist club funds its charity projects through the 15-year-old sale. Programs benefited include Little League baseball, retarded children, the Corsair drum and bugle corps, Youth Appreciation Week and an oratorical contest.

The YMCA, at 600 E. Northwest Hwy., currently has 800 trees in stock.

"We've ordered about 2,800 but a snowstorm in Michigan has delayed shipment," Ron Quimby said. The YMCA trees sell for $1 a foot plus $1.50 for shipping.

Nineteen-inch wreaths for $2.50 and 3,000 feet of garland (selling for 25 cents a foot) also are available from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

THE YMCA sale benefits the Indian guides father-son, father-daughter program and adds to the building program.

Both groups sell two types of trees — long needle scotch pines and balsams, the original Christmas tree.

Both offered tips to tree buyers who buck the trend toward artificial trees:

—After purchasing the tree, bore small holes in its base and allow a solution of water and sugar to seep in. "Fresh trees, recently cut, still need water," Roel said.

—When placing the tree inside for decoration, keep the stand filled with water to stall tree drying.

—Recut the base to reopen the tree when moving it inside. A fresh cut allows more water absorption.

—Secure the tree firmly and avoid placing near heat sources.

"All Christmas trees for this year have been cut already," Roel said. "By buying early, a better selection is available."

Des Plaines Fire Department will treat trees with a fire-retarding solution at the new main fire station, 405 River Rd., from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. daily.

Ponder Raise In 1973 Tax Levy

A raise in the 1973 tax levy for Illinois Life Safety code work from two to five cents is being considered by the River Trails Dist. 28 School Board.

The board is considering the raise as one of several ways to pay for necessary life safety repairs code and remodeling in buildings throughout the district.

It has been estimated by architect Wayne Fitch of K. E. Unteet & Associates, in his comprehensive building report that the safety code repairs will cost the district about $140,000. At present, the two-cent tax levy yields only about $14,000, a year according to district treasurer Jean Meister.

If the district were to continue under the present two-cent levy "it would take about 10 or 11 years for the life safety (work) to be completed," said Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff. Under a five-cent levy, the work would only take about five or six years, he said.

TIME IS AN important factor in the safety code repairs. Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said, "The life safety codes continue to change because there are new requirements. Generally, it (the requirement) is written so that you have the time to do it. But we're running out of time now," he said. "The two-cent levy doesn't even come close to giving us the total monies (needed)."

Other methods being considered by the board as ways of financing the safety code repairs are either shifting money from the building or education funds, or issuing bonds. "The building fund is already in trouble," according to Supt. Thomas Warden. Demel said of the proposal to borrow from the education fund: "You can only borrow from the education fund for so long before you start to jeopardize students' education."

Issuing bonds to pay for the repairs would provide the money faster than raising the levy since the tax cannot be levied until September, 1973 and not collected until the spring, 1974. However, the interest rate on the bond could also be quite costly.

Neither a raise through a tax levy or a bond issue would be subject to a voter referendum since five cents is the maximum amount allowed by the state for life safety. All that is required is approval from the state Office of Public Instruction that the work meets the life safety code, said Warden.

At present, the administration is in the process of getting more information about projected interest on the issuance of bonds as well as if there could be any inflationary cost involved in the architect's estimate should the work be put off until the tax levy money can be raised.

teachers decided to keep using it even after the overcrowding problem was solved.

This year all three third grade classes were combined and the "positive learning" teaching method was introduced. Because team teaching requires a great deal of teacher planning time, it is only used for math and reading. The children return to their homerooms for social studies, penmanship, science and health in the afternoon. The team hopes to add social studies to the team program next year, said Mrs. Stenstrom.

THERE'S QUITE a bit of fuss made every fall over something that stands only 18 inches tall, weighs about 50 pounds, and actually is a dark brown hunk of sculpture running and still-arming across a slab of ebony.

The head does seem overly large, the shoulders just a little narrow, and the legs short, but this ill-proportioned figure looks as beautiful to the recipient as any Oscar does to someone in the movie business.

It's called the Heisman Trophy. Few relics have created more melodrama in college football than the Heisman, an award that is supposed to go to the outstanding player in the United States every year, and sometimes does.

John Huarte comes to Iowa Monday for the Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon. He has a Heisman. He won the trophy in 1961 in a mild surprise, topping such other candidates as Joe

John Huarte

Namath, Gale Sayers, Tucker Fredrickson, Craig Morton and Dick Butkus. John had a great year as the Notre Dame quarterback, but it was still a surprise because he was a total unknown at season's beginning.

All of us learned Tuesday that Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska won the Heisman for 1972, but what do we know about Heisman? Probably about as much as the man who in 1939, some 13 years after the trophy was instituted, introduced that year's selectee, Southern Methodist's Don Walker, as the "Wasserman winner."

John William Heisman was a superb athlete. He played baseball, ran on the track team, and was one of the first football players to earn letters at two colleges. He played tackle for Brown for three years, then moved on to Penn to play tackle and end and pick up an L.L.D. degree.

Even after graduation, football continued to show a greater appeal to Heisman than the law and he went on to win a place in Football's Hall of Fame as one of the game's most successful coaches and innovators. He coached at eight colleges and his 1916 Georgia Tech team ran up the highest score of all time, beating Cumberland College of Lebanon, Tenn., 222-0.

As an innovator, Heisman devised the center snap, the first legitimate scoreboard and was responsible for the ultimate legalization and recognition of the forward pass.

Each fall as the football season began, Coach Heisman would face his recruits holding a football. "What is it?" he would ask rhetorically. "A prolate spheroid, an elongated sphere — in which the outer leathery casing is drawn tightly over a somewhat smaller rubber tubing." Then, after a melodramatic pause, he would say in muted tones, "Better to have died as a small boy than to fumble this football."

When Heisman's coaching days ended in 1927 he moved to New York City and became athletic director of the Downtown Athletic Club.

It was that organization, a year before his death, that decided to perpetuate his name in a suitable award known as the Heisman Trophy, an award decorated with the figure of a man clutching a prolate spheroid as if he would rather have died as a small boy than now to fumble it. Very suitable.

There have been those years when a single player was so magnificent week after week that the selection of the Heisman winner was obvious. No player has ever won the award twice although O. J. Simpson was probably the best player in the country in 1967 and 1968. He didn't win both times. Don Walker, Frankie Sinkwich, and Tom Harmon were other players who probably should have won two Heismans but picked up just one.

Voters lean toward seniors. Only four juniors have ever won — Doc Blanchard, Don Walker, Vic Janowicz, and Roger Staubach. The voters seem to prefer talent from the Midwest and quarterbacks. Twenty quarterbacks have won it since 1935.

The battle for the Heisman begins to be waged early in the season by all of the campus publicity directors and provincial writers and broadcasters who hang around the teams. Over 1,300 newsmen are eligible to vote on the award annually, including many who never see a college football game.

The Herald can't vote but we get flooded with material all season on potential Heisman candidates. A release just came in last Saturday on Purdue's fine running back Ollis Armstrong, dramatically illustrating how not to run a Heisman campaign. The big push should have been much earlier.

It obviously helps to play on a winning team. All but one Heisman winner has been a member of a team which won more games than it lost and 16 have played on a team which captured some kind of national championship.

Notre Dame's Paul Hornung is the one loser who sneaked in on one of the great publicity coups of our age. He played on a 2-8 team, a team which lost 40-0 to Oklahoma, 47-11 to Michigan State, 33-7 to Navy, and 44-14 to Iowa.

Charlie Callahan was the Notre Dame publicity man at the time and he knew how to run a campaign, what newspapers to hit, what radio and television stations to bombard with information. After all, said Charlie, this Hornung was great. Golden Boy and all that.

The East went to Jim Brown (yes, THE Jim Brown), the South and other areas split their votes, and Callahan had the Midwest all to himself.

The Notre Dame publicity man was so proud of the victory that he sent for Hornung in class to tell him personally. As Paul walked across the South Bend campus, Callahan placed a long distance call to Hornung's mother in Louisville and had her, wandering on the phone when he stroled in, waiting what Callahan wanted.

Charlie just sat there without looking up, casually pretending to be sorting through some papers on his desk. He handed the receiver to Hornung and mumbled, "Here, tell your mother you just won the Heisman."

Not everybody gets that excited when they first hear about or see the Heisman.

It seems that Ohio State tailback Les Horvath, who won the award in 1951, and his wife moved from Columbus to Los Angeles in about 1957 and Horvath's wife noticed this ugly statue, yes, the ill-proportioned Heisman, being unpacked and placed on the living room mantel.

"What's that thing?" she asked. "Out. Get it out of here. It's hideous."

Horvath explained that it was among his most prized possessions. He explained what it was, what he had done to win it. Couldn't he just leave it there? If she really disapproved after awhile, he would move it to another room.

A couple nights later the Horvaths happened to have dinner at the home of the Tommy Harmon's, and Horvath's wife noticed that a Heisman Trophy adorned Harmon's mantel. And two nights later they happened to have dinner with Glenn Davis, the former Army star, and his wife, and Mrs. Horvath noticed that another Heisman Trophy had adorned that mantel as well.

Driving home that evening she turned to Les and said:

"You know that thing you want to keep in our living room? What's so special about it? Everybody we know has one."

four game winning streaks are not the stuff that make record books multi-dollar items.

They are rather commonplace. But Maine East has enjoyed just one four-game basketball streak in the past decade.

The Blue Demons could add a second this weekend. And that would virtually assure a five-gamer by yuletide time.

"We're going for our longest win streak in 10 years," announced East coach Paul McClelland. "We won four straight a couple years back when we had (Mark) Bondeson and (Dale) DesChamps. That's our longest since 1963.

"It's not that if we win this one, we could have five straight going into the Christmas tournament."

It seems almost inconceivable that during 10 years and over 200 games Maine East could never win more than four straight.

But they haven't. Now, however, the Blue Demons could have five in a row and a 5-2 overall mark heading into a post-Christmas tourney date at Notre Dame.

To a large degree, it depends upon whether McClelland's ballclub can prevail against Highland Park at home Friday night. And in a lesser challenge, defeat Maine North the following weekend.

Highland Park offers an interesting challenge in this first meeting ever between the two schools.

It will be the Central Suburban League opener for Chuck Schramm's Little Giants. At 1-0, East leads the CSL North.

The Little Giants are apparently reliant upon 6-8 Chuck Bergen, a strong-boy center who's averaged 24.5 points and 15.7 rebounds through one win and two losses.

But McClelland expects little hassles from Bergen after the 8 p.m. tipoff. "We don't figure he's the kid who will beat you," McClelland said.

"We're just used to going against better big men than Bergen. He has no moves to the basket and doesn't handle the ball that much. If he can beat you anywhere, it's on the boards."

Rich Schumacher (6-6) will get the defensive call against Bergen. But should the big fellow start heading toward a third straight 27-point game, Schumacher will sit down in favor of Greg Maloney.

Defending Bergen would become 6-5 Bill Castanzo's chore. "I've never seen anybody muscle Castanzo," McClelland said of his 215-pound center who's averaging 11.0 points and 10.6 rebounds.

"They might beat him with their moves, but Bergen doesn't have the moves."

It's two shorter fellows — 6-3 Moe Smith and 5-10 Bob Santini — who have the Blue Demons head coach concerned. "This Santini (9-7) is the kid we've got to stop," McClelland said. "If we can hold him and Smith down, we'll beat them."

Highland Park has not been a stereotype of basketball success to date. "We've got some kids playing real fine ball but we're not doing it as a team," said Schramm.

A win over North Chicago has been sandwiched between losses to Niles West and Deerfield. The latter were non-league games although against Central Suburban League members.

After the conference date against East on Friday, Schramm's Little Giants travel to Evanston the following evening.

McClelland will not alter his lineup for the Little Giants. That means sticking with guard Doug Moorad, recent benefactor of some bad luck and a Sunday punch.

Question mark defense gave Moorad second thoughts about Moorad until last weekend. "Doug did a good

Former Heisman Trophy Winner To Speak Monday At Luncheon

Does winning the Heisman Trophy put too much pressure on you after graduating from college?

Does the Heisman really help open some business doors or is it an overrated award in this regard?

Former Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, the Chicago Bears' backup quarterback who earned the coveted college award in 1964 at Notre Dame, will answer those questions and many more next Monday as one of the special guests at the Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon.

Huarte and Bears' quarterback coach "Zeke" Bratkowski will be the main speakers, subbing for linebacker Doug Buffone who will be in New York Monday on personal business.

Tickets are $5.00 per person, including tax and tip, for a chef's steak lunch and the sports program. Call Anne Chalikis at 394-2300 for reservations.

job on Saturday night, much steadier play," McClelland said.

"He's a good ballplayer and just needed some time to straighten himself out. I think he's done that now."

For his good defense against Niles East, Moorad crossed to the face. Mandeli caught a thumb from officials.

In other action this weekend, Maine West and North each played a CSL and non-conference game. The Warriors open their CSL South season at Niles East tonight, then host Libertyville Saturday evening.

Jerry Nelson's Norsemen await two rugged opponents, New Trier West, 0-3 against good people, visits North this evening. Maine travels to Proviso East for a Saturday night date against the highly touted Pirates.

The Warriors of Gaston Freeman shouldn't remain blanked after this weekend. In fact, it's very likely they could be 2-3 and in the Central suburban title derby.

Niles East must rate the underdog role against West despite the return of five players previously suspended for rule infractions by the Illinois High School Association.

At best, Niles East has been regarded as the weakest CSL South team, with or without the Forbiddle Five.

So perhaps it's best that West opens the CSL season with the Trojans instead of Niles West or North — both undefeated at 4-0 — or defending champion Maine South.

"Don't give up on this ballclub," warned Freeman. "I'll tell you, this is going to be a good ballclub. They've got a tremendous attitude. We're going to be contenders. That's the way I feel about it."

Just 24 points all year during the fourth quarter has hindered the Warriors in their travels over victory. Oddly, in their two best overall performances, Maine has been its worst enemy during the final period.

The season opener against Forest View found Maine losing by 21 points but scoring 13 in the final stanza.

Freeman's team played over 20 minutes of excellent basketball at Arlington but managed just seven fourth period points.

A new low was reached last weekend when the Warriors let potential victory slip away, scoring four points after the final tipoff.

Waukegan, increasingly favored to successfully defend its Suburban League title won the game by 11 points.

That result preceded the biggest upsets to date this winter in Illinois prep basketball.

One night later, Waukegan zapped defending Class AA state champion Thornridge, 58-49, at home. Thornridge had won 53 straight since January, 1971.

It was turnovers that did West in against Waukegan. Three times, 6-8 center Doug Myers had baskets nullified by lane violations.

"All you can do is talk about it," Freeman

Shamrock Challenge Next For Lions; Travel Tonight

by LARRY EVERHART

St. Patrick has always provided a rugged basketball challenge for St. Viator each winter and that tradition should hold true tonight when the Lions of coach Ed Wasielewski invade the domain of the Shamrocks.

Tonight's hosts are only 2-2, but Wasielewski expects that "they'll be as tough as they always are." It's not an easy game in which to try to reverse last weekend's results, when the Lions twice were beaten decisively — 70-48 by Carmel and 72-55 by Palatine.

With only a victory over Rolling Meadows, the record now stands at 1-3.

An encouraging sign in the last game against Palatine was the return of Mike Cook, who had missed the early part of the season with tendonitis after the football season. Cook scored 17 points against the Pirates.

"He was pretty impressive," said Wasielewski. "He scored and helped on the boards." Besides being the only Lion over six feet tall at 6-3, Cook is the only one with varsity experience from last year.

Dave Hutcheson has been the most prolific scorer for the first four games with a 14.5 average. No other Lion is averaging in double figures.

St. Patrick has run up a couple of one-sided wins and lost two close ones to Thornton and St. Benedict. But, as veteran coach Max Kurland says, "We need a lot more experience." Which puts them in the same boat as St. Viator.

The Shamrocks have had balanced scoring with forwards Pete Zimmerman and Paul Gruss and center Dave Teper all about even.

St. Pat, though on the small side, is slightly bigger than St. Viator. But for ones the Lions won't be at a big deficit here.

"We play together as a team and are strong defensively," says Kurland. "As the season progresses, we should put the ball in the hoop better."

"I haven't seen St. Viator play, but they usually have good shooters out there."

ANOTHER REBUTTAL...

Dear Sir:

In rebuttal to A. Cayer's factless attack on "Muscle-bound empty-headed" athletes, we would like to state that in order to participate in athletics one must have a minimum of a "C" average. One half of the graduating seniors of 1972 at Palatine High School who were on the National Honor Society were athletes, cheerleaders, or pom pom girls.

According to World Book Encyclopedia, sports demand a combination of physical skill, strength, enthusiasm, purpose, actual group or individual teamwork and have an alert mind! It states: Instead of hindering a mind in today's society, sports develops and makes a person well adjusted to daily life, teaching them the ability to get along.

"Prowess in football does not make one a good engineer, physicist, doctor, dentist, etc." What about Mark Spitz, a dental student and the winner of 7 gold medals? The late President Eisenhower was a halfback on his football team in college and graduated 61st in a class of 164. The late President John Kennedy was a letterman in college. President Nixon played football and won an academic scholarship to Duke Law School and graduated in the upper third of his class. There are thousands more of athletes who have made great achievements in life.

How many athletes are receiving a formal education because of scholarships? This they lose if they don't keep up their academic grades. And Cayers said sports got them nowhere unless they were good enough to play pros...

'TIRED OF DOUGLASS'

Dear Herald:

I for one was happy to see you get two more quarterbacks out for your next sports luncheon. I'm tired of Douglass and of the unbelievable "he can't do wrong" treatment he gets from the Bears' organization. I'd like to hear what Bratkowski (Zeke) and Huarte (John) have to say about the situation at your luncheon next Monday. I hope they're frank because Bears' fans are sick and tired of listening to Abe Gibrion constantly defend Douglass when there isn't a coach anywhere in the NFL who wouldn't make a change late in the game when his No. 1 (and I use the term loosely in Douglass' case) quarterback shows he can't move the team. And it's also time the press stops treating Gibrion as some super coach. What has he done but coach a team downhill?

Stanley Bobak
Wheeling

TIME TO PLAY HUARTE

Dear Sirs:

I've had it with the Bears. Gibrion, Douglass, Halas and all the rest. They keep pushing this inferior product on us every Sunday and they don't do anything to change it.

Why, Abe Gibrion, do you insist on being so stubborn with your absurd commitment to Bobby Douglass as your quarterback?? Not giving John Huarte a chance to play in that embarrassment at Minnesota last Sunday was inexcusable.

It's time to play Huarte. Nobody has any confidence in Douglass any more but you're so stubborn (and obviously getting orders from Halas) that you won't make a change. You don't want to admit you and the rest of the Bears' organization are wrong about Douglass.

Douglass has had his chance. He is a strong runner but he is not now, and never has been, a consistent passer. His execution is predictable. His teammates obviously have no confidence in his abilities to lead the team.

But Gibrion insists on being stubborn. He won't give Huarte a chance.

This is your chance coming up, Abe. The Bears play hapless Philadelphia and a decent Oakland team. Give Huarte a chance. Let him play one poor team and one decent team. That should tell us what he can do. Douglass has had his chance. He didn't produce!

"THEY'VE HAD THEIR GLORY"

Fan's Forum:

Wake up, administrators of Elk Grove High School. Football is over. Sure, we are extremely proud of our No. 1 football team, but they have had their glory.

Now it is time for the other sports. You are putting undue pressure on the other sports. All our winter sports have fine teams and excellent boys participating in them. Give them a chance.

Every year we have had extra assemblies for football but nothing for the other sports or other extra-curricular activities. Don't place one group better than the rest of the student body.

man said. "Sometimes they call it, sometimes not. You've got to know your officials as well."

The Warriors are still waiting for Chris Bouchee to complete his transition from football pads to cage skivvies.

"You'll find a difference in him after the holidays," Freeman said about his 6-2 forward who's off to a slow offensive start, just 13 points.

"Physically and mentally, the transition is very difficult. The kid might be tired mentally but not necessarily physically. It's just too bad the two seasons are so close together."

Bouchee is a much better ballplayer than his points production and seven rebounds would indicate. Football coach

Jim Morel, for whom Bouchee was a Herald and Chicago Today All-Area selection, calls him "without a doubt, the best overall athlete in the school."

Libertyville, West's first home opponent in the new season, has won just twice in five starts. The Wildcats defeated Zion-Benton and Holy Cross. Losses were to Thornton, Prospect and Lockport Central.

Freeman has been unable to give the Warriors his full attention the past three weeks. His wife, Beverly, is undergoing kidney treatment in Lutheran General Hospital.

While the Warriors should win at least once this weekend, Maine North has another rough go — New Trier West, then Proviso East.

It will be the league opener for New Trier's Cowboys who get their first breather against North, a loser in CSL play to Maine South.

Conant, a Sweet Sixteen member last winter, defeated Mel Sheet's Cowboys in the season opener for both clubs. Then New Trier East took an 11-point victory.

Last week, the Cowboys led Evanston by nine points at intermission, then converted just four of 28 field goal shots during the final half. Evanston won, 56-43.

That murderous schedule continues Saturday night against the aforementioned bunch from Waukegan.

So it's not surprising that Sheets enjoys being favored over Maine. And he insists, "I think we'll still be there near the top when it's all over."

A plus for the Cowboys — they'll get back forward Carl Imburgia this weekend. A sprained ankle has kept the 6-0 senior sidelined for all games. He averaged 17 points last winter.

The also winless Norsemen, meanwhile, realize they're not chasing stardom. This season must be judged by experience gained, not games won.

"These kids are young and it's pretty hard to discourage them," young coach Nelson said. "That's a tremendous asset."

"They know they're facing a rough schedule. Both teams we've got this week are top contenders in their leagues (No. 8 ranked Proviso in the Suburban)."

"And they realize we've got to get quite a few things together but that's not such an impossibility, either," Nelson said.

"Young attitudes can be shaped and we're trying to shape them toward individual improvement without sacrificing team execution."

Two qualities have become obvious about these Norsemen:

—There are some good athletes on this team who could make life unpleasant for other people later on; and —They don't quit no matter what the odds.

Item — Maine South beat Maine North, 116-39. But from start to finish, the Norsemen played and played and played.

They refused to sit lifeless, waiting for the clock to send them home.

Road Material Made Out Of Reclaimed Glass

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI) — A street paving material known as "glasphalt," which is made of crushed reclaimed glass and asphalt, can meet design requirements even when such foreign materials as metals, bones, plastics and stones are included, reports a University of Missouri — Rolla research team.

The research project, to determine the amount of foreign material that can be included in the glass used to make glasphalt, was funded by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute (GCM) and headed by Dr. W. R. Mahsch, Mahsch and his associates developed glasphalt.

Almost 20 strips of glasphalt have been laid in the United States and Canada. Crushed glass for the projects was supplied in pure form from the glass container industry's nationwide bottle reclamation program.

The significance of the latest findings lies in the fact that the crushed glass used to make glasphalt need not be in pure form. This will materially lower the cost of preparing crushed glass mixtures for glasphalt, particularly when it becomes possible to obtain it in larger volumes from mechanical solid waste separation systems.

Besides glasphalt, GCM is experimenting with products made of recycled glass, such as slurry seal, a road sealant, and such building materials as terrazzo flooring, bricks, construction panels and glass wool insulation.

It has environment lists and officials of the beverage industry at odds over a solution. The two sides argued yesterday and Wednesday during special hearings on the deposit proposal conducted by the Illinois Pollution Control Board in Chicago.

At stake is the health and safety of the consumer who may find himself paying a nickel a bottle or can in deposit as an enticement to them to return the containers to the dealers instead of throwing them away.

The proposed beverage container regulations, submitted by the Illinois Solid Waste Management task force, is in its second year of presentation. The beverage industry has successfully kept the regulation from being enacted through legal maneuvers and other tactics.

The thrust of the regulation is aimed at litter control, the reduction of the quantities of solid waste and of disposal burdens, cost savings to the consumer and creation of large recycling facilities, according to a task force statement.

THE PROPOSED regulation, the task force said, applies to the transaction between the ultimate consumer and the dealer from whom he purchases beverages in beverage containers. When the container is returned to the dealer, the consumer gets a refund and the dealer then returns the container to the distributor. The distributor, in turn, refunds the dealer.

The regulation, similar in scope to a bottle ordinance in Oregon, is the result of a year of research by the task force, a body comprised of members of the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality.

A group of Champaign County citizens last year filed a petition with the pollution control board seeking restrictions on one-way containers to discourage littering and encourage recycling and the use of reusable containers. The task force studied the problem and concurred with the citizens, coming up with the proposed regulation.

The task force study concluded that the conversion by the beverage companies to only returnable containers would not result in increased costs to the consumer, would mean maximum profits and would have only a minimal affect on the number of jobs the industry said would be lost.

At hearings yesterday and Wednesday at the Field Museum in Chicago, both sides debated the merits of the regulation and before about 300 persons yesterday Hugh Folk, an economics professor at the University of Illinois, was questioned for almost six hours by a beverage industry attorney.

Resembling a courtroom scene, the two men discussed the pros and cons of the regulation and about the only thing they agreed upon was that the consumer holds the key to the effectiveness of the proposal, if enacted. More hearings will be conducted downstate later this month.

The Oregon ordinance, which was put into the books about two months ago after three years of debate, has resulted in bottles being brought back to the dealer at about twice the rate they used to be, according to the state's liquor control commission. But, officials there agreed it will be about a year before the effectiveness of the measure can be judged.

Plan To Write School Pact In January

The River Trails Education Association (RTEA) "will probably get down to written proposals" for 1973 contract negotiations with Dist. 26 in January, Jan White, chairman of the RTEA bargaining team, said yesterday.

At the present time, RTEA representatives are trying to get a sampling of teachers' feelings in each school to see what should be included in the 1973 contract. "It's still fairly informal however," Mrs. White said.

The Dist. 26 board has already appointed a negotiations committee for next year. Board members on the committee include: James Bowes, William Haase and Sylvia Lurie. Leora Rosen and Ted Wallenberg have been appointed alternate members.

AS YET, THERE have been no meetings planned by the negotiations committee, although "they are going to start sitting down and talking," said Board Pres. Lloyd Demel. The committee was formed at Demel's urging. "I've asked that we get started early so we will have a chance to do an intelligent job," he said.

Demel said there had been "no commitment" made on whether Richard Zwieback will be hired as a negotiator for the board again this year. The teachers are not in favor of hiring him again. "I think they'd be very angry (if he was hired)," Mrs. White said. "I think the finances could be better spent. He did a poor job last year. I felt he delayed negotiations because he was so ill-prepared."

On the question of open sessions, Mrs. White said RTEA members would probably discuss the subject at the first negotiating session. "My feeling is they probably would be closed, however," she said. "It could go along faster without interference from people not familiar with the terminology," she said.

Demel said the board has made no decision about open or closed session. Open sessions could be a problem if they only provided a forum for "grandstanders" however, he said.

Federal Funds Granted For 'Operation Nutrition'

Federal funds have been made available to continue Operation Nutrition, a supplemental food program for poverty families administered locally by the Northwest Opportunity Center.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been designated as one of eight target areas in suburban Cook County to receive a supplemental appropriation of $150,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity to continue the program, according to Thomas S. Fuller, president of the Community Action Agency.

Other target area centers are in Evanston, Maywood, Summit, Robbins, Harvey, Chicago Heights and East Chicago Heights.

Bruce Newton, the new director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the additional funding guarantees continuation of the Operation Nutrition program through July.

The Operation Nutrition program was threatened with discontinuation in August because funds for the program were being withheld.

In May, Congress, urged by many groups including the Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition and its own Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, voted a $20 million supplementary appropriation for Emergency Food and Medical Services Programs, known here as Operation Nutrition.

THE FUNDS WERE withheld by the Office of Economic Opportunity until the regional Office of Economic Opportunity submitted a proposal for their use. The Cook County portion has just now been approved.

The program was suspended in August but public pressure resulted in an agreement to continue funding of the program in September on a temporary basis.

Many similar facilities had been directed by OEO a year ago to close or phase out because federal funds were deleted from the EFMS program nationwide and funding dropped from $50 million to $3.5 million in a combination of reduced appropriations, said Fuller.

"We held on as long as we could," Fuller continued, "merely because we found it impossible to do otherwise. Unemployment continued to rise and the number of welfare cases has more than doubled in some areas in the past few months."

DISCONTINUATION OF the program would have affected 260 families in the Northwest suburban area now receiving food through Operation Nutrition, according to Newton.

Operation Nutrition is geared to the population most subject to malnutrition and anemia. Only pregnant women and those with newborn infants or children under six years can qualify to receive the supplemental food.

The Operation Nutrition boxes are intended to supplement the family's daily food and contain such products as syrup, powdered milk and eggs, canned fish, poultry and meat, canned vegetables and fruits, peanut butter and juices.

Food for the program is provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The food is shipped into a central warehouse in Chicago and a private firm has donated a truck to pick up the food in Chicago and bring it to the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Since the program started two years ago, the food was broken down in Chicago into prescription packages to fit the need of the families receiving it. To cut back costs the food will now be shipped in bulk to the Northwest Opportunity Center where it will be broken down into packages for the individual families.

THE FIRST shipments of food since funding was received arrived at the center yesterday. Families receiving assistance from this program can pick up their food during the first three weeks of each month.

Application for Operation Nutrition may be made at the center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd. Newton said there are facilities and funds available to expand the program to serve 350 families.

Square Dance News

BUCKS AND DOES

Beginning at 8 p.m. tomorrow night at the Dempster Junior High School (just west of Rte. 83) in Mount Prospect, "Christmas Bells" will be ringing as the Bucks and Does celebrate the Yuletide season. Calling the squares throughout the evening will be Paul "Foggy" Thompson with Lee and Shirley leading the rounds . . . and we even expect a visit from Santa. All area dancers are invited.

Bucks and Does members will again donate Christmas gifts to the Marklund Hilltop Foundation, a school for the mentally handicapped children. Guests may contribute if they feel like sharing with these unfortunate children. The foundation can use terrycloth bibs or permanent press clothing for school age children. It is asked that the contents and size be marked clearly on the package so "Santa" will know what child can use the gift.

HAPPY TWIRLERS

Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marlon streets in Des Plaines, with the Char-Lee Wellers calling the squares. Everyone is invited.

New figure workshop begins at 8 p.m. followed by intermediate dancing from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The exchange of Christmas gifts at the Happy Twirlers Christmas party, Friday, Dec. 15, at the church will have a different "twist." Instead of the usual "grab bag" distribution of gifts, generally having little actual "significance" to either giver or recipient, Happy Twirlers and their guests will bring "gifts" of canned food, vegetables, fruits or meats, that will help provide a Christmas dinner for needy families in the area. These gifts will be added to those collected by the church, the following Sunday, Dec. 17.

RAND RAMBLERS

Bruce Zeni of Decatur, Ill., will be calling the squares for the Rand Ramblers tonight, when they meet at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights. Everyone is invited.

Edna and Gene Arnfield, the club's regular round dance leaders will begin the rounds at 8 p.m. All area dancers are invited and dancing will continue until 11 p.m.

ARLINGTON SQUARES

The Arlington Squares have chosen "Sleigh Bells" as the theme for their dance when they meet tonight at St. Simon Episcopal Church, 717 W. Kirchoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Edna and Gene Arnfield will cue the rounds beginning at 8 p.m. and Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be on hand to square them up at 8:30 p.m.

Panel Backs Flood Bill

The Des Plaines River Basin Steering Committee is backing legislation to protect the right of lowland property owners to have their property free of flooding.

The committee is having one of its members introduce legislation to establish a state drainage commission to seek short-term solutions to drainage problems.

State Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, will introduce the committee's recommendations as a bill in the General Assembly.

Williams, who represents the 5th district, is municipalities chairman for the steering committee.

According to Jack Gilligan, vice chairman of the steering committee, the group is proposing amendments be made to the state's basic drainage law.

GILLIGAN SAID although few communities commented on the proposed legislation after receiving copies of it from the steering committee, those communities which did comment were in favor of the changes. The steering committee includes all communities whose stormwaters drain into the Des Plaines River.

It was formed to work with the U.S. Soil and Conservation Service to find solutions to flood control problems along the river and to seek federal funding to help correct those problems.

Basically, the proposed changes would alter a current law which allows property owners to drain their land without regard for the effect it has on downstream property.

"The right of an owner to drain his property should not be dependent on his elevation," Gilligan said.

"It deals with the right not to flood even though you may be at a lower elevation," he said of the proposed legislation.

The new law would place equal responsibility for flood control on all property owners, Gilligan said.

THE RESOLUTION calls for state government to take "primary responsibility for the solution of state-wide flooding."

The resolution calls for the new state drainage commission to work with problems which can be solved in one or two years. The commission would be appointed by the governor and composed of 11 members of the General Assembly, two members of state government agencies, one representative from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, one from the Metropolitan Sanitary District, and one from the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. Other members of the commission would include three municipal officials and three members at large including one resident of an unincorporated area.

It calls for the commission to come up with a plan for solving flooding problems within the state within nine months after its formation. The proposal also would require municipalities and counties to enforce drainage laws and to cooperate on flood control.

Volvo and Ford Car Price Cuts Given Federal OK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 [AP]—Volvo Cars Corp. and Ford Motor Co. won Price Commission approval today to raise prices on their 1973 automobiles to reflect the increased costs of federally mandated safety and antipollution features. Ford's request to subcontract, increases sought for plant safety, noise, and pollution improvements and features-related changes not required under federal mandated standards. A spokesman said the future changes included an increase in the size of the engine. After the commission announced its decision, it said it would seek to increase prices for each 1973 car price in-

Wonder Weight Loser To 'Tell How' Monday

BEFORE... Connie DeStefano joined the Wonder Weight Losers in 1970 she weighed 260 pounds

For those who are trying to lose weight in spite of the approaching holiday feasting, the Wonder Weight Losers have living proof of their successful program.

She is Mrs. Connie DeStefano of Elmhurst who has lost 110 pounds and is still losing. Going from 260 pounds down to 150 since joining the Wonder Weight Losers in 1970, she is displaying her new look and telling her remarkable story at various clubs in the area.

Mrs. DeStefano will appear Monday evening at the Wonder Weight Losers' class at the Scandia House, Rand at Central Roads, Mount Prospect. Now an instructor for the weight loss program, she will explain how she trimmed her way down from a size 40 to a size 12 dress.

The class in Mount Prospect meets every Monday evening at 7:30.

The concept of the program itself originated from the New York Nutrition Clinic. Further information is available from Mrs. David Hardt of Lombard, regional director, at 493-3610.

after... Mrs. DeStefano followed the Wonder Weight Losers program she has trimmed down to 150 pounds.

Midwifery Coming Back

by ROBERT E. SWEET
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The art of midwifery, outlawed in California since 1949, is making a comeback and may be on the verge of rebirth in the nation's most populous state.

A new, growing demand for midwives has been generated by the desire of many couples for "natural" childbirths, the shortage of doctors — particularly in rural areas — and the wish of some women's liberationists to avoid male obstetricians.

Another factor is that midwives provide more individualized care than most physicians and can spend more time with the mother before, during and after childbirth.

"Doctors are awfully busy with surgeries and other medical things and, if you spend a little more time with the mothers, it's much better for them — they feel at ease," said Charlotte Alarcon, a 62-year-old Los Angeles midwife who has delivered about 580 babies in her career.

A FULL-TIME nurse and a grandmother, Mrs. Alarcon is one of two midwives still alive and working who were permitted by the legislature to keep a midwife's license when the law was repealed 23 years ago. The other remaining midwife is Marie De Alemany, 72, Los Angeles. All other midwives practicing in 1949 have since died or gone out of business.

Mrs. Alarcon said in an interview that it would be "a wonderful idea" if the legislature would revive the old midwife licensing law.

Just such a move is afoot and appears to have a good chance of success.

Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy, a Hanford Republican respected for his expertise in the nursing field, said he will introduce a bill in the 1973 session to widen the scope of the legal functions nurses may perform, including normal childbirth.

MANY STATES NOW permit midwives to deliver a baby unaided but require that the midwife be a nurse with special training in the field.

The number of licensed midwives nationwide has increased from 400 a decade ago to about 1,200 today, and the demand for more midwives is mushrooming, according to the International Confederation of Midwives.

"The business of having a baby now in an ordinary hospital is an expensive and frequently impersonal experience," Cunningham said. "Many doctors are overworked and brusque in their approach. We see midwifery as a way to humanize childbirth."

A survey of the state's hospitals indicated that about 500 midwives could be employed immediately if the ancient art were revived, Cunningham said.

Wife Whose Name Not Same To Appear On NOW Panel

The first woman in Illinois to obtain a court decree establishing her legal name as separate from her husband's will be the featured member of a panel sponsored by NOW North (National Organization for Women, North Shore Chapter). The meeting will be held in Northfield Community Church, Willow and Wagner roads, Northfield, next Monday at 8 p.m.

Terri Tepper of Barrington will be joined on the panel by her husband, Lawrence Welner, who was her attorney in her legal suit.

Miss Tepper, who has been married eight years, said she decided to seek the legal right to use her own name for reasons of "human rights." Although she has authored two books in her name — which initially gave her the idea of claiming her name — she said she had "no professional reason" for doing it. She does not work professionally now, although she has taught school in the past.

MISS TEPPER said her husband was not in favor of the move at first, "but after I convinced him that it represented no alienation from him on my part," he joined in her struggle. She said she asked him at one point whether he would like to change his name to hers, and they both laughed. But Miss Tepper considers it equally absurd that she should change her name to his.

Others on the panel Monday will be Lorraine Anderson, who is filing a similar suit in Springfield, and her husband; and Linda Strohlman, editor of the Illinois Legislative Bulletin and drafter of bill No. 2210, which would have amended present Illinois law on a woman's right to retain her own name after marriage. The bill was introduced in the legislature by Eugene Chapman (D-3rd) but was defeated.

The panelists will discuss the legal and philosophical aspects of this right, as well as some of the reactions it has elicited. The public is invited, and a $1 donation will be accepted at the door.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Visiting some acquaintances some time ago, I remembered seeing a dieffenbachia plant growing out of a water-filled glass vase. It was so luxuriant, I was fascinated. Not wanting a dieffenbachia around (I don't care for these dangerous plants), I'm curious if you know of any other plants that I might start now in water so that I could have some lovely green plants around this winter? —Genevieve Maxwell

There are several plants that grow this way — geranium, wax begonia, peperomia, impatiens, hibiscus, coleus, ivy, aglaonema and grape ivy. All these have embryonic root systems at each point where a leaf originates and these preformed roots develop rapidly when placed in water. The containers can be glass jars, bottles, aquariums or vases.

Not only should the containers be spotlessly clean but the plants should be scrubbed before they are inserted into the water and no leaves should be below the water level.

As algae should be prevented and these won't grow without light, it would be a good idea either to use opaque vases or cover the glass containers with contact paper. The water should be changed frequently and a speck of plant food added once a month.

Dear Dorothy: After a particularly humid period, the door to our bedroom closet was almost impossible to open. My husband was about to take it off and see if the hinges were causing the trouble.

Then he remembered something he had heard once and thought it was worth trying. Lucky that he did. He put a piece of heavy sandpaper under the part that was binding, held in place by a few pieces of cardboard, and opened and closed the door a few times. The trick worked. The door swung easily. —Mrs. Lewis D.

Dear Dorothy: I find the best way to keep cattails from bursting is to spray them with hair spray. —Ellen James (Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints.
